5 Firemen Hurt, 75 Flee 18th St. Blast

3-Alarm Fire Sweeps 16-Family Apartment

Explosions Tear Hole in Roof, Hurl Glass Over Crowd Of 2,000 in Street

Six persons were injured, three seriously, early today when a series of explosions followed a three-alarm fire in the Oregonian Apartments at 1815 Eighteenth street northwest.

More than 75 persons were driven to the street by the flames and the blasts.

Four firemen and a member of a Washington Gas Light Co. emergency crew were severely burned and hurt when caught by a terrific blast, which shattered windows and hurled bricks upon firemen working in the street below.

A fifth fireman, Capt. Charles L. Satterfield, of No. 9 Truck Company, was overcome by smoke after fighting the blaze for more than an hour and was rushed to the hospital in serious condition.

5 Victims of Blast

The blast victims, all taken to Emergency Hospital, were:

Lieut. Murchel Lamp, 915 Tenth street northeast, No. 2 Truck Company, burned on the head, face and hands, condition serious.

Private Andrew Bigos, 4939 Forty-seventh street northwest, head, face and hands, condition serious.

Private Clyde Smith, 627 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, No. 9 Truck Company, burned on the face and head, condition serious.

Private Alvis Winkler, 155 E street southeast, No. 9 Truck Company, burned on the head, face and hands, condition not determined.

Fred Randell, 1717 East Capitol street, Washington Gas Light Co. employe, burned on the face and head, condition not determined.

2,000 Jam Streets

Sleeping tenants hurried to the street as explosions spread flame and smoke through the four-story brick structure.

More than 2,000 spectators gathered as 12 engine and four truck companies responded. All available police also were sent to the area. Traffic on intersecting streets was tied up for blocks.

The fire was believed to have started in the basement of the 16-apartment building and to have worked up to the fourth story through the dumb waiter shaft.

It was on the fourth floor, firemen said, that accumulated gas was touched off by flame, blowing out windows and sashweights. A ten-foot hole was torn in the roof and fourth floor wall by the initial blast. The top of the building looked as though it had been bombed.

The crowd in the street was sprinkled with splintered glass and Randell was thrown from the fourth to the third floors by the force of the blast. Randell and four similarly injured firemen were rescued by other firefighters.

The first explosion was followed by a series of smaller ones which continually endangered the firemen.

Police believed all residents had reached the street safely. But in

C. of C. Told War Would Destroy World

International Group Has Banquet as 2,000 Arrive for Meetings

Businessmen throughout the world definitely are of the opinion that war must be averted, Thomas J. Watson, president of the International Chamber of Commerce, declared last night at a banquet of the American section of the organization at the Mayflower Hotel.

"The war would be so destructive," he said, "that it would mean a complete economic collapse for the world and the destruction of civilization as we understand it."

The banquet preceded the opening this morning of the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Nearly 1,000 businessmen from all parts of the country gathered yesterday for the meeting and another 1,000 are expected today.

Three Pilots Battle Playful Panda On Flight to Zoo

Pittsburgh, May 1 (AP).—A playful panda gave three pilots a lively tussle today as the plane carrying it to a New York zoo neared the Pittsburgh Airport.

The 70-pound Bimbo nipped the trousers of Chief Test Pilot Thomas Tomlinson and snapped at Capt. Don Terry and First Officer M. H. Cassing.

Its keeper, Dr. A. E. Best, did not learn of Bimbo's antics until the plane landed. All that was needed to quiet Bimbo, he said, was a piece of fresh bamboo.

Roper Temporary Minister to Canada

Former Commerce Secretary Says He Will Serve Only 60 to 90 Days; Indicates He Was Drafted to Welcome British Royalty

Daniel Calhoun Roper, nominated by President Roosevelt to be the new United States Minister to Canada, said yesterday he would remain at the diplomatic post for about 60 days.

"I expect to remain only during the period of the visit of the King and Queen of Great Britain to this country," he declared. "That would be for about 60 days—90 days at the most."

The benign, 72-year-old former Secretary of Commerce was absorbing violet rays at the Peterson Health Club, Inc., when asked how he expected to handle diplomatic relations between this country and her largest continental neighbor.

Instead of making the expected reference to the usual diplomatic concerns, Roper indicated he had been drafted for the express purpose of providing the United States with a minister to Canada while George VI and Queen Elizabeth are in North America.

"I am going there to take charge of that situation," Roper said, referring to the royal visit. "It is an unusual one in which we all want to contribute and extend every possible consideration and courtesy to these visitors."

"We want them to like this country so much they'll want to stay, but, of course, not as King and Queen. This visit will be a great binder of goodwill.

"I have only been in Ottawa once, but we in this country always feel at home with Canadians. We have tried to understand each other and we've succeeded—on both sides."

By way of citing a precedent for his new role of receptionist for royalty, Roper recalled that he had

AFL Demands Ouster of Labor Board

Green Lashes Bias, Asks 5 Men; Charges Burke Would Destroy Act

By Robert C. Albright.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday charged the National Labor Relations Board with bias, favoritism, usurpation of power and "gerrymandering" of labor units in the interests of John L. Lewis' C. I. O.

Defending a series of A. F. L. amendments to curtail the board's powers and aid craft unionism, he told the Senate Labor Committee the present personnel of the board must "be displaced, if only to restore confidence and respect in the minds of millions of American workers."

Proposes Five-Man Board

He tongue-lashed alike the three-man NLRB for "taking sides between us and our rivals" and the more drastic labor act amendments proposed by Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska. He charged the latter would destroy the labor relations act "in purpose and theory."

Then he proposed an entirely new board of five members to be known as the "Federal Labor Board." He declared the present personnel has lost the confidence of the "public" as well as of the A. F. L. and asserted "fear" of the board's admin-

Warring Brothers Learn Fate Today in Tax Conspiracy Case

Sentencing of the three Warring brothers by Justice Laws today is scheduled to end the sensational criminal conspiracy case which rocked the District Court with a jury-fixing scandal and shattered the $2,000,000 Foggy Bottom numbers racket.

Facing sentence are Emmitt Warring, 33, brains of the gang, who pyramided the racket from a shoestring to mastery of 500 henchmen and the handling of millions; Leo Paul Warring, the racket utility man, and Charles (Rags) Warring, trigger man of the organization.

The brothers and Gordon L. R. Sadur, income tax expert, were indicted of plotting to defraud the Treasury of taxes. The first jury to try them disagreed. The second was discharged after revelations that Emmitt tampered with both, and Emmitt was jailed for 28 months.

Emmitt stood four days of his third trial before changing his not-guilty plea last Friday. Leo Paul and Rags yesterday withdrew their not-guilty pleas and pleaded nolo contendere (no defense).

On these pleas the trio are due to be sentenced today.

Man Held for Threats To Roosevelt, Others

New York, May 1 (AP).—Talbot D. Harrison, 45, father of six pleaded guilty today of writing threatening letters to President Roosevelt, J. P. Morgan, J. Edgar Hoover and Mayor LaGuardia, among others, and was sent to Bellevue Hospital for observation.

Most of the letters threatened death and one threatened to dynamite the Morgan banking house.

Autoist Hurt Critically In Crash With Trolley

James Koons, 36, of Laurel, Md., was injured critically early today when his auto collided headon with a street car at Sixth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest.

Struck by an automobile at Fourteenth and Independence avenue, Mrs. Harry Lee Kimble, 31, of Alexandria, Va., suffered a fractured vertebra. In Casualty Hospital her condition was described as critical.

Pendergast Graft Witness Disappears

Kansas City Boss Arraigned; Missing Lieutenant Leaves Suicide Missive

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, May 1.—A Tom Pendergast business lieutenant vanished today, leaving a suicide trail, a short time after the Democratic political boss appeared before the bar of justice for the first time.

A note hinting at self-destruction was found in an automobile used by Edward L. Schneider, 46, secretary-treasurer of seven Pendergast enterprises. The car was parked on a bridge over the Missouri River.

Maurice M. Milligan, U. S. district attorney, asked F. B. I. and Treasury agents to investigate the "purported disappearance of Mr. Schneider, who was an important Government witness, to determine whether his disappearance is a hoax, a suicide or that he met foul play."

Schneider Gave Statement

Milligan said Schneider made a "complete and detailed statement" of his business dealings with Pendergast last Friday. Pendergast was indicted the next day for a second time by the Federal grand jury for income tax evasion.

Schneider was mentioned several times in that indictment as having acted as a cover for dividend and salary income actually received by Pendergast.

Federal court officials said if Schneider is dead there is no way to use his grand jury testimony against Pendergast, whose trial was set for June 12 when he was arraigned today before Judge Merrill E. Otis. He pleaded innocent.

Kansas City, Kans., firemen dragged the river for Schneider's body. The stream's depth and swift current presented difficulties.

Hat Found in River

A hat bearing Schneider's name was found late in the day in the Missouri River near the Kansas City, Mo., municipal airport.

In a note addressed to his wife, Schneider said, "This ordeal for the past month has been too much and it is getting worse all the time."

He testified before the grand jury four days last week. Before that he was kept waiting day after day in the district attorney's office.

Best known among the concerns of which Pendergast was president and Schneider secretary-treasurer was the Ready-Mixed Concrete Co., which supplied materials for many of the public construction projects in the city and county.

The other companies, whose materials and services found frequent favor in public undertakings were Midwest Paving, W. A. Ross Construction, Midwest Pre-Cote, Kansas City Concrete Pipe, Centropolis Crusher and P. R. Realty.

Also arraigned before Judge Otis today were R. Emmet O'Malley, removed successively as State insurance superintendent and Kansas

Embarrassed, Hazen Orders New Keys to City

When dignitaries come to town in the future Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen can laugh at locksmiths, as he will have brand-new shiny keys to the city—which look like 14 carat gold, but aren't—to present to them.

Yesterday the locksmiths laughed at Hazen, when he was unable to present Miss Caroline Palm, of Greeville S. C., the recent Charleston azalea queen, with the key which protocol demanded. Miss Palm, with Miss Margaret Welch, who is "Miss Charleston," arrived at the District building to find that the cardboard key to the city which was to be given them had failed to appear.

Hazen immediately ordered keys against the day when another distinguished visitor would come knocking at the city's gates.

Poles Demand Danzig

By the Associated Press.

Warsaw, May 1.—Poland's opposition press today countered German demands for the return of Danzig with a campaign for establishment of a Polish protectorate over the Free City.

Although the opposition counter demand was not directly approved by the foreign office before publication, it was pointed out that disapproval by the government would have resulted in confiscation of the editions.

Furthermore, the official Gazetta Polska let it be understood that Poland might seek control of Danzig to thwart any German attempt to annex the Free City by force.

Sources close to the foreign office said Foreign Minister Beck, in replying to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's Reichstag speech, would demand extra guarantees for Polish rights in Danzig.

Beck is expected to address the parliamentary foreign affairs committee Friday.

Protectorate Demanded

The newspaper Goniec Warszawski, organ of the Nationalist opposition, declared that "the only reasonable solution in regard to Danzig would be establishment of a Polish protectorate."

"Since Germany established its protectorate over 'independent' Slovakia," the paper said, "it has no right to protest if Poland protects Danzig."

Kurjer Warszawski, organ of the Moderate Nationalists, said "Germany believes she has asked Poland for very little" in demanding annexation of Danzig and an extra-territorial highway cutting Pomorze (the Polish Corridor) in two to connect Germany proper and East Prussia.

May Appeal to League

"If Germany really considers it to be very little," said the paper, "then it would be much easier for her to give up these demands than for Poland to grant them, for we consider them very much and even very, very much."

The official Gazetta Polska said in commenting on Germany's demands:

"The policy of Berlin creates a situation which will cause the Polish government to further its demands concerning establishment of new guarantees for Polish rights and Polish property in Danzig."

This article was interpreted as meaning Poland might ask the League of Nations, under whose pro-

President Asks Quick Action On Arms Fund

¼ Billion Sought For 3,000 Planes, Canal, Air Bases

President Roosevelt asked Congress yesterday for $277,000,000 in appropriations and contract authorizations to rapidly expand American air power and strengthen Panama Canal fortifications.

Three thousand new warplanes, four major air bases and pilots and mechanics to man them would be provided under a $250,000,000 fund proposed for the Army Air Corps. The balance of the budget estimates presented would provide additional antiaircraft and coast defense units needed for defense of the vital Panama Canal area.

In requesting the actual funds to translate his special armament program into reality, the President stressed the need for speed.

Meanwhile, the establishment of an American "Gibraltar" in the

The Good Ship 'Sink Quick' Upsets But Stays Afloat

The good ship Sink Quick, sailing out of the Capital Yacht Club, was turned over on its side yesterday in the Potomac by a gust of wind.

Its occupants, Miss Virginia Edelblut, 18, of Burnt Mills Hills, Silver Spring, Md., and William R. King, jr., 18, of 18 Elm avenue, Takoma Park, Md., were picked up by a passing boat.

The patrol boat of the Harbor Police rushed to the scene, but the wet sailors had righted the Sink Quick and returned her to her berth at the club.

Soviet Wants Alliance

By the United Press.

London, May 1.—Efforts to bring Soviet Russia into Europe's armed "peace front" tonight were brought close to a deadlock when the Russians threatened to quit the negotiations unless Britain agrees to an Anglo-French-Soviet military alliance.

The British still were hopeful, however, that some sort of compromise would be reached to bulwark the anti-aggression front with Russia's enormous fighting strength.

A Russian authority said that, unless Britain agrees to extend her military alliance with France to include Russia, Moscow will refuse to adhere to the "peace front."

Instead, he said, Russia will go her own way and develop a tri-power security arrangement for her Baltic neighbors—Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia.

Reply to Hitler

Russia's stand was revealed after the British official spokesman announced that Britain and France had answered Reichsfuehrer Hitler's demands for Danzig and a road across the Polish Corridor with renewed assurances that "if Poland fights we will fight, too."

The spokesman admitted tonight that major obstacles stood in the way of conclusion of an Anglo-French-Soviet alliance.

Prime Minister Chamberlain intimated in the House of Commons today that the reluctance of Poland and Rumania, both of whom hold Anglo-French guarantees of military aid, to accept Soviet aid constituted a stumbling block in the way of Russia's co-operation.

[However, Polish objection to Soviet aid that might bring Red troops to the country was reported to have been modified considerably by Hitler's denunciation of the Polish-German nonaggression pact Friday, the Associated Press said.—Editor's Note.]

The critical position of the negotiations was believed to have been discussed this afternoon by Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and French Ambassador Corbin.

Tokyo Stand Vital

The main objection to an Anglo-French-Soviet military alliance, in the minds of the British cabinet, even if it were purely defensive and restricted to Europe, rests upon Japans reaction. The government fears such an alliance would force Tokyo to consent to Hitler's desire

Roosevelt Lectures Neighbors On Early Dutch Architecture

By the Associated Press.

Rhinebeck, N. Y., May 1.—President Roosevelt brought two members of his Cabinet and the Crown Prince and Princess of Denmark to this village today and helped it celebrate another milestone in its 250 years of existence—the dedication of a new postoffice.

For the tall, stately Prince Frederik and the smiling Princess Ingrid, it was a novel event. The prince wielded the trowel in laying the corner stone.

Mr. Roosevelt told the villagers of his preference for "early Dutch colonial" architecture—the design of the postoffice—as against the Victorian, which he said was not in keeping with "good taste."

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, Dutchess County neighbor of the Roosevelts, presented the structure on behalf of the Treasury Department, which built it. Postmaster General Farley, whose department will run it, accepted.

It was announced Mr. Roosevelt would leave around 1 p. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow, to return to Washington.

9 OLD MEN GROW YOUNGER

A miracle has happened; the nine old men (who will today clear their docket) are some 80 years younger than they were two years ago. The average age of a Supreme Court Justice is now slightly over 61 instead of over 70. When Justice Black sat at the extreme left of the Chief Justice, the newest and youngest of the tribunal, he seemed a stripling beside the others.

Bachrach.

Mrs. Hugo Black. . . . jollies Justice

Now he outranks three newer men in seniority.

As witty, fun-loving Mrs. Hugo Black is rumored to have said to her husband the day 40-year-old Bill Douglas was sworn in:

"Now, Hugo, you really seem to have been one of the nine old men. You get older and the court gets younger."

* * * *

The two Roosevelt appointees at each end of the bench give the court an altered appearance. Black, Reed, Frankfurter and Douglas do not have the patriarchal visages of Van Devanter, Sutherland, Cardozo and Brandeis, who looked more like Sanhedrin . . . Frankfurter has already told friends that he is a prisoner, a prisoner of the Supreme Court, but Stone and Reed have never taken the veil; they get around socially more than the others.

"—surely no dozing here!"

FRANKFURTER: The Harvard professor sits straight and high in his chair, seeming one of the tallest instead of the shortest Justice. He seems to expect a dove to emerge from the lawyer's mouth.

BLACK: The first New Deal Justice now seems as self-possessed and well-poised as any of his colleagues; icy calm, and raptly attentive in a contemplative way.

* * * *

STONE: On his face is still a restlessness, as if 14 years of it hasn't reconciled him to sitting up there anchored in a chair all afternoon with half an hour out for lunch. His gaze wanders curiously over the audience, seeking maybe the soul of America.

McREYNOLDS: Tourists think he's catching a snooze when he leans far back in his chair, face turned up toward the ornate ceiling, eyes closed. They're mistaken; he's just resting his eyes. Shrewder observers think the oldest Justice (by nine weeks) may catch 30 winks when he slouches far down in his chair, head bent forward. He sits up with a slight start, rubs his eyes.

* * * *

HUGHES: The only Justice not clean shaven. His voice is still most incisive, his eye as clear as any. The only one who doesn't finger his face as he listens.

BUTLER: Today he is asking more questions than the others; softly, indulgently, almost tinged with disbelief; the only ruddy face on the bench.

* * * *

ROBERTS: He has the facial expression of a baseball umpire, stern and almost hardboiled, a granite face.

REED: The most amiable face on the bench, but he is looking fixedly at the lawyer, his features immobile, as if waiting fo a certain point to be made or omitted.

DOUGLAS: The newest justice is still stage shy; while he seems to be enjoying a secret joke, he is never still a moment, and his fingers constantly caress cheeks and chin, lips and nose.

"—at 2 p. m. they're hungry"

Those are the faces the tourists see, and to the tourists they seem nine sphinxes . . . During the last one hour every Justice except Douglas has asked a question of the lawyer . . . That's the court; a Secretary of State, two Attorneys General, a Solicitor General, a Senator, a chairman of the SEC, a law professor, two famous lawyers.

At 12 sharp they take their seats. They are here to listen, fidgeting, attentive, spotlit.

Occasionally they leap on a little hiatus in a lawyer's argument, tear it to pieces sportively; not that it's always a vital point, but tempting . . . Usually one or two tired tourists are asleep, bored because they're unable to hear well . . . Microphones would help the audience. At 2 they hurry off for a snack, through three exits, doffing robes as they go. Then back till 4:30.

These are the Nine Younger Men, 1939 version.

Under the lash of Chief Justice Hughes they have cleared the docket with amazing speed. Today they will hear argued the final case of the term, a month before the session ends. Then until they recess for the summer they will be grinding out opinions. Elsewhere the courts may be clogged; the Supreme Court is even with the world, by cracky, and spring is in the air.

Reds Control WPA Writers, Inquiry Told

86 in Project, Says Ex-Employe; Official Blamed in Sit-Down

Charges that a WPA official had "instigated" a sit-down strike on the Federal Writers' Project and that both theater and writers' projects are tinged with communism were aired yesterday as the House WPA investigating committee reopened its hearings.

Henry G. Alsberg, national director of the writers' project, was accused by Joseph Thomas Barrett, former WPA employe, of instigating a strike in New York in 1937. Another witness, Ralph De Sola, a writers' project employe, said that Alsberg had severely reprimanded him for testimony he had given before the Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

Supporting previous testimony that communistic literature was frequently seen in the New York offices of the writers' project, De Sola, who said he was a former Communist, charged that in January, 1937, 86 of the 315 workers on the project in New York were Communists, of whom 15 were supervisors. He added that he thought the number of Communists had increased since then.

Asserts Reds are Favored

A committee investigator, H. R. Buhman, said he had heard criticism in New York that unemployed actors found it difficult to obtain places with the theater projects, but that "Communists, the Workers Alliance and the like" had been able to find relief jobs.

The committee also was informed that Howard Hunter, acting WPA administrator, had strenuously objected to a questionnaire circulated by the committee among some New York arts projects employes to learn, among other things, whether they were members of the Workers Alliance or the Communist Party. Hunter had asserted that such an inquiry would not be "tolerated."

Acting Chairman Woodrum, of Virginia, said that the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper, had advised WPA workers to disregard the questionnaire. When Burton testified that he had received answers to only a fraction of the questionnaires sent out, Woodrum commented "So it seems that the advice of the Daily Worker and the administrative action of the WPA stopped you from getting your questionnaires answered."

Denouncing Alsberg as the "instigator" of the brief strike in the New York writers' project office two years ago, Barrett said one of the workers had died as a result of being "kicked downstairs in the course of the strike. He added, "I would like to place the responsibility for this man's death upon the shoulders of Henry Alsberg."

Barrett alleged that Alsberg wanted the strike to "influence Washington" to grant more funds for the writers' project.

Barrett testified Alsberg "never raised a finger to improve conditions." The witness said books he had prepared for the project were "sabotaged," that "class angles" and "class hatred" had been inserted in them. He alleged that only 25 per cent of the New York writers' project personnel are "competent."

Barrett testified that one writers' "consultant" in New York received $90 weekly from the WPA "for coming to the office two hours a week."

De Sola, who said he is working on a WPA natural history of the United States, termed the Workers Alliance one of the "false front organizations of the Communist Party." He said that "conditions" in the writers' project had been brought to Alsberg's attention, "but weren't received in very good spirit."

Tells of Alleged Threats

In reply to a question of J. O'Connor Roberts, committee counsel, De Sola said he had asked to be allowed to give his testimony in executive session, because "the attitude of hostility in New York is intense and severe" and he had already—as a result of his Dies committee testimony—been "threatened by unsigned notes."

De Sola added that before he appeared before the Dies committee he had been told he would be promoted, but after his testimony, "I heard nothing more about my promotion."

Roberts observed that "practically every witness has asked for executive sessions—they fear reprisals."

Oscar Goll, former managing editor of the New York writers' project, said that Communist literature was distributed there "daily." He said he had reported the matter to his superiors but had received "no satisfaction."

Goll asserted that a guide to New York was costing the Government $51.09 per 1,000 words, exclusive of administrative expenses. He said project writers take "two weeks and a day" to produce 1,000 words, while "any kind of a writer" could do the same work "in three hours."

"Powder Puff" Industry

The witness, who said he resigned his post because "things became intolerable," testified the 25 typists in the office did not have enough to do.

"How do they keep busy?" inquired Representative Ditter (Republican), of Pennsylvania.

"They used powder puffs," replied Goll.

Testimony was presented the committee showing the amount spent on some of the WPA theater projects in New York, which added up to $1,468,365 for 27 plays. Total production costs of "Prologue to Glory" were given as $250,280; of "Big Blow," $137,681, and of "Haiti," $186,887.

Pulitzer Prizes Go to 4 Newsmen, 2 Papers; Sherwood's 'Abe Lincoln' Drama Is Winner

Carl Van Doren Awarded $1,000 For Biography

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 1.—Pulitzer awards for distinguished journalism were made today to four newspapermen, three of them for work connected with the grave international situation, and to two newspapers for outstanding public service.

The winners of journalism's highest accolades:

The Miami (Fla.) Daily News, the $500 Pulitzer gold medal, for its campaign which led to a recall movement against the City Council—the "most disinterested and meritorious public service rendered by an American newspaper" during 1938.

The Waterbury (Conn.) Republican-American, honorable mention for its "expose of municipal graft."

Louis P. Lochner, chief of the Berlin bureau of the Associated Press, for "distinguished service as a foreign correspondent"; $500 cash award.

R. G. Callvert, of the Portland Oregonian, for "distinguished editorial writing," specifically for his editorial, "My Country 'Tis of Thee," in which he contrasted the air of peace in this country against conditions abroad; $500 cash award.

Thomas L. Stokes, of the Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance, for "a distinguished example of a reporter's work"—his articles, after investigation, bearing on charges of intimidation of voters in the Kentucky Democratic primary involving Senator Barkley and Gov. A. B. Chandler; $1,000 cash award.

Charles Werner, of the Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City, "for a distinguished example of a cartoonist's work"—his "Nomination for 1938," in which Czecho-Slovakia was pictured as dead in its tomb and a scroll at the grave head read: "Nobel Peace Prize;" $500 cash award.

Letters and Arts Winners

The winners in letters and arts were:

The $1,000 prize for the most distinguished novel — Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings for "The Yearling."

House Votes World War Pensions Raise

100,000 Veterans and Dependents to Benefit Under New Provisions

By the Associated Press.

The House passed, 359 to 1, and sent to the Senate yesterday a bill to increase or grant benefits to more than 100,000 World War veterans and their widows, orphans and parents.

Under the measure, widows, children and dependent parents of veterans would become eligible for compensation if the veteran had, at the time of his death, a disability "directly or presumptively incurred in or aggravated by service in the World War." Under the present law a veteran must have had a 10 per cent disability at the time of his death. Dependent parents are now allowed benefits.

Present Pensions Increased

The law now provides $22 a month for a widow and $30 for a widow and one child. The bill would raise these amounts to $30 and $38 respectively. A parent would receive $45 a month, or if both survived, $25 each.

The veterans' committee estimated that the bill would bring benefits in 3,000 new cases of widows and orphans, increase payments to 14,850 widows and assist 5,200 parents.

In addition, the measure would increase benefits to widows of veterans whose deaths were due to World War service. A widow under 50 years of age who now gets $30 would receive $37.50 a month, and one between 50 and 65 who is paid $37.50 would get $45. The increased payments would go to an estimated 27,800 individuals.

Wounded Veterans Aided

Some 87,000 veterans who now are barred from benefits by a 10 per cent disability clause would become eligible for payments under a section which would require the Veterans' Administration to rate a man as 10 per cent disabled if he was wounded in active service in the war.

The legislation would allow a minimum of $100 a month to veterans of the World and Spanish-American wars, Boxer rebellion and Philippines insurrection who lost a limb or eye or lost the use of a limb or eye.

The measure will cost the Government an estimated $18,000,000 a year at the outset.

Treasury Maps Sweeping Tax Revision Plan

4-Point Program Said to Eliminate 'Business Deterrents'

By the Associated Press.

The Treasury was disclosed by well-informed legislators yesterday to have drafted a comprehensive four-point program to eliminate taxes criticized as "business deterrents."

The lawmakers outlined the program as follows:

Elimination of present undistributed profits, capital stock, and excess profits taxes. Substitution of a flat-rate corporation income levy of not more than 22 per cent.

Reduction in higher-bracket personal income taxes from a maximum of 75 to a maxium of 60 per cent.

Authorization for corporations to carry over tax credits for losses for three years instead of one.

Modification of the capital gains tax to encourage investment.

President, Morgenthau to Confer

The legislators indicated that President Roosevelt had approved the entire program except the proposed reduction in upper-level income taxes. Secretary Morgenthau probably will discuss that idea with him before talking to the House Ways and Means Committee next week.

Treasury experts hope that the program will result in no loss of revenue. They have not yet determined exactly what the flat-rate tax on corporations should be, but have set 22 per cent as a maximum. Corporations with income of less than $25,000 a year would be given special treatment.

The present law levies flat-rate taxes on corporations with incomes of less than $25,000, and imposes a tax ranging from 16½ to 19 per cent on larger companies, depending on the amount of profits turned over to shareholders.

House Ways and Menas Committee Asks Old Age Benefits Begin in 1940

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday wrote into the social security revision bill an administration proposal to begin old age insurance benefits in 1940, instead of in 1942.

DOUGHTON

More than $125,000,000 will be paid out next year to persons over 65 years of age, who have been paying social security taxes.

Besides freezing the payroll taxes at 1 per cent for the next three years, the committee also approved granting benefits to widows and orphans, supplemental payments to aged wives, decreased payments for bachelors, and increased benefits for married men over 65.

Treasury proposals to revise the Federal business tax laws will be considered by the committee after disposal of the social security bill, Chairman Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, said.

Congressional officers and employes would be relieved from "payless holidays" under a resolution proposed yesterday by Representative Bland (Democrat), Virginia.

The resolution would authorize payment of such employes' salaries on the day preceding the last day of the month when the last day falls on a Sunday or a legal holiday.

The Hobbs bill to place deportable criminal aliens in concentration camps until their own governments issue passports for their departure was given the right of way in the House today by the Democratic leaders.

This decision was made despite strong opposition from the liberals, who secretly organized to fight the measure. The C. I. O. tonight issued a blast against the bill, declaring it is in "violation of the fundamental principles of justice and in contravention of our constitutional guarantees."

Representative Hobbs (Democrat), of Alabama, author of the measure, replied to the C. I. O., saying: "The sovereign power of this Nation has been thwarted" since "460 aliens still live in America who, during 1938, were adjudged unfit to remain here."

The Senate confirmed Edward P. Warner, of Connecticut to be a member of the Civil Aeronautic Authority, succeeding Edward J. Noble, who resigned to become an adviser to Harry L. Hopkins, Secretary of Commerce.

The Senate approved and sent to the White House a $1,700,615,000 appropriation bill carrying funds for the Treasury and Postoffice Departments for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The measure contains a provision restricting the right of Government departments and agencies to send printed matter through the mails postage free to documents authorized by law and for which individuals make specific requests.

Barriers between nine veteran Army mules at Fort Dix, N. J., and green pastures grew less formidable yesterday with House passage of a bill by Representative Gavagan (Democrat), New York, to give them to a humane organization.

The War Department several weeks ago, following out regulations, sentenced the mules to execution as too old for further service. The department issued a reprieve after introduction of the New Yorker's bill, which now goes to the Senate.

A Senate Labor sub-committee reported to the full committee without recommendation a bill by Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, to increase borrowing authority of the United States Housing Authority from $800,000,000 to $1,600,000,000.

Senator Gibson (Republican), of Vermont, said that Congress should adjourn within a month because there would be "too much talk of war as long as the session continues."

Supreme Court To Quit May 29 For Summer

By the Associated Press.

The Supreme Court announced yesterday that it will adjourn for the summer on May 29, barring unexpected developments.

No decisions were delivered yesterday, and the justices began hearing the final three cases to be argued this term. The next session at which opinions will be delivered will come on May 15.

The court agreed to pass upon a decision upholding the national bituminous act of 1937 as applied to coal purchased by the city of Atlanta.

Atlanta appealed from a three judge federal ecourt in the District of Columbia.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, May 1.—Crown Prince Olav of Norway, speaking today at the opening of the Norwegian pavilion at the New York World's Fair, expressed pessimism concerning world peace at present and in the future. He and his wife, Crown Princess Martha, were the first royal visitors to officially inspect the exposition.

"The world of today does not seem to be a very easy place to live in, either for individuals or for nations," said the crown prince. "It might perhaps be thought that all the modern means of communication would bring human beings closer together, make them understand each other better and make them live in peace with everyone.

"Unhappily there is no sign of the probability of eternal peace being within the reach of the 'world of tomorrow' but let us say like Shakespeare that, after all, we eagerly want to 'hope against hope.'"

Soviet Fliers Arrive

New York, May 1 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Vladimir Kokkinaki, Soviet Russia's aviation hero, told New York World's Fair officials tonight that "in the not too distant future planes will fly regularly from New York to Moscow in 24 hours."

The flier and his navigator, Maj. Mikhail Gordienko, who were forced down in New Brunswick Friday on their projected 24-hour nonstop flight from Moscow to the Fair, finally arrived at the $160,000,000 exposition after a night in New York.

The Fair's second day was marked by bright sunlight but meager attendance.

By duck, 30,000 admissions had been rung up on the Fair's giant cash register, as compared with the officially announced 601,000 who thronged the opening yesterday.

World Troubles Reflected

The troubled world situation was reflected today at the fair—dedicated yesterday by President Roosevelt as a symbol of peace—when the Chinese consul general here officially notified the fair corporation of his country's inability to participate because of throwing its resources to the aid of refugees and wounded at home.

The Czecho-Slovakian pavilion is going ahead under the old regime—an exhibit without a country since the dismemberment of its state.

Belgian Ambassador Count Van der Straten Ponthoz today dedicated Belgium's building, dominated by a 155-foot carillon tower.

'Faith Healer' Gives Up Self In Mass Insurance Murders

3 More Graves Opened, 2 Additional Suspects in Custody as Killings For Money Near the 100 Mark

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, May 1.—Three new graves were opened and two more persons were arrested today as developments tumbled one over another in the investigation of an Eastern seaboard gang of men and women who killed for insurance.

Detectives estimate the inquiry may eventually disclose as many as 100 murders in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Delaware. Thirteen persons now are in custody. Six are women, three of them widows. Bodies of their former husbands were removed today from the graves where they had lain for a year or more.

Chemists will try to ascertain whether these men died of slow poisoning—as did four others. A fifth man was killed by an automobile.

"Louie the Rabbi" Held

Major arrest of the day was Morris Bolber, previously described by police as a "faith healer" and known to confessed members of the ring as "Louie the Rabbi."

Bolber walked into detective headquarters with his attorney. A few hours later, Bolber was held without bail on a homicide charge.

"Bolber is not implicated in any of these poisonings," Attorney Cohen insisted. "However, he knows both Herman and Paul Petrillo, and several of the women involved in this case.

"Bolber is not now and never was a rabbi.

"He is a sort of psychiatrist. These people came to him frequently to discuss their family troubles and that is how he knows about them."

The attorney said Bolber had "very important information."

Arraigned with Bolber were Cesare Valenti, burly immigrant brought here from New York yesterday; David Brandt, charged only with suspicion; Amedia Muscelli, and Ralph Polselli, who came from Washington to surrender, charged with murder. All were held for further hearing.

In the earlier stages of the investigation, Police Capt. James Kelly named Valenti and Bolber as top men in the plot.

The two Petrillos were included in the original group arrested. Herman Petrillo has been convicted of murder with the death sentence stipulated.

Paul Petrillo, his cousin, was described at the trial as being in league with "Old Nick himself." Paul has not yet been tried.

Only one major member of the ring, Mrs. Rose Carina, named in a murder warrant and described by Police Capt. Kelly as a gang leader and a "lure," is still at large.

Milk Inquiry To Study Food Inspection

To Probe D. C. Health Office's Handing of Bootlegging Complaints

The Health Department's food inspection service is to be thoroughly investigated in connection with the District milk inquiry which opens today, it was learned yesterday.

Preliminary inquiries have developed the basis for a more complete investigation during the hearings, according to J. Edward Burroughs, special counsel of the House sub-committee on public health.

The sub-committee will seek to determine why the Health Department failed to track down alleged cream bootleggers after complaints had been made of violations of the 1925 milk act.

U. S. Expert to Testify

Health Officer George C. Ruhland will be the first witness, after which the sub-committee will question Dr. Reid Ashworth, chief of the food inspection service.

Third witness will be Lester C. Frank, chief sanitary engineer of the Agriculture Department, who will discuss the operation of milk codes in comparison with District regulations.

Hearings will be held morning and afternoon and are expected to continue over ten days.

To Study Price Spread

Besides alleged violations of the milk act in the "bootlegging" of cream from Western dairy farms, the sub-committee will investigate the spread between prices paid farmers in Maryland and Virginia for their milk and prices charged consumers by the distributors.

Complaints have been made to the investigators against the present system of allocating first-grade milk and so-called surplus milk under agreement between the distributors and the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association.

The sub-committee will receive any testimony that spokesmen for the Western producers wish to offer during the hearings, Burroughs said.

Bishop Hughes Is Slated to Retire Soon

5 M. E. Prelates Will Reach 70 Before Next Conference

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, May 1.—Retirement soon of five current bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church was assured today as the first general conference of the new single church was called for the first Wednesday in April, 1940.

HUGHES

The bishops affected because their seventieth birthdays come before the general conference date are Edwin Holt Hughes, of Washington, acting senior bishop; John L. Nuelson, Geneva, Switzerland, senior Bishop; Charles L. Mead, Kansas City; Edgar Blake, Detroit, and Wallace E. Brown, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Successors will be selected by jurisdictional conferences to follow within a year after the general conference.

Under the plan of union being adopted by the united conference here, the church is divided into six jurisdictions. Five of these are geographical, and the sixth, known as the central conference, will be made up of colored churches.

Which jurisdictions will select the new bishops will be determined by the assignment of all current bishops, a problem yet to be worked out.

No bishops of the Southern church are near enough the retirement age to be affected by the first general conference.

Uniting conference delegates divided into six groups tonight to begin fixing boundaries for the geographical subdivisions of the six jurisdictions.

Location of the subdivisions—known as conferences—was expected to be most difficult in regions where there is a heavy overlapping of members of the three former branches. The boundary meetings are expected to continue possibly a week.

In a separate meeting tonight, church leaders announced the next ecumenical Methodist conference would be held at Oxford, England, Aug. 30 to Sept. 1, 1941. The ecumenical conference is a meeting of representatives of the various independent Methodist churches in all nations.

The first major business step of the uniting conference was taken today in bringing the $29,000,000 pension funds of the three churches under a joint federation.

Bishop for 31 Years

Bishop Hughes, recognized by church leaders as one of America's foremost preachers, entered the ministry at Madisa, Iowa, in 1887. After serving pastorates in Iowa and Massachusetts, he became president of De Pauw University, Greencastle, Ind., in 1903. In 1908, he left the university to become bishop in Baltimore. In the same year he was a member of the General Conference.

Born at Moundsville, W. Va., on December 7, 1866, Bishop Hughes was educated at West Virginia University, and Iowa College. He holds honorary degrees from Ohio Wesleyan, Boston, Syracuse, and De Pauw universities. He is the author of "Letters on Evangelism," "Thanksgiving Sermons," "The Teaching of Citizenship," "A Boy's Religion" and "The Bible and Life."

He is a member of Delta Tau Delta and Phi Beta Kappa.

Alleged Gamblers Go on Trial for Attack on Editor

Mobile, Ala., May 1 (AP).—A Federal court jury, beginning trial today of six persons charged with conspiracy to interfere with freedom of the press, was told by the prosecution that at least two of the defendants were interested in gambling activities.

The conspiracy charges grew out of an attack, February 14, on Henry P. Ewald, former executive editor of the Mobile Press and Mobile Register. The newspapers had been conducting an expose of the lottery racket.

D. R. Coley, jr., defense attorney, said he expected to prove his clients did not know Ewald was an executive editor of the newspapers at the time of the alleged attack.

Architect Urges Labor to Support 'Factory' Houses

Jules Corchine, architect of the United States Housing Authority, addressing a housing study group of the National Negro Congress last night at the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A., suggested the best relation of the labor movement to housing would be one creating sentiment for better housing for various income groups.

Enough skilled labor, he said, does not exist to carry out the program for relief of the underprivileged. Prefabrication of houses, therefore, in factories tends to give additional employment.

Building houses in the manner in which automobiles are manufactured, the speaker stated, should not be objected to by trade unions, as it would provide the union member with better housing than he now enjoys while barred, because of his higher income, from present projects for low-income groups.

U. S. Drops Its Claim For Scripps Gift Tax

By the Associated Press.

The government agreed in a stipulation yesterday to drop its claim that Josephine S. Scripps owed $247,279 gift tax and penalty on the distribution of $2,107,158 in stocks and securities, largely newspaper properties.

Mrs. Scripps, of Miramar, Calif., widow of James G. Scripps, said the government's claim was based on a distribution to her four children, E. W., Joseph L., J. G. and Ellen Browning Scripps, in May 1932, before the effective date of the 1932 federal gift tax law.

Cochran Forces Joint Conference On FHA Extension

By the Associated Press.

Disagreeing with Senate changes, the House voted yesterday to send the Federal Housing Administration extension bill to a joint Senate-House committee to work out a compromise.

Representative Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, urged the House delegation on the joint committee to stand by a provision he inserted in the bill, which was altered by the Senate, designed to prevent what he termed the writing up of land values in large apartment house projects.

Cochran asserted that "the Senate amendment, in my opinion, was written by the FHA," and added it was "strange that an official of the FHA would try to improve my amendment when the FHA was 100 per cent against it."

Washington Broke Army Coup, Minister Asserts

How George Washington staved off a "military dictatorship" for the American colonies in 1783 was told last night by the Rev. Elwood Corning, of Newburgh, N. Y., at a meeting of Mt. Vernon Chapter, No. 22, Order of the Purple Heart, at 1414 I street northwest.

With the Army discontented because of arrears in pay, the famous "Newburgh letters," anonymous complaints about Army conditions commenced to circulate. Simultaneously, a group of officers went over Washington's head to urge the Continental Congress to act in the emergency.

In an address at the "Newburgh Temple," an Army chapel, Washington answered the complaints, preventing disbanding of the Army or seizing of command by rebellious officers. The "Temple" is now in the process of restoration, Corning declared.

Milk Producers' Group Defended By Michigan Man

By the Associated Press.

Organization of milk producers into associations, the Federal Monopoly Committee heard yesterday, can be a "strong factor" in stabilizing milk prices.

B. F. Beach of Pontiac, Mich., secretary-manager of the Producers Association of Michigan, testified that it was born of "the necessity of having an association so milk producers could sell their milk collectively."

He told the committee he favored pending State legislation under which producers would be licensed and marketing areas established.

Hitler Seeking To Isolate Stubborn Poles

German Press Assails Warsaw's Hungarian, British Friendships

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, May 1. — Reichsfuehrer Hitler strove tonight to isolate Poland from British and Hungarian friendship while using May Day to strengthen the bonds uniting him and his regime with youth and labor.

His offensive against the unyielding Poles appeared to include attempts to bring Hungary more completely into the German orbit by closer enocomic and political ties in return for more territory in Slovakia that Hungary desires.

The German press also sought to induce Britain to back down from her pledge of assistance to Poland, a pledge which has not yet been signed formally.

Nazi Press Assails Pledge

"For the English the question arises whether, since denunciation of the German-Polish treaty, their guarantee to Poland has not become much more risky than it previously was and more risky than London had foreseen," the Frankfurter Zeitung said.

Other editorials said England had acted on "false Polish information."

Celebrating the Nazi May Day festival of labor, the Fuehrer, in two speeches, derided the United States for a "boycott" of German goods, attacked "international agitators," defended himself as a lover of peace, and proclaimed Germany one of the most heavily-armed nations of the world.

"We love peace . . . I have enough grounds to want peace to complete enterprises that need from 10 to 20 years," he said.

Beside the Fuehrer in all of today's ceremonies were Hungary's premier Count Teleky and Foreign Minister Count Osaky.

Slovakia Believed Involved

While not admitted officially, it is the talk in well-informed quarters that Slovak territory is involved in Germany's new diplomatic maneuvers since Hitler abrogated his friendship pact with Poland last Friday.

Hungary and Poland have been good friends and have worked together in the past in the European diplomatic arena. Poland felt that Germany's action in absorbing Bohemia and Moravia and in assuming military protection of Slovakia was a military step against her.

Possible tightening of German-Hungarian relations was interpreted as a further move toward cutting off Poland's friends and thus weakening her resistance so that she would accept Germany's terms for the return of Danzig or whatever Hitler now wants in the Polish corridor.

In his Lustgarten speech before 30,000 workers, Hitler said "the United States has organized a boycott against German exports. It would have been much smarter if it had imported German goods instead of importing decidedly inferior German subjects!"

(Campaigns against the purchase of German goods in the United States are not official. The United States has imposed a 25 per cent countervailing duty against most German goods to compensate for subsidy of exports by Germany.)

Hitler Addresses Youth Rally

Earlier, in the Olympic Stadium, Hitler told 135,000 boys and girls of the Hitler Youth they were his backbone.

After telling of Germany's armed might the Fuehrer said that "if the hour should come that the world believes it can reach at Germany's freedom, then a million-fold cry will rise, so tremendous that the world will know unmistakably that the time of Germany's weakness is definitely past."

In a meeting of the Reich culture chamber, Propaganda Minister Goebbels attacked democracies, specifically mentioning the United States.

Goebbels asserted the United States had no culture and declared it "an impudence" that the United States should pretend to be "the protector of culture."

Hitler's Text No Reply To President, Says Hull

By the Associated Press.

The mere handing of a copy of Hitler's Reichstag speech to the American Embassy in Berlin, Secretary Hull indicated yesterday, will not be considered here as constituting a reply to President Roosevelt's peace message to the German chancellor.

Hull said the German foreign office sent the embassy a copy and then telephoned to say it was a reply.

1 Killed, 1 Missing In Flying Boat Crash

Caribbean was foreshadowed by an announcement of Secretary of War Woodring that a new military department was being created at Puerto Rico, consisting of the United States owned islands of that region.

Heretofore administered from the Army's Second Corps Area Headquarters in New York and garrisoned by only a regiment of infantry, the new Puerto Rican department will be commanded by a general officer and have a status equal to that of the military departments of Hawaii, Panama and the Philippines. While Army officials said no additional troops will be sent to the islands immediately, heavy artillery and anti-aircraft units soon will be necessary for the protection of new Army and Navy air bases to be located there.

Besides a major air base, to be started this summer, the Navy plans a submarine base at San Juan and a secondary air base in the nearby Virgin Islands. With heavy Army bombing planes also to be stationed in Puerto Rico, the island is expected to become the "spear-head" for the defense not only of the Canal, but also northern South America and the entire Gulf of Mexico area.

To Guard Communications

Planes and submarines operating from Isla Grande, Puerto Rico, can prevent enemy forces from breaking through the chain of islands ranging from Florida to South America, officials state. They can prevent any attack on the east coast of South America and will guard the lines of communications with the latter continent and South Africa.

For such strategic materials as manganese, chromium and rubber, the United States is dependent upon South American, African or East Indies sources. Should the shipment of the latter be cut off in a Pacific war, and the only available route for the vital supplies be around the Cape of Good Hope and through the South Atlantic, a strong American base in the Caribbean would be essential, officials declare.

To command the new department, made up of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the tiny island of Culebra, the War Department assigned Brig. Gen. Edmund L. Daley, now in command of the First Coast Artillery District at Boston. He will take over the new command July 1.

Battleship Overhauling

Other defense developments:

Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, and Representative Darden (Democrat), of Virginia, introduced legislation to provide major overhauls for the battleships California, Tennessee, Colorado, Maryland and West Virginia at a cost of $8,500,000.

Chairman May of the House Military Affairs Committee introduced a bill to carry out Secretary of War Woodring's plans for retiring over-age Army officers.

More than 400 leading aeronautical engineers will gather today at Langley Field, Va., for a special meeting of the National Advisory Committee of Aeronautics, called to consider efforts to regain for America the ground it has lost to Germany in air research. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and other members of the committee are expected to be on hand to launch a campaign for expansion of research facilities. Lindbergh is now making a study of this problem for the War Department.

6,000 Planes in 2 Years

The budget estimates submitted by President Roosevelt yesterday call for $185,440,000 in direct appropriations and $64,560,000 in contract authorization for the Air Corps. These sums with the $50,000,000 provided in the regular annual appropriation bill passed last week, will give the Army a maximum of 6,000 first line planes in two years time, together with a necessary expansion of facilities and personnel.

Nearly $64,000,000 is allowed for new air bases and enlargement of existing Air Corps stations. Bases are to be established in Puerto Rico, Alaska, and in the Southwestern and Northwestern areas of the United States. The $27,000,000 proposed for the Panama Canal of which $5,937,500 is contract authorization, would provide additional personnel and facilities for defending the Panama Canal.

Except for the civil air pilot training program, budget estimates have now been presented to Congress for the entire $552,000,000 emergency defense program proposed by President Roosevelt last January.

Russia Threatens to Walk Out If Anglo-French Alliance Fails to transform the anti-Communist pact into an outright armed alliance.

British

[Well-informed circles asserted Japan had notified Britain and France it would not enter a full military alliance with Germany and Italy if the Anglo-French entente refrains from guaranteeing Russia's Far Eastern territories, International News Service reported.—Editor's Note.]

The Soviet situation will be studied by the cabinet Wednesday, when the subject of the Anglo-French guarantees to Poland, as announced today, probably will be examined again.

The announcement of new assurances to Poland was made after opposition leaders in the House of Commons cast suspicion upon the "sincerity" of Prime Minister Chamberlain's efforts to line up Europe's nations in an armed anti-aggression front.

It was revealed officially that the British ambassador in Warsaw, Sir Howard Kennard, had discussed Hitler's Friday Reichstag speech with Polish Foreign Minister Beck and stressed to him that Britain stands ready to aid "to the fullest extent of our resources" if Poland is forced to fight.

A similar reaffirmation of the Anglo-French guarantee of armed aid was said to have been conveyed to Warsaw by the French government.

French Check Nazi Fleet

Gibraltar, May 1 (U.P.).—The French government today ordered the two 26,000-ton battleships, the Strasbourg and the Dunkerque, to Portuguese waters to precede the German squadron to Lisbon. The French warships, the fastest and most powerful super-cruisers afloat, will arrive there Wednesday and the following Saturday.

Most of the German vessels were concentrated off Gibraltar today.

The Dunkerque and the Strasbourg easily dwarf Germany's 10,000-ton Deutschland, leading the Nazi squadron on spring maneuvers.

Poles Demand Protectorate Over Danzig

tection Danzig exists as a free city, to transfer certain rights to Poland. Danzig already is within the Polish customs system.

It was announced today that Gen. Stasys Rastikas, chief of the Lithuanian army, would arrive in Warsaw next week as guest of the head of the Polish army, Marshal Smighly-Rydz. He will also confer with President Moscicki and Beck.

Poles Shout "Roosevelt"

Warsaw, May 1 (U.P.).—French diplomats reported today Poland had informed Paris that thousands of military reservists were called to the colors over the week-end after Hitler's menacing speech and his formal repudiation of the 1934 Polish-German pact of friendship and non-aggression.

Extensive troop movements were reported along the German frontier and in the vicinity of Danzig, supposedly to counter German army activities, but the government sought to emphasize that all Polish troop movements were being held at a minimum and were only "precautionary" in view of the previous German concentrations.

May Day celebrations were marked by bitter anti-German feeling.

"Up Roosevelt, guardian of peace!" shouted demonstrators in the streets.

Speakers at rallies demanded a strong anti-Nazi front and praised the stand of the United States, Great Britain and France against Nazi-Fascist aggression.

Danzig Nazis Thank Hitler

Danzig, May 1 (AP).—Albert Forster, leader of Danzig Nazis, sent the following telegram to Reichsfuehrer Hitler in the name of Danzig workers today:

"We thank you, my Fuehrer, from brimming hearts for the words you expressed to the Germans of Danzig at your last Reichstag address. Heil, our Fuehrer!"

Hitler in his Reichstag address demanded the return of the Free City to Germany.

U. S. Shipping Line Apologizes to Italy

Rome, May 1 (AP).—The agent of the American President Line at Genoa was disclosed today to have apologized to Italian authorities for an incident when the liner President Garfield sailed from that port last Tuesday.

Two members of the President Garfield's crew were in the ship's brig when she reached Marseille, France, last Wednesday. They were accused of shouting "down with Mussolini!" and of provoking an unfriendly exchange with Italians.

Polish Envoy Defies Hitler, Forecasts Counter-Demands

Potocki Says Situation Doesn't Necessarily Mean War Is Coming

By International News Service.

New York, May 1.—Defiance of Reichsfuehrer Hitler was voiced today by Polish Ambassador Count Jerzy Potocki, who said his statement was authorized by his government. The Ambassador declared:

"Poland at the present moment not only is unwilling to yield to the demands on her rights in Danzig, but will state her counter-demands in order to safeguard her rights. These counter-demands will be stated by the foreign minister, Col. Joseph Beck, before Parliament on Friday, May 5."

The Ambassador stressed his belief that although German demands were to be turned down and counter-demands made, this situation did not forecast war

"No sudden thrusts are expected," he said. "Complete calm prevails in Poland."

He denied a statement in Hitler's speech before the Reichstag last Friday that Hitler had offered to guarantee the territorial integrity of Poland for 25 years in exchange for return of Danzig to Germany and a road across the Corridor.

"It is true," he said, "that Poland was approached by the German government with a request that Danzig be passed over to German sovereignty.

"Danzig is a predominantly German city. Because of this fact and in a desire to satisfy the equitable aspirations of the German people throughout the last five years Poland agreed to the gradual elimination of any outside control of the city, with the result that from a cultural and national point of view Danzig is today as German and as National Socialist as any other German city.

"Poland has certain rights in the city of Danzig which do not in any way conflict with the national and cultural aspirations of its German inhabitants. They are economic rights which have been the source of great and practically the only revenue of the free city. Poland intends to maintain these rights, mindful of Frederick the Great's statement that 'whoever controls the city of Danzig will be more of a master of Poland than her own government.'"

Rumania to Resist Bulgarian Claims

Bucharest, May 1 (AP).—Premier Calinescu declared today Rumania intended to "oppose vigorously" any territorial revisionist claims made upon her.

His statement was considered to be the official reply to recent reports that Bulgaria's claims against Rumania were being considered.

Mexico City, May 1 (AP).—The offices of the German Electric Co. were stoned and the Nazi flag torn down today by participants in a May Day parade of 60,000 Mexican workers.

Bulgarian Police Quell Red Rioters

Sofia, May 1 (AP).—May Day celebrations by the government-sponsored Workers' Alliance today resulted in a score of battered heads and numerous arrests when the police tried to enforce a last-minute edict against singing.

At a mass meeting in the city Casino, workers chanted a Bulgarian revolutionary song until 300 police intervened with nightsticks. Authorities blamed Communist provocateurs for the disturbance.

Soviet Parades 50,000 Men, 600 Warplanes

1,000,000 Civilians March as Army Head Says 'We Love to Fight'

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, May 1.—Soviet Russia paraded her military might across Red Square today and Defense Commissar Klementi E. Voroshiloff told the world that "we not only know how to fight—we love to fight!"

In celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of May Day (international "Labor Day") nearly 50,000 soldiers and more than 1,000,000 civilians marched past the tomb of Lenin with 600 warplanes roaring overhead.

"Whoever dares to step across the threshold of our home will be destroyed," Voroshiloff said in his address.

Observers were impressed by the number of bombers—360 of the 600 warplanes which flew past the tomb of Lenin, on which Joseph Stalin was reported to be standing. Military men, however, noticed particularly a new type of antiaircraft gun mount which never had been shown here before.

In addition to his speech at Red Square Voroshiloff issued an order of the day in which he said:

"The whole war machine of capitalist countries is running at full speed: militarization of industry, speedy mobilizations, feverish movement of troops, millions of men under arms, masses dragged toward the abyss of bloody turmoil and ruin.

"The unbridled Fascist military aggressors, intoxicated with easy victory, do not hesitate to threaten weak and frightened countries.

"Only the Soviet Union is watching calmly what goes on beyond its borders. . . . If the enemy dares to lift its armed hand against our peace-loving people he will be ruthlessly destroyed on his own territory."

Soviet Russia's new navy commissar, Nikolai Kuznetsoff, issued an order asserting:

"The Soviet Union is building a big sea and ocean fleet . . . In order to be ready at any minute, with the Red Army, to fall upon the head of an enemy which plots against the inviolability of Soviet borders."

60,000 Flee As Quake Rocks Japan Province

Tokyo (Tuesday), May 2 (AP).—The home ministry received reports today that at least 19 persons were killed and 1,006 homes demolished in a series of earthquake shocks in Akita prefecture described as the most severe in 25 years.

Scores of persons still were listed as missing. The shocks, which occurred yesterday, sent 60,000 terror-stricken residents fleeing for open spaces.

Parts of the peninsula and southern coastline of Akita prefecture were reported to have sunk beneath the sea.

Shocks at San Diego

San Diego, Calif., May 1 (AP).—The fifth in a series of light earthquake shocks rattled windows, swayed ceiling lamps and rocked downtown buildings at 3:50 p. m. (6:50 p. m. E. S. T.) today. No damage was reported.

Roper to Preside At Peace Session

Daniel C. Roper, Minister-designate to Canada, will preside at a meeting at 4:45 p. m. tomorrow at the Sylvan Theater, which will climax national events that have marked "Peace and Security Week."

The meeting, to be broadcast by the National Broadcasting Co., will be addressed also by Senator Minton, of Indiana; Henry I. Harriman, past president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Henry F. Grady, of California and the District of Columbia, vice chairman of the honorary national committee sponsoring the event.

British Housing Expert To Speak Here Tonight

Rumania War Debt Proposal Seen as Feeler

Hull Hints Revival Of Negotiations With All Defaulter Nations

Secretary of State Hull yesterday hinted the Administration will ask Congress to revive the War Debt Funding Commission if Rumania offers a satisfactory settlement of its defaulted debt.

Several diplomats expressed belief the commission's revival might provoke a stampede by Great Britain, France and other World War Allies to "settle up," thus re-establishing the lines of American credit they consider vital to successful waging of another European war.

Officials said the State Department expects Rumania will present a formal refunding offer on Friday or Saturday. The Rumanian debt is $63,852,000.

One diplomat said appearances indicated France and Britain inspired Rumania to advance a proposal at this time. The reception it receives, he pointed out, will provide the French and British a clew to the treatment they, themselves, might expect to get.

Rumania's terms remained undisclosed here, although American Minister Franklin Mott Gunther at Bucharest was understood to have collaborated with fiscal officers of King Carol's government in drafting a proposal least likely to be turned down.

The defaulters can get no loans, other than short-term commercial credits, unless the Johnson Act be repealed or they purge themselves of default.

Attlee Urges British, French, Soviet Pact

Dictator Powers Could Be Crushed, Says Labor Leader

By Maj. C. R. Attlee,
Labor Party Leader in the House of Commons.
(By Wireless and Special Wire.)

London, May 1.—It has long been the view of many thoughtful and well-informed people in Great Britain and on the continent that the prevention of aggression, the maintenance of the rule of law and the preservation of peace in Europe can be secured only by a firm alliance of the peace-loving states and that the nuclei of any alliance must be the three great powers, Great Britain, France and Soviet Russia.

Labor spokesmen have unceasingly sought to persuade the present British government and its predecessors of the necessity of such a combination, but without result until now.

The complete absorption of Czecho-Slovakia and Albania has effected what years of argument could not do. Slowly and hesitatingly the British government and their supporters have been obliged by the stern facts of the situation to lay aside their prejudices.

Excuse for Distrust

Consider the reasons which have made any approach to Soviet Russia by a British government, predominantly conservative, so unattractive. The activities of international communism and the Soviet official attitude of hostility to all capitalistic governments in the earlier years provided an excuse for distrust.

It has been the rise of the aggressive Fascist movements on the continent which has brought the two countries nearer together. Intelligent conservatives like Winston Churchill realized the need for joint action against a common enemy while the government of Soviet Russia ceased to regard all capitalist states as equally evil and pronounced in favor of democracies against dictatorships.

Two factors were important in changing the opinion of ordinary people. The exemplary fulfillment by Soviet Russia of all its contracts made a favorable impression on many businessmen while the steady support to the cause of peace, disarmament and the principles of the League of Nations by Soviet Russia had a great effect on the millions in Great Britain who are devoted to the League.

Interests Are Same

It is obvious that the interests of Great Britain and the Soviet are the same. Both are unaggressive and desire the maintenance of peace. Both are Asiatic as well as European powers. At no point is there any clash of interest while they have common enemies in the East and the West.

In Europe the long-established doctrine of the balance of power would of itself be a strong argument for British-Russian alliance, but it is reinforced by other considerations. Fascist ideas are hostile not only to the principles of communism but also to democracy and liberty. Whatever may be the shortcomings of Soviet Russia, it is an attempt to establish social justice and is inspired by the ideal of uplifting the working class. Whatever the defects of capitalist society in Great Britain the people are firmly attached to the ideas of freedom and democracy. The people of both countries know that Hitlerism is an attack on all that they hold dear.

In the Far East, Japanese aggression threatens the interests of Soviet Russia in common with those of Great Britain and all other nations which are opposed to seeing the great subcontinent of China made the preserve of the Japanese.

Premier's Dream Shattered

Neville Chamberlain's attempt to make peace on the basis of trust in the promises of the two dictators has been rudely shattered. He has been obliged to open a new chapter in British foreign policy by guaranteeing the frontiers of three eastern European states, Poland, Rumania and Greece. It is ironical, but true, that in doing so he has also guaranteed almost the whole western frontier of Soviet Russia.

No one is sure in what direction Hitler and his ally may strike. The only thing certain is that a successful blow in the east will be followed by one in the west, and vice versa. A union of the east and west is therefore desirable to both parties.

But perhaps the overmastering reason for such an alliance lies in its power to prevent war. The potential resources of Great Britain, France and Soviet Russia, to say nothing of other powers which might join the combination, are enormously superior to those of Germany and Italy, even if Japan and other states within the sphere of the axis poles are added.

Germany has cause to remember the danger of war on two fronts. It is to be hoped that neither Mussolini nor Hitler would be prepared to plunge into war against such heavy odds.

Favors World Parley

The Labor Party in Great Britain has constantly urged an international conference such as has now been proposed by President Roosevelt but has, like him, demanded that those who came to the conference should lay aside aggression.

British Draft To Put Million Under Arms

Cabinet May Exempt Ulster Temporarily to Placate De Valera

By International News Service.

London, May 1.—Great Britain's first peacetime military conscription law was made public tonight, unveiling the machinery by which the British army will be rapidly enlarged to virtual wartime dimensions.

Introduced in Commons with the conscription bill was a measure empowering the King to call the reservists to the colors without proclaiming a national emergency.

Prime Minister Chamberlain introduced the compulsory military service bill, providing for the drafting of some 200,000 20-year-old youths, and the measure passed the first of the required three readings.

Publication of the bill tonight revealed that the cabinet, in the face of a strong protest by Eire Prime Minister De Valera, incorporated provisions covering Ulster (Northern Ireland) and did not exclude from its clauses Eire citizens living and working in England, Scotland and Wales. It was understood, however, the cabinet agreed not to apply the Ulster provisions until and unless war is deemed to be immediate.

Penalties for Employers

The bill provides heavy penalties for employers who fail to reinstate drafted employes after they have served their required six months in the army, and sets forth the powers under which the government can acquire land and buildings to be used in the training of conscripts.

A compulsory register for the listing of all men between their twentieth and twenty-first birthdays, together with all essential data concerning them is established. Failure to register will incur drastic punishment.

It was expected 50,000 of the approximately 200,000 men affected by the conscription bill would be called as soon as Parliament passes the measure. The remainder will be called up in batches during the next 12 months.

Million Defenders Assured

Admiral Baron Chatfield, minister for co-ordination of defense, said that with her plans for conscription Britain would have well over 1,000,000 men for empire defense without calling on reserves or civilian defense services.

The bill providing that the King "at his pleasure" can call up reservists and members of the auxiliary services empowers His Majesty to issue such call through orders of the privy council quickly and quietly and without any declaration asserting that the state is in danger. The previous law required the King to publish proclamations pointing out a national danger.

The effect of this measure will be to give Britain the same shield of secrecy that enables such countries as Germany and Italy to mobilize their armies for surprise actions without giving their hand away to the rest of the world.

Italians Shift Records From French Colony

Djibouti, French Somaliland, May 1 (AP).—The Italian Consulate today was reported to have sent its records from this French East African possession to Addis Ababa, capital of Italian Ethiopia. It was considered possible that Italians might have decided to remove the records because of the situation created by Fascist Clamor for French Somaliland.

30-Day Cash-Carry Renewal Weighed by Nye and Pittman

Proposal Would Extend Provisions Which Expired at Midnight to Give Congress Time to Frame New Neutrality Act

By the Associated Press.

Factional leaders in the controversy over neutrality legislation conferred yesterday on a proposal to re-enact for 30 or 60 days the "cash-and-carry" provision of the present law, which expired last midnight.

The idea behind the proposal to re-enact it was that it would cover eventualities in the European situation until Congress enacted permanent legislation.

However, the negotiations, which principally involved Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, and Chairman Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, demonstrated, Nye said, that although all factions apparently were ready to vote for such an extension, none was willing to take the initiative by introducing the necessary legislation.

Soviet-Nazi Deal Feared

(The "cash and carry" clause empowers the President, at his discretion, to require belligerents to pay cash and furnish their own transportation if they desire to buy American supplies of certain materials which are not classed as implements of war but which are useful in war-time. Under other provisions which did not expire last night, shipments of implements of war to warring nations are prohibited.)

Earlier in the day, Philip Marshall Brown, representing the American peace society, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that an "arrangement" between Russia, Germany and Japan was "perhaps an immidiate possibility."

He declared such a lineup would result from an agreement between Russia and Germany, which he said is the aim of Russia's present "power politics," and from the existing alliance between Japan and Germany.

"This may, if we become too antagonistic to these latter two countries, put us way out on a limb internationally," Brown said.

Neutrality Repeal Urged

The only course for this country to pursue, Brown contended, is to adopt and stick to a policy of "real neutrality."

Brown said that he favored repeal of the present neutrality legislation so the President and State Department would have a free hand in conducting international affairs.

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, in commenting to reporters on general foreign policy, said that in event of a war "we are in the war from the very time that we begin to furnish arms and armaments." The Senator declared America should "have nothing to do with furnishing arms to Great Britain or any other nation."

Declaring that President Roosevelt could accomplish little by a reply to Adolf Hitler, Senators George (Democrat), Georgia, and Nye (Republican), North Dakota, suggested that Great Britain take up negotiations for European peace within the framework of Hitler's Reichstag speech.

Contrary to the opinion held by George and Nye, some legislators believe Mr. Roosevelt may discuss Hitler's address in a "fireside chat" to the Nation.

Nicaragua Sees U. S. as Friend, Somoza Says

Germany Makes No Economic Penetration, Visiting Chief Asserts

By the Associated Press.

New Orleans, May 1.—President Somoza of Nicaragua, landing here today en route to keep a date at the White House with President Roosevelt, brought word of friendlier Latin-American feeling toward the Monroe Doctrine.

He expressed confidence Nicaragua never would be colonized from Europe, linking this prediction with the rise of power politics abroad and extinction of small, weak states.

In later references to Germany he said that despite barter methods that country had made no economic penetration in Nicaragua which buys most of its imports from the United States.

"All I want to say publicly about the European situation is that we are solidly behind President Roosevelt and his policies. Our destiny is hooked to the United States and we will continue free so long as the United States continues free and powerful. We have no fear of becoming a colony but we must all stick together."

Turning to the subject of the projected Nicaraguan Canal, he said it would greatly bolster the defense of the United States and American continents.

The United States now holds a lease on the canal route, and has made frequent surveys there, but has withheld construction because of the cost and estimates that the Panama Canal can handle the present traffic for many years to come.

Dr. Seysz-Inquart In German Cabinet

Berlin, May 1 (AP).—Dr. Arthur Seysz-Inquart, who has been governor of Austria, today was appointed by Reichsfuehrer Hitler to be minister without portfolio.

Simultaneously Konrad Henlein, who has been Reich commissioner of the Sudetenland, was named governor of Sudetenland.

Seysz-Inquart served briefly as chancellor of the Austrian Republic just prior to its absorption by Germany. Henlein was the Nazi leader of the Sudetenland before it was annexed by Germany from the old Czecho-Slovakia.

French Warn Of Peril of Nazi U-Boats

Say Hitler Secretly Builds Submarines As Ocean Raiders

By the United Press.

Paris, May 1.—French naval experts warned tonight that Germany probably will attempt to obtain submarine mastery of the seas such as she held during the World War as a result of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's denunciation of the 1935 naval treaty with Great Britain.

These experts said they believed Hitler's repudiation of the pact, instead of being motivated by his anger over Britain's resort to peacetime conscription, was necessary to hide the fact that German naval construction already has far exceeded the tonnage allowed under the 1935 pact.

Hitler, in his note to Britain Friday denouncing the pact, also denounces a 1937 agreement with Britain whereby Germany agreed to exchange information regarding naval construction with the British.

Uses Escape Clause

The 1935 Anglo-German treaty limited German naval tonnage to 35 per cent of Britain's except in the submarine category, in which Hitler was allowed 45 per cent.

Recently, however, Hitler took advantage of an escape clause and informed Britain that he intended to build a submarine fleet equal to Britain's.

French experts believe Hitler will sacrifice all other types of naval building and will concentrate on submarines in a race against Britain's construction of destroyers.

Build Larger Boats

Hitler's submarine building began in 1935. It was announced only small submarines of three categories—250-ton coastal craft, 517-ton and 712-ton seagoing submarines of which Germany now claims to have 61 built, were under construction.

The French insist, however, that they possess information showing that Germany also has built larger ocean-going raiders of 1,000 to 1,200 tons, similar to the famous World War German U-boats which created havoc with Allied shipping, sinking a total of 6,000 ships of all categories.

Would Modify Treaty

London, May 1.—Drastic modification of the tripartite London naval treaty of 1936 is now desired by British naval circles as a result of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's denunciation of the Anglo-German naval agreement of 1935.

In face of this action, it is asserted here, none of the three powers signatory to the 1936 pact—Great Britain, the United States and France—can have any interest in maintaining in force certain features of that accord.

Special reference is made to the treaty's provision for a holiday until 1942 in construction of cruisers carrying 8-inch guns.

The Reich already has laid down five units in this category and the British admiralty believes additional units are projected.

Rumania, Deaf to Axis Pleas, Decides to Remain Neutral

Bucharest Foreign Minister Makes Policy Known in Rome After Tour Of European Capitals

By the United Press.

Rome, May 1.—Rumania's Foreign Minister Gafencu tonight was reported to have rejected the combined efforts of Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini to draw Rumania solidly into the orbit of the Rome-Berlin axis.

During the day Mussolini and Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano exerted their best efforts to convince Gafencu that Rumania, despite the military pledges she has obtained from Britain and France, is so situated geographically that she cannot rely on the aid of the western powers.

Adopts Neutral Stand

Persons close to Gafencu's official party asserted that, despite all the persuasive arguments, the foreign minister maintained a "benevolent attitude of neutrality."

He was believed to have told Mussolini and Ciano that the Anglo-French pledges do not mean that Rumania is aligning herself against the dictatorships and that she relies, first of all, on her own strength to protect her independence and integrity.

Thus, it appeared that Gafencu had given Mussolini the same answer he gave Hitler ten days ago in Berlin.

From Berlin he went to London and Paris, where efforts were made to obtain Rumania's complete adherence to the Anglo-French "peace front" and persuade her to accept Soviet aid in event of aggression. Rumania, like Poland, is reluctant to permit Red Army troops on her soil.

From Rome he will return home after stopping off in Belgrade.

Italian officials described the Mussolini-Gafencu conversations as "lengthy and cordial" but refrained from dropping any hint as to the success or failure of Il Duce's efforts.

Study Strategy Plan

Rome, May 1 (AP).—Italian and German military chieftains studied a joint plan of strategy today which the authoritative Editor Virginio Gayda said was designed for "common defense against a common offensive threat."

The conferees were Col.-Gen. Walter von Brauchitsch, chief of staff of the German army, and Gen. Alberto Pariani, chief of staff of the Italian army and undersecretary for war.

They left Rome for Libya but by nightfall had arrived only as far as Sicily. The plane in which they were flying to Tripoli was forced down at Catania by severe sandstorms sweeping up from the African desert.

A Fascist spokesman insisted the Italian-German military talks, which began during the week-end, were rendered necessary by "the offensive plans of Britain and France."

Japanese Raps U.S. 'Interference'

Tokyo, May 1 (AP).—Taisuo Kawai, a Japanese foreign office official, sharply criticized what he called the American-British policy of "interference" in world affairs at a dinner today honoring a German newspaper mission now in Japan.

3 Nazis Ordered Out of Britain

London, May 1 (AP).—Three German Nazi agents were ordered to leave England by the home office today. They were identified as O. G. Karlowa, Nazi party organizer in Britain; E. P. Himmelman, Karlowa's chief lieutenant, and Anna Johanna Wolf, connected with the German Labor Front.

2d Merger Bill Held, Pending Vote on First

House Democrats Plan Defeat Tomorrow of Taber Resolution

Moving for speedy House approval of the President's "Reorganization Plan No. 1." Democratic leaders yesterday tentatively scheduled a House vote tomorrow on the Taber resolution to block the mergers.

House action was contingent on an expected adverse report today by the House Reorganization Committee on the move by Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, to place both Houses on record against the plan.

Next Plan to Await Vote

If the House as is expected, disapproves of the resolution, that action would be tantamount to clinching approval of Plan "No. 1." A Senate vote is unneeded, and the orders would become law after expiration of the required 60 days.

Meantime, the President was expected to delay submission of additional reorganization orders on interdepartmental and intra-departmental shifts until after House action on the first plan merging works, welfare and lending agencies under three new independent units and centralizing Budget Bureau functions under the White House.

Chairman John J. Cochran of the House Reorganization Committee, and Representative Warren (Democrat), of North Carolina, co-author of the reorganization act, arranged for swift action last week after Taber introduced his resolution.

Would Forestall Lobbies

They were powerless to act affirmatively or negatively until such a resolution was introduced. Rather than wait for a House motion to discharge them from consideration of the resolution, they decided to strike at once, before possible organization of lobby opposition to the mergers.

Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, a member of the committee, predicted a solid vote of committee Democrats against the Taber motion, assuring an adverse report. Majority Leader Rayburn said that if the committee reports the resolution adversely, it will be called up in the House tomorrow for final action.

Ickes' Warning

Secretary Ickes' warning against lobbying activities by his employes was seen yesterday as a veiled admonition to his Cabinet colleagues, and especially to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, to "go thou and do likewise."

Ickes warned employes that they would be "disciplined" if they were found working against President Roosevelt's reorganization plan, which provides, among other things, for the transfer of the Public Works Administration from Ickes' purview to a new Federal works agency.

Other reorganization plans under consideration, however, are believed to provide for the transfer of the Forest Service from the Agriculture to the Interior Department, a long-cherished dream of Ickes. His anger was scarcely concealed at alleged lobbying activities of Forest Service employes last year, believed to have been a vital factor in defeating the reorganization bill which would have permitted such a transfer then.

Agriculture officials, however, indicated that no similar warning was planned for employes of that department and that if there was an innuendo in Ickes' commands, they declined to recognize it. They pointed out that Agriculture workers are under standing orders, repeatedly circulated, against lobbying.

Agriculture regulation 1542, they noted, classes as misconduct "soliciting political support for any party, faction, candidate or measure."

Ickes' threat of "discipline" was not detailed but was generally interpreted yesterday by employes as meaning dismissal.

"Discipline" Only Threatened

In a confidential memorandum to PWA employes, Ickes said, "Employes of the Public Works Administration are without authority in any circumstances, to seek to oppose this (reorganization) plan, regardless of any changes which it may mean for PWA. Any employe of the PWA who is found to be working in opposition to this plan, or encouraging others in opposition, will be subject to disciplinary action."

Interior officials said that there had been indications of dissatisfaction among many employes who feared that the plan would mean centralization and mass demobilization in the field.

A similar warning was expected to be forthcoming to workers in the Office of Education, the U. S. Housing Authority and the public buildings branch of the National Park Service, all now under Ickes' administration but scheduled for transfer under the reorganization order.

Alluding apparently to the Starnes-Mead bill to establish PWA permanently, Ickes said the reorganization plan "does not curtail the life of PWA," and indicated that it did not bar legislation making the organization permanent.

"There are several proposals now before Congress" the memorandum read, "which would extend the PWA program and provide it with operating funds. Proper legislation would, in effect, implement the President's first plan of reorganization. If approved this legislation would make the President's plan fully effective insofar as the PWA is concerned."

Ickes has directed the PWA since its creation in 1933.

kins, who was to address the opening session on "What the Federal Government Can Do to Help," will be unable to appear because of illness. S. Clay Williams, chairman of the board of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C., and a member of the Commerce Department business advisory council, will take Hopkins' place, speaking on another topic.

Six business leaders, speaking for different sections of the country and representing various lines of business, told a meeting yesterday of the chamber's national councilors that business is due for an upswing and would go forward except for retarding factors. The councilors represent the 1,600 member organizations of the chamber.

Business is being held back, the speakers insisted, by a combination of factors, including shrinkage and disappearance of profits caused by back-breaking taxation, and uncertainty and lack of confidence resulting from "war jitters," mounting Government debt and Administration policy.

Among businessmen present sentiment was strong for concentrating on domestic problems and forgetting about Europe's troubles. War threats were cited by several as the chief deterrent to business advance.

Aside from this, however, it appeared that the main themes of discussion would be taxation, the high cost of Government and the steadily rising debt. The trend of sentiment was expressed in a poster prepared by Nation's Business, picturing an infant, which was admonished to "Get Busy," since it already owed $432.65.

Watson, president of the International Business Machines Corporation, New York, declared "no one could foretell what kind of a civilization would follow" a war.

"The International Chamber of Commerce," he said, "is working for world peace through world trade. We believe that with the proper flow of goods and services both ways across borders there will be no soldiers marching across those borders."

"From our research work," he declared, "we are convinced that, in order to bring about sound trade relations between nations, it is necessary to work out international stabilization of currencies that will be fair to all countries.

"We believe there must be an understanding as to reduction and limitation of armaments so that a major percentage of the national incomes of the leading countries can be directed into constructive enterprises."

Other needs, he declared, are a "fair adjustment of trade barriers so that surpluses in one country can be made available to people in other countries," and better distribution throughout the world of raw materials, food and clothing.

New World Order Seen

Sir Wilmott Lewis, Washington correspondent for the London Times, questioned whether a new order was steadily and logically coming into existence "beneath the surface turbulence of today." The present world, he declared, is "the triumphant witness that society went on" despite the surface turbulence that attended the decline and fall of the Roman Empire.

J. Stanley McLean, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, declared the idea of class war was "the great penalty" inherited by society from the struggle between capital and labor. "The next great advance in industry," he declared, "will consist in getting rid of it."

He declared that the businessman's "first obligation is to his employes," adding: "They are entitled to the scale of wages current in their field." His next obligation, he said, is to build up reserves to keep the business going, thus fortifying his business to make jobs safe. Shareholders, he said, are entitled to a certain percentage of profits realized after these obligations are met, but above this percentage profits sould be divided between shareholders and employes.

Eliot Wadsworth, Boston, chairman of the American committee of the International Chamber of Commerce, presided at the banquet.

John W. O'Leary, chairman of the chamber's executive committee, outlined in a keynote address at the meeting of national councillors a five-point program for building the national income up to the goal of $80,000,000,000 a year, set by President Roosevelt.

The only previous occasion that the national income soared that high, he recalled, was 1929. It was attained, he said, in a period of "reduction of taxation, a reduction of Government debt, a balanced budget a free flow of capital, continuing better labor relations between employer and employe without interference from the Federal Government, an assured value of the dollar, and incentives of reward."

5-Point Program Outlined

His program consisted of removing uncertainties laid to Government controls "beyond those needed to correct abuses," drastic revision of the Wagner Labor Act, repeal of the undistributed profits tax, sharp reduction in Government outlays, and modification of the securities act in an effort to stimulate flow of capital.

Harry C. Carbaugh, vice president of the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Chamber of Commerce, was one of the six businessmen reporting on conditions in various parts of the country.

"We need a better psychology about the Supreme Court," he declared. "Businessmen feel that it is stacked against them, that all New Deal legislation will be declared constitutional and that a liberal interpretation of the Constitution will tend to hamper the American system of free men and free enterprise."

Need of such improved psychology was one feature of a six-point program recommended by Carbaugh, who said he spoke for small businessmen. Others were revision of the Wagner act, revision of the wage and hour act to provide for regional differentials, changes in laws to permit larger profits, reduction of the social security old-age reserve, and a temporary national retail sales tax to balance the budget.

O'Malley, indicted with Pendergast on income tax evasion charges growing out of settlement of a $10,000,000 fire insurance rate case, pleaded not guilty and his trial likewise was set for June 12.

Among the indicted narcotics suspects arraigned was Angelo Donnici, 64, operator of a saloon in the same block with the temporary Federal building. Government attorneys charge he headed the ring which obtained its supplies from a Japanese-controlled district in China.

James L. Abbott, 440-pound illicit drug dealer, pleaded guilty, was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $5,000.

Hoover Urges More Research To Create Jobs

Chicago, May 1 (AP).—Herbert Hoover advocated increased research in pure science tonight to offset technological unemployment.

"Daily," he told Northern University Alumni, "We develop labor-saving devices. At once men are thrown out of jobs. That partially corrects itself because products are made more cheaply, consequently more are consumed and more men are employed. Nevertheless we have a constant stream of tecnological unemployment.

"There was never in history a more glorious frontier to youth than today. Adventure and opportunity beckon in every avenue of science," he added.

Roper Named U. S. Minister To Canada

Roper

opened five fairs, including the San Francisco and the Cleveland and Texas expositions.

"These missions have become something of a habit with me," he remarked, also observing that, in a sense, he would be a representative of the District at the royal arrival inasmuch as he was nominated from here.

Surprises the Capital

The nomination which pushed Roper back into public life a little more than four months after his resignation as Commerce Secretary, took the Capital by surprise. The Canadian post has been vacant since the transfer of the former minister, Norman Armour, as ambassador to Chile in January of 1938, but the former South Carolina legislator was supposed to be in political disfavor.

Routine Senate confirmation is expected. Official quarters were hoping it would be immediate in order that the United States may have diplomatic representation in Canada when the King and Queen arrive early this month.

A favorable response to the selection was immediately forthcoming from both sides of the Capitol. Senator Pittman (Democrat), of Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which will consider the nomination, said he was "very pleased" and that Roper "will have no trouble here."

Senators Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, and George (Democrat), of Georgia, both committeemen, joined in the appproval.

House leaders of both parties were equally pleased. For the majority, those included Representative Rayburn, floor leader, who said he though Roper a "good man," and Representative Bloom, acting House Foreign Affairs Committee chairman, who said the appointment was "one of the best that could be thought of at this time."

Eaton Praises "Uncle Dan"

Representative Eaton, of New Jersey, ranking Republican on the committee, called Roper "a gentleman of the old school," and added:

"I hate to admit this about a Democrat, but that is what I think about Uncle Dan."

Roper, until his resignation from the Cabinet last December, had been in public life for more than half a century. For the greater part of that time, Roper, now gray and solemn visaged, had been one of democracy's leading political weight lifters.

Starting modestly as a clerk of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, Roper had been a member of the party's inner council since the turn of the century. Intimate of William Jennings Bryan, Woodrow Wilson and former Senator William G. McAdoo, he was instrumental in the vote switch at the 1932 convention that gave the nomination to Roosevelt.

As a Cabinet member, however, he soon began to lose caste as a moulder of party policy. His economy and social conscience were labeled "reactionary," and the "left wing" New Deal faction was generally credited with forcing his retirement.

Relegation to political obscurity was a severe blow for Roper. Yesterday's appointment was generally regarded as a move to assuage any hurt feelings that might have been caused.

As a minister, Roper will receive in salary and allowances about $12,000 a year. Diplomats estimate annual cost of operation at the post at $25,000.

istration may result in industrial strife and conflict.

In a full day of testimony before the committee, Green failed to complete a 38-page prepared statement and will return today to conclude and face questioning. He will be followed by Joseph A. Padway, counsel for the A. F. L.

Red of face and shouting when he referred to federation complaints, Green stood through his entire testimony, occasionally pounding a table for emphasis. As he proceeded, he was closely queried by Chairman Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, and Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, on his protests and the scope of his proposed amendments.

Blames C. I. O. "Propaganda"

Ellender wanted to know if some A. F. L. units had not opposed the Green amendments. Green granted that some had, but charged that in such instances they were "influenced by C. I. O. propaganda" and declared all federation groups were represented at the A. F. L. convention which approved the amendments.

The charge Saturday by John L. Lewis that the federation was aided by the National Association of Manufacturers and other business groups in preparing the amendments was never directly alluded to, but Green recited details of their preparation and the federation's resolutions committee report recommending the changes. He previously had flatly denied Lewis' charges. The C. I. O. leader may follow A. F. L. witnesses before the committee.

Green Traces "Bias"

At the House end of the Capitol, Chairman Mary Norton, of the House Labor Committee, meanwhile arranged to open parallel hearings on the labor act Thursday.

Contending the Labor Board's decisions "are not fair," Green told the committee the board's approach was "unjudicial and that its administration was biased."

"We say that when the division in the labor movement came about the board revised its rules and decrees to give support to unions of our rivals, to our great injury."

He traced the board's alleged pro-C. I. O. "bias" from the split in the labor movement, when he declared "definite partiality" was manifest in dissenting opinions by Edwin Smith, board member. Later, he declared, Edwin Smith was "joined" by Donald Wakefield Smith (whose term has expired), to form what he called a "hostle" board majority against A. F. of L. craft unionism.

"Globe Doctrine" Assailed

Green particularly assailed the board's so-called "Globe doctrine," which, he said, "allows that board to make loud protestations of its democratic methods, but still permits the board to retain complete power to decide unit questions without any consideration of the desire of the men themselves."

"That is the device of a dictator," he said—"to formulate a liberal grant, but to reserve to himself the power to grant it."

Green outlined the AFL's proposed amendments—to restrict the board's power to invalidate collective bargaining contracts, to permit employers to "express opinions" to workers, to define a company union specifically, to limit the power of the board to determine the type of bargaining unit, to permit employers as well as workers to petition for an election, and others.

Veterans' Union Backs Hiring Men Over 40

President Roosevelt's dedication of the present week to efforts to stimulate employment of workers over 40 years of age last night was indorsed by John J. Crim, legislative chairman of the Army and Navy Union.

The union recognizes, Crim said, that the "inevitable alternative" to private employment for war veterans, whose average age is 46, would be Government "jobs or pensions for all employable veterans."

DO 2 Things for DRY SKIN

Dry skin may be caused by a shortage of Vitamin A in the diet. Or it may be due to a need for better "lubrication" of the skin.

Your body needs at least 8,000 U. S. P. units of Vitamin A daily. We supply RITAMINE capsules containing 10,000 U. S. P. units of Vitamin A, together with FIVE other vitamins and TEN essential minerals. We also supply an excellent dry skin cream made with soybean oil and other vegetable oils. It is called NYCE because it is so nice to the skin.

This week $1 box RITAMINE and $1 jar NYCE, both for $1.55. The Vita Health Food Co., 619 12th St. N.W. and 3040 14th St. N.W. Mail and phone orders filled. COlumbia 2980.—Adv.

Delinquent D. C.

In these days of interstate co-operation in many fields it is ironical that the District of Columbia should be harassed by numbers racketeers operating from nearby counties. Through interstate conferences and the enactment of uniform laws many States have worked out problems far more complicated than this shuffling of law violators back and forth across the District line. Why hasn't co-operation been attained in this case?

Commissioner Hazen made a good start when he called a conference of law-enforcement officers of the District, of Montgomery and Prince Georges counties, Maryland, Arlington and Fairfax counties and Alexandria, Va., about five months ago. Out of this gathering came the conclusions that the District ought to have a hot-pursuit statute to match those of Maryland and Virginia and that there should be systematic discussion of common problems by the law enforcement officers of these jurisdictions. Since then, however, nothing appears to have been done.

If a felony has been committed officers can now follow a suspect across the District line in "hot pursuit." But that established principle does not give them the leeway which seems desirable in dealing with criminals of all types. Maryland and Virginia, for example, have found it desirable to permit "hot pursuit" into those States, on a reciprocal basis, even when the offense is a misdemeanor such as speeding. Undoubtedly the District would find it advantageous to join in this arrangement through the enactment by Congress of a comparable statute.

The initiative in such matters should clearly be taken by the District Commissioners. But under the present set-up the Commissioners have to appeal to Congress for the most trivial legislation. That requires tact, hard and persistent work as well as leadership, while the actual impotence of the local government seems to put a premium on inaction. So it is not surprising that a governing body in no way responsible to the people delays asking an overburdened Congress to enact measures of this sort.

Yet the result is less effective enforcement of the law than the people of Washington have a right to expect. If responsibility for this situation is carried back to its source, the community appeal for protection against crime may readily be translated into a demand for a real municipal government that will be more alert to the city's growing needs.

Realistic Viewpoint

Senator Burke is to be commended for his realism in abandoning at this time any immediate hope of a drastic revision of the national labor relations act.

The testimony presented before the Senate Education and Labor Committee has clearly revealed the existence of much dissatisfaction with the act and its administration. But the critics' fire has been scattered. Some have concentrated on alleged inadequacies and dangers in the law itself while others have argued that the law is all right but that its administration by the Labor Board has been unwise.

There is anything but general agreement as to what ought to be done to perfect the law and improve its administration. And to add to the picture of confusion there is the fact that labor is split into two bitterly hostile camps, with the act a great bone of contention between them.

In view of this situation any attempt to revise the law at this time might produce a dangerous deadlock. The Congressional agenda is full of unfinished business and the members are anxious to adjourn at the earliest opportunity. The consensus of opinion seems favorable to inaction in the matter of the Wagner act.

Obviously this does not dispose of the vital issues that have been raised inside and outside of the Senate committee that has been looking into that act. But with time and conscientious administration the picture may clarify itself. That explains why Senator Burke, one of the most vehement critics both of the act and the board is not disheartened. "We are more interested right now," he says, "in building up the record to show the inherent weaknesses in the law than in obtaining immediate action."

Certainly the longer the Nation's experience with the present law, the greater the possibility of constructive revision.

The World Of Tomorrow

"The World of Tomorrow" is the central idea underlying the great New York Fair, so gracefully and happily dedicated by President Roosevelt on Sunday. And it is this theme which makes particularly appropriate the inclusion of a special League of Nations pavilion, to be opened today as a dominant feature among the national exhibits which surround the Court of Peace.

In spite of all the shortcomings and all the tribulations of the present League, it continues to be of vital importance as an organization designed to forward orderly international co-operation. Without that co-operation, as the present shadows over civilization amply demonstrate, there can be no hope of the bright future which Perisphere and Trylon symbolize. Without that co-operation the "World of Tomorrow" will be one of continuous, overshadowing horror.

It follows that mankind must again turn to support of the basic League idea, if integration rather than continued disintegration is to be achieved. And this conclusion can scarcely be dodged by even the most casual of the millions of visitors who will wander through the Fairgrounds this summer. As propaganda the League building is in the first rank, for no longer can intelligent exception be taken to the moral which it conveys.

This League of Nations building of course results from a specific invitation extended by the Government of the United States. And the suggestion for the exhibits it contains was made by Secretary Hull last February. The League of Nations, he then said in a note to its Secretary General, "has been responsible for the development of mutual exchange and discussion of ideas and methods to a greater extent and in more fields of humanitarian and scientific endeavor than any other organization in history. The United States Government is keenly aware of the value of this type of general interchange and desires to see it extended."

The Secretary of Agriculture, the Assistant Secretary of Labor and the Surgeon General of the United States will all speak at the opening of the League exhibit in New York this afternoon. These officials represent three of the many fields of activity in which official representatives of this country have collaborated at Geneva. And they will doubtless emphasize the announced intention of the Administration to continue and to promote these and all other forms of technical international collaboration.

It is a little ironic that the present hospitality should be extended at a time when the Geneva organization has reached so low an ebb in practical accomplishment. The co-operation now emphasized might have been more immediately constructive if tendered when the prestige and influence of the League were more considerable. But nothing is gained by dwelling on this paradox.

An understanding of the explanation is more useful. Ten years ago, when the promise of Geneva was real, the United States felt itself unaffected and largely indifferent to the course of events abroad. And so the endeavor to shape those events constructively seemed immaterial. Today there is no American, no matter how isolationist, who can even pretend that a cataclysm in Europe would leave us unaffected. There is no American, no matter how critical of the League of Nations, who thinks that its decline has been of any advantage whatsoever to our security or our ideals.

In consequence a new attitude, in which conscience may play a certain part, is now apparent. There is much regret and no rejoicing at the League's loss of influence. There is a greater willingness than ever before to view objectively, and with due appreciation, the value of the techniques for international collaboration which it has worked out. There is a growing desire to learn more about the machinery which was beginning to function effectively when Japan and Italy and Germany combined to block its operation.

In response to this friendly curiosity the League of Nations today opens its exhibit at the New York Fair. During the months ahead few of the many buildings at this great pleasure ground will arouse more interest. And none of them seem of greater importance in pointing toward that World of Tomorrow to which President Roosevelt looked in his speech on Sunday:—"A world of which the keystone will be justice, equality and tolerance."

On Sprats And Rats

As is well known, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sprat got along well with each other because of Jack's inclination towards lean meat and his wife's preference for fat. The Sprat household has long been cause for comment in the nursery. But only now has the gastronomic attitude of the couple become important enough to deserve scientific notice.

Experiments on rats have led three University of Chicago scientists to conclude that the relative nourishment of father and mother may determine the sex of the offspring. According to report, if the father is the better nourished of the parents, the offspring is more likely to be a male. But if the rodent mother has renounced worldly vanity and eaten more heartily, the baby is apt to be a girl.

These results are believed possibly applicable to human beings and there certainly seems to be more than a rhyming connection between the rats and the Sprats. Research in the Washington telephone directory, recently undertaken by a University of Chicago graduate, shows no Sprats—with one "t"—listed. So assuming that the Sprats had children, which is fairly probable in such a happy household, the indication is that all were girls who got that way because Mrs. Sprat ate fat.

Of course, the reasoning is not absolutely conclusive. But it is clearly and strongly corroborative. A study by the Brookings Institution, also largely staffed by aggressive University of Chicago savants, might further elucidate the lurking connection between calories and sex.

Advice From Business

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has an opportunity to render especially useful service during its current annual meeting here. As a recognized spokesman for business, the chamber should and will air its views on many problems of economics and government. But the speech-making and the passage of resolutions may be of less significance than less formal discussions in which members of Congress as well as businessmen will participate.

Discussions of national problems by legislators and responsible business executives are likely to be mutually beneficial at any time. Just now such an attempt to reach an understanding holds special promise. Congress and the industrial leaders of the country have too often gone their separate ways in recent years, with only casual efforts to find a common view as to the essentials of recovery. Where there have been broad differences, both parties have been too willing to stand pat in the hope that events would prove their respective positions right. Now there seems a more pronounced disposition to co-operate, and possibly fewer fixed ideas as to what "must" be done.

The 26 separate dinners which the chamber has arranged, to bring its members into closer contact with Senators and Representatives, should further the conciliatory attitude. It may be said that this procedure is a form of lobbying. That does not alter the fact that it holds constructive possibilities. Congressmen are usually eager to discuss national problems with representative groups, especially if those groups have concrete suggestions to offer.

A considerable portion of the program to be laid before the chamber for its approval is already before Congress in one form or another. Businessmen are eagerly seeking a greater degree of stability. To that end they request a more orthodox fiscal policy on the part of the Federal Government; they want to avert unfair competition between public and private business agencies, and to bring about a revision of the national labor relations act. To stimulate the flow of capital into private enterprise they ask for a measure of tax revision and modification of what are regarded as unworkable features of the social security act.

Substantial groups of legislators on Capitol Hill are also convinced that recovery is to be found in relatively simple measures designed to put idle capital to work and thus create new employment opportunities. But Congress is also wrestling with numerous other problems. It frequently appears to be confused, and to be moving toward the end of a session without specific direction.

To suggest that it may find the impetus and direction it needs from the Chamber of Commerce would be entirely unwarranted. Legislation must reflect many viewpoints and its final aim should be the public and not group welfare. Even so, our national prosperity is so closely tied up with healthy business operations that the advice of organized business may well be freely given, and judiciously received, when the question of recovery is of such overshadowing importance to all.

Prodigals' Return

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

They're coming back. One by one they are returning to this coarse, uncouth, uncultured provincial America which they had taken leave of forever.

It was 40 years ago—midway in the Mauve Decade—when Anna Gould became the Countess de Castellane. No Winchell was around to serve a morsel of before-it-happened news. No Lucius Beebe drank their health in a goblet of correctly chosen vintage. Fin de siecle would swing into the new century which, in turn, would be leaving its teens before Hollywood had stripped glamour of its sheen. Even so, the scribes of that un-rococo day told the social saga pretty well. The moving finger subsequently wrote the Countess a Duchess, and now, to the muttings of late autumn's violins, the aging woman will be listening to footfalls of long buried memories.

The Woolworth heiress, shimmering apotheosis of the dynasty of five-and-ten, counts her forfeited American citizenship among her lost treasures, discovers a haunting note of tenderness in the blue of America's skies, and the bobolinks in the meadows sing a welcoming home, sweet home.

Louis Bromfield may have found in Paris the city of his soul's longing, but the buckeyes of his childhood again command his wonder by their sentried majesty, and the lake-cooled winds that sweep across Ohio again, perhaps, chant dim, fond lullabies.

The English Accent

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

You say, in commenting on Hitler's splendid address, that the Germans have an inferiority complex toward the English.

They have, and toward the French, too.

So have we. Our upper class admires the English; our middle class admires the French. Also, the Japanese admire the Chinese. Many Jews have a morbid inferiority complex. Among ancient peoples, the Romans admired the Greeks.

Progressive peoples, eager to learn, always admire foreigners.

Peoples which do not admire foreigners are the French, the Chinese, the English.

Among the many ways in which the English have no equals and all superiors, they are the only nation on earth that speaks its own language with an accent.

Where Love Abides

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

War and rumors of wars! Why not strive for happiness, which cannot be found in material things—"Seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God" (Col. 3:1.)

It is love that makes happiness. Love for our fellow men; love for little children; love in our homes. Let it never be said of a true American that his home is a home of discontent and strife, but that his home is one where love rules and is uppermost in the heart of each member of the family.

Upon the home where love abides is built the bulwark of the Nation.

For President

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

There appeared in the press of April 21 a most beautiful letter written in the Arizona desert by Dorothy Thompson. The writer was visiting her small son who is getting strong and well again in that climate. The mother's description of the desert as she saw it with her boy and as she saw him grow in health and happiness, is very beautiful.

But Dorothy Thompson is always political. Now she links up the vastness of the desert with American conservatism. "I am not surprised that the Supreme Court bill was defeated. There will also be the same spontaneous rebellion against a third term." Here is a discouraging word from the land where the skies are "not cloudy all day." President Roosevelt cannot be elected for a third term and we bow to the inevitable.

But, Mr. Editor, a new idea from the desert comes for our encouragement. Can we ever see Roosevelt's like again after he has stepped down from the Presidency? I timidly suggest that Dorothy Thompson be nominated to fill his place.

Dorothy Thompson has many of the Roosevelt qualities: brilliance of intellect, directness and clarity of speech, uprightness of character, intense patriotism, tact and the common touch even when she walks with kings. Judging from her writings, Dorothy Thompson has a grasp of public and foreign affairs that are the mark of a statesman.

She would carry on the President's good neighbor policy. She would not have to put heart and courage into a discouraged nation. Roosevelt has done that and Dorothy Thompson can begin where Roosevelt left off. If she knows how to choose her advisers as the President has done, she will qualify to be his successor.

Development Of Group Health In Chicago

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Because of the current national interest in the question of health security, you may be interested to learn of the latest development.

The Chicago Teachers Union, local I. A. F. of T., largest teachers' local in the world, has signed an agreement with the Civic Medical Center, which enables prepaid, complete medical, surgical and preventive care on a voluntary basis for union teachers at the rate of $30 per year for a family, or $18 per year for a single teacher.

To our knowledge, this agreement is a unique document. Establishing the Chicago Teachers Union Group Health Security Plan, it assures mutual policy determination and administration as between a producers' medical co-operative, the Civic Medical Center of Chicago, and a lay organization, the Chicago Teachers Union.

The agreement points a way to a sound solution of the health security problem for middle-income groups and strengthens the cause of those who believe a national program can be successfully worked out for the lower and no income groups. Both the Chicago Teachers Union and the Civic Medical Center have taken an active part in the struggle to make adequate medical care more available.

It is important to the health security movement that an organization with the deserved cultural prestige of the Chicago Teachers Union indorses the progressive principle of the group practice of medicine on a risk-sharing prepayment basis. This is the very principle which is at the heart of the present controversy.

In this connection it is highly interesting to note that the national office of the American Medical Association is in Chicago, and the Chicago Medical Society is one of the largest county societies in the world.

The Civic Medical Center of Chicago (a partnership of physicians "producers co-operative" representing internal medicine and the specialties) has been engaged for some years in a struggle analogous to that of the Group Health Association, of Washington, D. C., and, in spite of the difficulties imposed, has firmly established itself. Through Dr. Charles R. Wiley, its medical director, Civic Medical Center assisted in setting up Group Health Association and other medical centers.

In my opinion, the Chicago Teachers Union leaders are to be highly commended on the outstanding position the union has taken. Their names swell the roster of the already notable roll—Dr. Hugh Cabot, I. S. Falk, Dr. Thomas Parran, Josephine Roche, etc.—in the vanguard of the struggle to establish health security, adequate medical care for everyone, as an integral part of our democracy.

Mr. Evans' Hamlet

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

This morning an interesting letter signed M. G. K. appeared in The Post regarding the Evans production. I am glad that M. G. K. enjoyed the performance. I, too, enjoyed seeing and hearing Hamlet given in its entirety. As Mr. Nelson Bell says in his column this morning: "It is something that should be seen by everyone who really wishes to know what 'Hamlet' is all about."

It is interesting also to make the acquaintance of Veltimand, Cornelius, Reynaldo, Fortinbras, a couple of sailors and other gentlemen whose appearance it has been customary to leave to our imagination. The costuming of the play was colorful and pleasing to look upon and the scenery, for the most part, charming. I take exception, however, to the lemonade booth the "players" had to act in; the horrible grave in which poor Ophelia was put; and the ladies' hat-box upon which Hamlet sat while delivering the "to be or not to be" soliloquy.

With regard to the acting, I do not recall any production of Hamlet (and I have seen many) in which the minor characters were so well played. I was grieved at seeing Polonius played "for comedy" in an almost clownish fashion and at his taking the audience into his confidence, as it is done in vaudeville and burlesque. But to "come to Hecuba"; if I were asked to express tersely my opinion of Mr. Evans' Hamlet, I would say that it consisted of a series of carefully pronounced English words.

Mr. Evans seemed to be more engrossed in his meticulous pronunciation of the words than in the thought the words contained. His "to be or not to be" soliloquy was uttered and that was all. His advice to the players was marred by the introduction of too much "business." In the closet scene with his mother he was brutal. In the lighter moments of the play he was charming and looked well at all times, though I think he should not have worn his nice, gray Easter suit at Ophelia's funeral. It constituted a jarring note.

And I should like to suggest to Mr. Evans that when anybody in the audience happens to cough (and I know from experience how annoying to an actor that is) that he pay no attention to it and not stop as he did Tuesday night, make a gesture of annoyance and repeat the line that he thought the audience perhaps did not hear. Mr. Evans may in time become a great Hamlet—after he has acquired the skill of speaking without effort and of imbuing himself in the part he is playing.

Let me add that it was not I who did the coughing! SEE BEE.

Vanishing Trees

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

When will the vandalism against our trees cease?

Those of us who have lived in Washington practically all of our lives, and who have loved it for its beauty and its difference fro- other cities, feel sick at heart when we must stand by and see the ruthless cutting of our glorious trees.

So many of us must remain in the city. We cannot afford or find it convenient to live in the suburbs where nature can be enjoyed, and the trees and the parks have been our solace and our joy. Bit by bit they are being taken away. Concrete takes the place of grass and the ax leaves a glaring space where the sun can beat down without the protection of green leaves.

Is there no way of touching the hearts of those who are responsible for this demolition of one of God's loveliest creations—the trees? Must we sacrifice that which makes city life bearable for King Speed and the Juggernaut—Automobile?

The Post Impressionist

The Bad 'Un

Somehow, J. M. had singularly bad luck with his office boys. After we lost the moon-mad Willoughby there came to us Tom. Now what, to my mind, forever, distinguishes Tom is that he had the sullenist visage I have ever seen, and the most thoroughly disgusted outlook on life I have ever encountered. We marveled much how such an aspect could have been achieved by a youth only 19. He wore at all times an expression compounded of disdain, boredom and frustration, and a brooding, bitter melancholy.

Tom had been expelled from school at 17, and had then tried delivering flowers in his father's florist shop until he ran the delivery truck into the river. Tom, ejected forthwith from the florist shop, took up with low company in the tough North End which gave to his speech a most picaresque edge; and finally, under the pressure brought to bear by his family, was landed, to our delight, in J. M.'s insurance office to run errands and collect premiums.

Just as "ladies" were poor Willoughby's liveliest interest, so, contrariwise, were they Tom's chiefest scorn. Girls were "janes" or "dillies" or "a bunch of skirts," and sometimes even worse. For our office beauty, the lovely Francine whom the men called Babe, he had no eye. She was even less to Tom than if she had not existed.

Not far from our office on the same floor was another insurance concern, which harbored a full score of pretty chattering maidens, and when they trooped laughing past our open door on the way to lunch, we watched Tom's face at first for a lightening of the brow, for a lifting of the customary gloom; but no, the brow grew but darker. Sometimes the merry little flirtjills elicited only a snort, but such an expressive snort as only Tom was capable of. With one snort he could in fact tell us exactly what he thought of all schools and colleges; or what he thought of all women, or of delivering flowers for his father, or being an office boy for J. M. with the added duties of collecting insurance premiums.

I don't know whether Tom liked little babies. I would be inclined to suspect that he punched them in the head when he got the chance; he never mentioned owning a dog; and he hated music. He was certainly never kind to his mother when she called him on the telephone—and I shouldn't have been surprised to hear that he jumped on her every morning like the famous easter who subsequently "loves to lie a-basking in the sun."

But somehow we would not accept this sour, sneering, unregenerate brute. We could not bring ourselves to believe that this boy's mechanism was completely devoid of all natural affection, and so we despaired not of finding some grace in him, some foolish softness, some coy or bashful virtue hidden deep.

One morning after he had been with us perhaps eight months, he seemed more melancholy than usual, he spoke less than little, he glowered when addressed. There were two or three 'phone calls for him that he answered in grunts and monosyllables, and then went out and stayed away the entire afternoon. The next day was the same and the third day and the fourth.

We speculated among ourselves on the cause of this new towering darkness, and considered the possibility that his brother, whose pugilistic supremacy was to Tom gall and wormwood, had beaten him again, or that his mother had been taking boxing lessons herself.

Several times in those few days a haughty and frigid voice asked on the telephone for him. When told he was out, the voice bade us icily to have him call his mother.

Each time we transmitted this message we were rewarded with a more awful look, but with a look that was beginning to be a shade grimly woebegone. "Naw, I know what she wants, and I ain't gonna tell 'er, see?"

We saw, but as through a glass darkly. On the fifth morning she called while Tom was in the office, and he sat, neck sunk between his shoulders and refused to take the 'phone. We stared at one another in helpless embarrassment, and finally babbled something into the instrument and hung the receiver on the hook. "But why, Tom, why?" we asked when we dared, and at last unable longer to contain the gathering storm, he blurted:

"It's my old man! He's on a bat, and bin in the Buckminster Hotel for a week. He's got the D. T.'s, that's what, and my old lady wants to know where he is. But I ain't gonna tell 'er. She don't deserve to know, and she won't find out from me, see?" We saw that time. And then Tom continued to stare before him until the narrowed eyes sunk in the surrounding flesh, the hue of which had deepened almost to mulberry. The tenseness of the face made certain planes of it, like the spots over the temples and around the nostrils, turn yellow, which gave him an altogether strange, almost frightening aspect.

"J. M. wants to know where you've been every afternoon for the last week; he says you'll have to cut out this waste of time, or quit." Albert spoke with a compassion he strove carefully to conceal. "What shall I tell him?" "Ya can tell him I been wid my old man every afternoon this week—ya can tell him my old man was seein' pink elephants and green devils wid horns . . . but dey took him away today . . . dey took him to de nut-house . . ." His voice wavered and stopped, and a deep silence fell. He hadn't raised his head, and when we looked furtively at him we saw to our earnest consternation two tear drops, squeezed from the sides of the tight-shut eyes, roll their uncertain course down the grooves of his face. Our concern was not unmixed with awe—and our awe was frankly mixed with joy. Tom was human . . . we had peeped beneath the crusted armor . . . he loved his father, and we were glad.

We often thought about it even after he absconded with the first really large premium he ever collected. We liked to think, too, that he took the money he wanted, unbeknown to his family, to do something for his father. We liked to think that, but since we saw him no more, we were never sure.

Fair Enough

About Ballyhoo

IT WOULD not be fair to hold William O. (Call Me Bill) Douglas responsible for all the politico-Hollywood trash that has been written about him since he was nominated for the United States Supreme Court.

The tone of this biographical matter evokes a half-forgotten writing of Eugene Field:

"Father calls me William;
Sister calls me Will;
Mother calls me Willie,
But the fellers call me Bill."

I recall this because I had to recite the piece before Mrs. Benton's class in Excelsior, Minn., about the same time that Mr. Justice (Call Me Bill) Douglas is supposed to have been living on snowballs up in the God-how-the-wind-blew country. Mr. Justice (Call Me Bill) Douglas' pappy was a preacher, but we had two preachers in our town, each with a family, and we never found any starving preachers' children frozen in the drifts. The reverends weren't our worst-paid citizens, either. The least paid, I suppose, was little old Johnny Shoemaker, a mover, but he got along all right and our family also got along all right one very hard winter on $12 a week, some weeks, when my old man, the best reporter they ever had in the Twin Cities, got caught in a newspaper consolidation and had to go to work for the Minneapolis Daily News. Beans were cheap and liver was free, as cat meat, about the time that Mr. Douglas was a one-gallus boy in Minnesota, and I don't want to hear any more about his pioneer childhood there because a little further provocation will goad me to say that it wasn't as tough as all that. I have always given a 60 per cent discount on the Rex Beach and Robert W. Service estimates of the hardships of the Yukon, having had some boyhood experience in the far-below-zero regions myself and some later acquaintance with such house cat Chechawkos as Tex Rickard, Jack Kearns and Wilson Mizner, three of the gaudiest tall story tellers that the world has ever known outside the American Legion.

It Was Snobbish To Ride Cushions

SO ALL right, our New Deal campus hero was born in Minnesota, a feat for which no medals are awarded, and early moved to California, which isn't hard to take, and from there to the State of Washington, which was thoroughly housebroken by then.

One biographer exclaimed that there, in Washington State, Mr. Douglas "engaged literally in manual toil," and another reports that when he was bound for one of his spells in college he hummed it on the freights. Well, now there are still many boys in this country who pump milk out of cows by hand, "literally," and tidy up cows' boudoirs and bring them their salad and cereal by hand. And the only difference between bumming one's way on the freights and thumbing it on the motor highways, as the studybums do today, is one of period and custom. Out our way in those days automobiles were scarce and it was foolish and snobbish to ride the cushions when the freights would do as well. One met interesting people on the freights and, contrary to general belief, the hauls didn't cover 1,000-mile stretches, but were broken at little jerks along the line.

But, beyond his boyhood, Mr. Douglas burrowed into college and never since has he taken a lead off the safe and easy base of the elm-and-ivy existence of the campus and the public payroll.

Man Could Qualify For Post On Swearing

I INTEND one day to write a resounding article about that class of New Deal chimney suckers who attach themselves to ivied walls in youth and, from sheer love of easy and noncompetitive living and the gullible company of adolescents, become professional educators and sneer at better men who also started from scratch but had the gumption to become champions in the world of business which provides the wages that they live on.

I read also that Mr. Justice Douglas swears freely. That would be a pathetic boast, and I will guarantee to pick out of any county jail or city clink a bum who, on that basis, would outqualify him for the job of Justice of the Supreme Court of the U. S. A.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The American Position Now

THOUGH THERE is still a fair chance that the European war can be postponed and even avoided, there does not appear to be anything the President can do at the present moment to influence the outcome. Europe has reached a point where the kind of general peace conference which he proposed is not now feasible. It would require a degree of reciprocal demobilization, both physical and moral, that is not possible in the present state of Europe.

In the axis an acceptance of the President's proposal, and all that it implies, would mean not only a renunciation of a large part of its ambitions but the probability that, if the tension were suddenly relaxed, the axis itself would disintegrate and the profound but suppressed popular longing for peace would be released. In the alliance the point has been reached for the three principal members, namely Britain, France, and Poland, where they are bound to feel that if they do not hang together, they will in the end hang separately.

Poland Appears To Be Test Subject

IN THE IMMEDIATE future, therefore, a general settlement would seem to be ruled out until the relative strength of the axis and the alliance has been put to the test. Apparently the test is to be made over Poland, not over Danzig and the Corridor, but over Poland itself. For while Danzig and the highway are the occasions, it was not until Poland joined the France-British alliance that Hitler made Danzig and the Corridor a great issue in Europe. In 1934 he signed a treaty which postponed for at least ten years the raising of the German claims on Poland. If those claims are now made a prime objective, it can be only because they are a promising means of breaking up the British guaranties in Eastern Europe, and of neutralizing or even subjugating Poland.

This in turn makes a settlement of the Danzig and the highway questions extremely difficult. If the Poles make no concessions, they may have to fight on an issue where their moral position is not good, and their guaranties from Britain and France by no means absolutely dependable. On the other hand, if they give in to Hitler, they may lose much more than the German city of Danzig and a highway 15 miles wide. They may render themselves defenseless and they may dissolve their alliances. After the surrender of the Sudetenland the Czecho-Slovak nation was unable to exist as an independent state. A surrender at Danzig and the dismemberment of the Corridor might very well have the same consequences for the Polish state.

Situation Termed Dangerous One

THE SITUATION is delicate and dangerous, and on the outcome may well depend the most vital interests of all the European powers. It is a question not only of war or peace but of national independence and survival. For that reason the situation is one in which those who have everything at stake must make their own decisions on their own responsibility. It is not a situation in which a distant nation that is not involved can intervene unless it is asked to do so by all the states that are involved. For at this point an uninvited intervention on the part of the United States would not only be fruitless but it might be seriously misleading.

The President has, therefore, been well advised not to retort to Hitler's speech. His appeal for a general settlement has been rejected. If he entered into an argument with Hitler over that rejection, the President would place himself in a false position. He would be regarded as a participant in the European balance of power rather than as the intermediary for peace which is all that he has authority to be.

Time Held Ripe For National Unity

THE BEST CHANCE of a useful contribution by this country to world peace can come now only after this immediate crisis, the testing of the coalition on the Polish question, has been resolved. In the meantime, the President would do well to take seriously what he has so grievously neglected, his duty as leader of the Nation to promote the national unity by consulting with and conciliating his political opponents.

There may still come an opportunity to exert the influence of the United States in a supreme effort to avert the immeasurable catastrophe of a world war. But if and when that opportunity comes, the effectiveness of the action on behalf of peace will depend on how successfully the President is able to speak for a united people.

Harm Of War Now With Us

By Mark Sullivan

Election Mandates

THE HARM that war does is already with us, in a beginning stage, even though the potential war is in Europe, and even though it may never come. Deep interest in foreign affairs takes the people's minds off domestic matters, to the detriment of the country's good.

The principal business of the present session of Congress was to have been revision of New Deal legislation previously enacted. Up to a certain point President Roosevelt so intended. In his opening message to this Congress he subtly yet frankly, and with smooth suavity, admitted that much of the New Deal legislation must be modified. "We have had to forge new tools," he said. And he added:

"Some of these tools had to be roughly shaped, and still need some machining down. . . . The nation looks to the Congress to improve the new machinery which we have permanently installed. . . . All of us agree that we should simplify and modify laws if experience and operation clearly demonstrate the need."

Quite possibly Mr. Roosevelt did not discover the need of modifying the New Deal laws until after the November election had shown an almost sensational trend away from the New Deal. Had that election gone otherwise, had it given encouragement to Mr. Roosevelt and the New Dealers, there would have been an attempt to push the New Deal further. Just as Mr. Roosevelt's victory in 1936 led to introduction of his measure to change the courts in early 1937, so would a New Deal victory last year, had it occurred, have been followed by other measures which the New Dealers had in mind.

Now Are Fighting Rear-Guard Battle

BUT THE ELECTION last fall showed a strong trend away from the New Deal. From that November day, Mr. Roosevelt and the New Dealers realized they must fight a rear-guard battle. They must abandon hope of further New Deal innovations. They would keep the laws they had passed, so far as they could. But they knew they could keep those laws only by overhauling them, by trimming away those parts of them that had irritated the people. They must make their innovations workable.

THE NEW DEALERS knew, too, that unless they performed curative surgery on their statutes in this session of Congress, they might lose forever the opportunity to have the surgery done by friendly hands. They realized it was likely the elections of 1940 would return both an anti-New Deal Congress and an anti-New Deal President. The anti-New Deal victor might be either Republican or orthodox Democrat; but in either case, anti-New Deal.

Such an Administration and Congress, coming into power in January, 1941, would set about revising the New Deal statutes. They would be obliged to, for the New Deal statutes in their present forms are so unworkable, and so inconsistent with the individualist form of society, that only through changes in these statutes can America go forward to prosperity.

So the New Dealers felt they had one last session of Congress in which to so modify their innovations as to save them from more serious changes by unfriendly hands. The work began.

Very Few Laws Revised Thus Far

FOR THE SOCIAL security law, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau recommended changes, changes identical with what critics of the law had demanded. For the law passed last year that fixes minimum wages and maximum hours, the so-called "wage-hour" law, changes were proposed that were agreeable to the administrator and authors of the act. On taxation, the Treasury let it be known that it favored repeal of several so-called "friction taxes," which hold business back without producing much revenue. For public works, a new set-up was prepared and introduced by Senator Byrnes of South Carolina. For the national labor relations act, and the Labor Board which that act set up, amendments were introduced both by friends of the act and strong critics of it. In practically every one of the innovations set up by the New Deal during the past six years, revision is under way.

But hardly in any case is the revision completed. And now comes preoccupation with foreign affairs. Eyes of public and legislators alike, turn to watch Europe and to observe President Roosevelt in his relations with Europe. The scrutiny is not curiosity merely. And decidedly it is not without usefulness. For however desirable to support the President in foreign relations, however desirable to give him flexibility in the handling of them—it is still true that our foreign relations will be handled the better if handled with consciousness of the observing eyes of Congress and public.

Meanwhile, practically no one of the changes in New Deal legislation has been perfected. Of the labor act and the neutrality act, the changes proposed are still in the stage of preliminary hearings before committees. It is the first of May. Normally, Congress should be leaving Washington the last of June. But if this Congress is to complete the revision of the New Deal which it has undertaken, it will be here beyond the first of August. Possibly this is just as well, at a time when Congress may wish to make changes in our neutrality law to adjust ourselves to changing conditions.

Poland On The Spot

By Barnet Nover

Toward Another Munich?

IN MORE THAN one particular, Poland today finds herself in the position that Czecho-Slovakia occupied during the summer of 1938.

The parallel is ominous, yet it must not be driven too hard. There are profound differences, as well as impressive similarities, between the European situation today and what it was nine months ago. In particular, every nation on that continent, including Poland, now realizes the full significance of Munich and its aftermath. But the similarities cannot safely be ignored. For they contain the seeds of another tragedy.

IN MAY, 1938, Czecho-Slovakia showed her readiness to fight by mobilizing her troops in anticipation of a possible German attack. She was backed up at that moment by Great Britain and France which put strong pressure on the Nazi regime to keep the peace. As a result, Hitler called off his legions and Czecho-Slovakia was given a further period of grace.

The episode was one of Hitler's rare setbacks and he never forgave President Benes for his part in it. It was not long before he was able to have his revenge. With the help of Chamberlain and Daladier, Czecho-Slovakia's will to resist was shattered. In a bluntly worded telegram sent by the British and French governments to Prague soon after the British premier's visit to Berchtesgaden, Czecho-Slovakia was given the alternative of accepting the German demand for the cession of the Sudetenland or be deserted by the western powers. The very circumstance that those powers had supported Czecho-Slovakia in May gave weight and authority to this demand.

THE SUDETENLAND had never been a part of Germany. But the fact that it contained 3,000,000 German-speaking people gave plausibility to Hitler's demand for the region's incorporation into the Reich. He persuaded at least a portion of the world that such annexation was merely the righting of a wrong perpetrated at Versailles. But the righting of that "wrong" has been followed by the perpetration of an infinitely greater wrong.

Now Hitler is making demands on Poland not essentially different from those he made on Czecho-Slovakia. He wants Danzig, which is 95 per cent German in population, to be allowed to return to the Reich. He wants Poland to permit the construction of a German road across the Corridor. That road would connect East Prussia with the main portion of the Reich.

THESE DEMANDS will seem reasonable to many soft-hearted people, even as last year's demand for the cession of the Sudetenland to Germany seemed reasonable. Not even the utter destruction of what was left of independent Czecho-Slovakia has washed away the sense of guilt regarding the iniquities of the Treaty of Versailles which has prevailed in democratic countries.

That may explain the very ominous reports from London and Paris that the governments there may put pressure on Poland to make a deal with Hitler regarding Danzig and the Corridor. But if, under such pressure, Poland capitulates, the ultimate effects may be as disastrous as were the results of the pressure put upon Czecho-Slovakia in the matter of the Sudetenland.

WHAT IS AT STAKE in the present German-Polish dispute over Danzig and the Corridor is only incidentally a matter of righting old wrongs. Hitler's motive in raising these issues at this time is primarily to destroy the combination which has been arising against Germany.

With the same sure-footed strategy that has enabled him to win a long succession of dazzling triumphs in the international sphere, Hitler has picked out Danzig and the Corridor question as the Achilles heel of the anti-aggression bloc. For he knows that in London and in Paris there are elements which feel that in these matters he has a case which cannot be ignored and ought to be satisfied. And he may bank on the fear of war, which he knows how to capitalize, to press that point home. Again Europe faces a test of nerves. If British and French and Polish nerves hold out, Hitler may decide that the Danzig game is not worth the candle and drop the issue for a while. If they do not, another Munich may result.

THE REAL significance of Danzig and the Corridor for Hitler at this time is wholly strategic. After all, Danzig is Nazi. It is ruled from Berlin as effectively as though it were legally a part of the Third Reich. And the Corridor was not German in population even in days of the Kaiser. But with Danzig under German sovereignty it could be made a military, naval and air base. And in possession of a passageway through the Corridor, Germany could cut Poland off from access to what would be, after the loss of Danzig, her sole remaining port—Gdynia.

Already Germany faces Poland on three sides. She can attack that nation from the west, from the north (East Prussia) and from the south (Moravia and Slovakia). The satisfaction of Hitler's "once-and-for-all" demands on Warsaw would clinch the stranglehold on Poland to make that nation valueless as a potential partner in the anti-aggression combination.

No wonder that Poland is stubbornly refusing to give in to Hitler. And if there is any statesmanship in London and Paris those governments will support her in that stand.

Uncle Sam In Pictures

Washington is authorizing a study looking toward the setting up of a National Emergency Council to co-ordinate radio and films to give the Government better publicity. The plan is for Uncle Sam to have radio stations, picture studios, trained script writers, directors, etc. Why not? The Government alone is in a position to throw away money faster than Hollywood.

We may soon find that the best scenario writers have left Hollywood for Washington, and it may be the boast of a big director that he was so good the Government gave him a bonus to quit Paramount.

Can't you imagine these titles: "The Federal Government in Cooperation with the Federal Government Presents That Sensational Federal Government Film, 'What Washington Does for the Farmer.' Story by Willis Bopps, dialogue by Max Noggle, additional dialogue by Milton Rosen, electrical effects by Howard Dingle, sound effects by the Cook Brothers, incidental music by Raoul Schwartz. A Federal Government Production!"

Washington may have to build an entire new skyscraper just to hold the credit lines.

The Government expects to do wonders. Take the story of the TVA. Put a little sex into it and what can't be done with it in pictures?

Imagine the billing: "Electricity and Love. With Miriam Hopkins, Harry Hopkins, Clark Gable, Frances Perkins, Katharine Hepburn and Hattie Caraway."

Watch your papers for announcements of that coming colossal five-star special, "Through the Fiscal Problems with Shirley Temple and Secretary Morgenthau."

If they can get Garbo to appear with Secretary Wallace they will film "The Story of the Potato" in six reels.

And what can be done with films can be done with radio. It might be a good idea to act now and get Ed Wynn at Assistant Secretary of the Interior. Fred Allen would make a great and helpful director of a budget program, and Burns and Allen certainly could team up with Harry Hopkins in the interests of more commerce.

Charlie McCarthy is out of it. There would be too much trouble telling him from a lot of those Government officials.

German submarines are now being reported off the Canadian coast. It will only be a few days before we may hear those old reports of mysterious lights being spy signals.

Capital to See Its First Show Again

The first play ever presented in Washington, "Venice Preserved," by Thomas Otway, will be given by the Shakespeare Society in Perkins Hall, Universalist Church, Sixteenth and S streets northwest, at 8:15 p. m., Monday.

First presented in London in 1682, the play was given in Washington in Blodgett's Hotel, August, 1800. In spite of, or perhaps because of, the weather, press reports said that it was "warmly received by an audience more numerous as well as more splendid than can be conceived from a population so slender and so scattered."

"Mother and child are both doing nicely," was the report. The Congressman remained in New York yesterday.

Men in Late 40s Found Highest Paid in Nation

Men in the forties may have more trouble finding jobs than younger men, but when they do have work, the Social Security Board said yesterday, they draw fatter paychecks.

Director John J. Carson of the old age insurance bureau reported that men between 45 and 50 had the highest annual wage of any other age group—$1,204.

Youths between 15 and 19 averaged only $269 each, but the pay increased steadily to the 45-50-year group, then fell off.

Delta Chi Unit To Entertain 100 Public Officials

Nearly 100 members of Congress and the judiciary and Government officials are expected to attend the annual dinner of the Washington Alumni Chapter, Delta Chi Fraternity, at 7:30 p. m. Thursday at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club, in honor of bank executives who are members of the chapter.

Guests of honor will include Sidney Talladero, vice president of the Riggs National Bank and former Commissioner of the District of Columbia; Stanley D. Willis, trust officer of the National Metropolitan Bank; Harrison Gilbert, official of the National Savings & Trust Co., and Charles Ballard Doing, vice president of the Washington Loan & Trust Co.

Other guests include Louis A. Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War; Justices Harold M. Stephens and Justin Miller, of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia; Senators Neely, of West Virginia, and Schwellenbach, of Washington; Representatives Church, of Illinois; Jones, of Texas; Reed, of New York; Harness, of Indiana; Gassaway, of Maryland; Harter, of Ohio; Rutherford, of Pennsylvania; Flannery, of Pennsylvania, and Bradley, of Pennsylvania.

Officers of the chapter are Frank Harrison, president; Elden McGarland, vice president; Loftin S. Wailes, secretary; Jacob Beck, treasurer; Robert Burton, recording secretary.

Danish Royalty Plans Visit to Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., May 1 (AP).—Gov. O'Conor was advised today that Crown Prince Frederick and Princess Ingrid, of Denmark, would pay an official visit to the Maryland capital May 5.

O'Conor said the royal couple would call at the Governor's mansion in the afternoon. He was notified of the plan by Georg Beck, Danish consul general of New York.

Flickinger Backed For D. C. Board

Samuel J. Flickinger, president of the Friendship Citizens Association, was indorsed for the vacant position on the Board of District Commissioners yesterday in a letter sent to the White House by J. H. Mills, secretary of the organization.

Mills' letter urged President Roosevelt to fill the vacancy "without further delay" and pointed out the entire membership of his association has indorsed Flickinger.

Justice Stone Says He Favors Trust Program

Qualifies Indorsement In Address Before Georgetown Law Group

Associate Supreme Court Justice Stone told Georgetown University law students and faculty members last night he agrees with "most if not all" of the Administration's program to curb monopolies.

He qualified indorsement of the program by specifying its aims as outlined by Wendell Berge, a special assistant to the Attorney General in charge of antitrust law infringement, who also addressed the twenty-seventh annual banquet given at the Carlton Hotel by the faculty in honor of the Georgetown Law Journal staff.

Berge said protection of consumer interests depends on either the restoration of a freer competitive system by restriction of monopolies or more Government regulation of business.

Some of the present anti-trust machinery needs to be modernized, he said, and in some industries, where antitrust laws won't work, new techniques will have to be developed. He hoped, he said, the "essence of democracy" might be preserved in the process.

Public Service Trend Cited

"Those who deplore government regulation," Berge declared, "should welcome vigorous and effective anti-trust law enforcement."

Justice Stone said he found the growing tendency of young attorneys to enter public service a hopeful sign for ultimate adjustment of administrative practices to shifting social and economic conditions. He warned his listeners they wouldn't make as much money in public jobs as they might by finding places with large law firms but that they would be rewarded by living "more useful and satisfactory lives."

Justice Stone said he had felt a young man until a few weeks ago he found "one of my recent pupils sitting on the other end of the bench; then I knew it was time to reminisce."

Stone Gives Certificates

The Rev. Francis E. Lucey, S. J., regent of the law school, observed that the democracies may have to adopt some of the methods of totalitarian countries, but warned that if these methods are carried too far submergence of the individual may result.

Justice Stone presented certificates to the following staff members:

Marshal to Take Charge of Bullock

Willie Bullock, 39-year-old colored man, indicted as the killer of Policeman George W. Shinsult, in 1932, will be turned over to the United States marshal tomorrow.

Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, said yesterday that while police have not yet finished questioning Bullock, they have a signed statement from the prisoner in which he admits firing a shot, but does not remember hitting a policeman.

Army Recalls Col. Heidner in Haitian Dispute

Lieut. Col. Samuel J. Heidner, chief of the American military mission to Haiti, was ordered back to the United States yesterday, following a row with the American Minister over control of the Haitian army. The State Department, upon demands of Minister Ferdinand Mayer, recently asked that Col. Heidner be recalled. Difficulties between the two officials arose, it is understood, when Mayer insisted that Heidner establish an office in the Haitian Garde headquarters and take command.

The army officer, on loan to the Haitian Government demurred, it is said, contending that the Garde could best be strengthened and brought under American influence by his continuing in an advisory capacity.

Holding that the State Department's interests were predominate, the War Department yesterday ordered Col. Heidner to duty with reserves at San Diego.

Hoy, D.C. Fireman Hero, Retires After 25 Years

One of Washington's most decorated firemen retired yesterday after 25 years service.

He is private Thomas J. Hoy of No. 2 Truck Company, hero of many fires and disasters, including the Knickerbocker Theater collapse, and holder of special awards for rescuing a fellow fireman in 1926; bravery and rescue work in 1929, and a silver medal for rescuing a woman from the second floor of a blazing building at 2510 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, in 1937.

Hoy, who is 58, resides at 2207 I street northwest.

Arnold Gives Trust Views to Trade Officials

Helpful Enforcement Calls for Application of Rule of Reason, He Says

The Sherman antitrust act must not be administered in such a way as to destroy "combinations which actually contribute to the efficiency of mass production," Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold declared yesterday.

"Constructive enforcement" of the Sherman act calls for continuous application of "the rule of reason," Arnold told 200 members of the American Trade Association executives, opening a two-day session at the Mayflower Hotel.

"Concerted action on the part of groups of competitors in order to insure orderly marketing conditions should not be considered unreasonable," the head of the antitrust division asserted.

No "Moral Problem"

Antitrust offenses often "involve no moral turpitude," Thurman said, describing enforcement of the Sherman act as "the problem of continuous direction of economic traffic" rather than "a moral problem."

Mere imposition of penalties on those responsible for combinations in restraint of trade "does not recreate competition," he said, pointing out the necessity for "unscrambling the eggs" to avoid economic dislocation.

Antitrust laws stem from "one of our oldest economic traditions," Arnold recalled. "They represent the ideal of a society which produces and distributes through free independent competitive enterprise."

Likened to Game

Competition, he said, "is a kind of game which requires a referee. Without a referee it is a contest in which the men who form gangs will win."

Stuart A. Rice, chairman of the United States Central Statistical Board, told the executives that more than 135,000,000 returns were made to the Federal Government on 4,700 different report forms in the fiscal year, 1938.

Steady progress has been made, he said, in simplification of the reports required of business, though "the program implies and depends upon the continued existence of a stastistical co-ordinating agency."

Industry and labor are finding it increasingly easy to sit down together at the conference table, L. Metcalfe Walling, administrator of the division of public contracts in the Labor Department, reported.

Andrews to Speak

Under the Walsh-Healy act, he said, the Government "is trying to set the standards of model working conditions." General adoption of these standards is "a tribute to their reasonableness and efficacy" as well as the willingness of trade association executives "to be a partner in a joint enterprise," he concluded.

Ray Tucker, newspaper columnist, gave the Republican Party a 60-40 chance for victory in 1940, adding that "all bets are off" in case of war.

5 Firemen Hurt, 50 Tenants Flee 18th Street Blaze

Fire

the streets, shivering tenants, some barefooted and many in bedclothes, milled among the growing crowd anxiously seeking relatives and neighbors.

Mrs. Letitia Burnam, colored, awakened by the alarm, helped her 70-year-old mother, Mrs. Ida Jackson, from their third-story apartment to the street. Then, despite the thick smoke, she fought her way back to the rooms and rescued her bed-ridden husband, Mack, who had been released from Freedmen's Hospital only last week.

Janitor Arouses Tenants

Rhinehart Daniel, colored janitor of the apartment house, firemen learned, was a block away when a youth warned him of smoke in the building. He hurried back and aroused the tenants.

Mrs. Sally Coates was asleep in a fourth-floor apartment when awakened by her sister, Marjorie Coleman. Mrs. Coates said she "jumped" into a dressing gown and fled through the dense smoke. "I'd be burned up by now if it hadn't been for my sister," she said.

Went Back to Sleep

Mrs. Willa Mae Davis, 24, said she was awakened by the shriek of sirens and thought the noise was that of a passing ambulance, so she rolled over and went back to sleep. She was awakened a second time by a neighbor.

Mrs. Marie Minor didn't have much time to dash three flights to the street, but she didn't forget to snatch up her pet poodle.

Arson Traces Sought

Detective Robert Mahon, of the pick-up squad, entered the fume-soaked building immediately after the flames were quelled in search of possible traces of arson.

The apartment house is owned by the Mutual Housing Association, of which the president and majority stockholder is Representative Mitchell (Democrat), of Chicago.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown

The Interstate Male Chorus, assisted by the Women's Auxiliary Chorus, gives its fiftieth concert Monday evening in Continental Memorial Hall under the direction of Clyde B. Aitchison. Soloists: Juanita Claxon and Charles B. Wood.

Commissioner Clyde B. Aitchison, who exactly exemplifies the difference between vocation and avocation by following the one in his duties on the Interstate Commerce Commission and pursuing the other in the realm of music, conducted his cherished organization, the Interstate Male Chorus, last evening in the second concert of its nineteenth season. Inasmuch as the concert was the fiftieth given by the singers, the occasion was signalized by the selection of Continental Memorial Hall as the auditorium for the invited guests, and by the inclusion of the Women's Auxiliary Chorus in the performance.

Like their director, the men of the chorus are avocational musicians who sing neither for profit nor glory, but for their own pleasure in making music. The personnel of the group changes from year to year, and only nine of the original members have survived all vicissitudes. One of them, Charles B. Wood, sang the solo part of Lucifer in excerpts from Sir Arthur Sullivan's "The Golden Legend," sharing honors with the other soloist of the evening, Juanita Ciaxon, who took the part of Elsie.

The first half of the program was given by the male chorus alone. They began with the rousing "Viking Song" by Samuel Coleridge Taylor and followed this with arrangements of Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song" and Schubert's "Hark, Hark, the Lark." Other numbers were Beethoven's terzet, "Song of Farewell;" Saar's arrangement of Schubert's serenade, "Creeping Lightly;" Jean Bohannan's setting of Walt Whitman's "Captain, My Captain," and the pilgrim chorus from Verdi's "I Lombardi."

The singing of the group was characterized by zeal and evident enjoyment as well as by careful attention to the director's indications. Mr. Aitchison knows his choral technique, and applies his knowledge with commendable results in attack and shading.

"The Golden Legend" is one of the works by which Sullivan proved to his own satisfaction that he could write music more enduring than comic operas. The rest of the world has seemed thus far to prefer the operas. Based on Longfellow's poem, the cantata has some beautiful sections and deserves more performances than it receives.

The selections presented last evening by the two choruses included the prologue, the evening hymn, "O Gladsome Light;" the scene of the monks and Lucifer, the chorus, "The Night is Calm and Cloudless;" the soprano solo, "My Redeemer and My Lord;" the chorus, "O Pure in Heart," and the epilogue.

Jones Indorses Bill to Cut Rail Receivers' Fees

'Can't Be Too Drastic,' RFC Head Says; Lea Drafts House Measure

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation indorsed yesterday major provisions of a bill by Senators Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, and Truman (Democrat), Missouri, to revise railroad bankruptcy procedure.

Testifying before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, Jones emphasized need for regulation of fees and expenses in receiverships and bankruptcies, contending that "outrageous and ridiculous" fees had been allowed in some railroad receiverships in the past.

"I don't think you can be too drastic on that," he told the committee.

The Wheeler - Truman measure would create a railroad reorganization court to supervise, in conjunction with the Interstate Commerce Commission, railroad reorganizations and equity receiverships. Among other powers, the court would have authority to limit fees and expenses.

Col. H. O. Williard Funeral Today; Hero of 1898

Col. Harry O. Williard, hero of the Spanish-American and Indian Wars, died at Lewistown, Mont., April 26, the War Department was notified yesterday. He will be buried in Arlington at 11 o'clock this morning.

Born in Ohio, September 1, 1871, Col. Williard was graduated from West Point in 1896. He commanded a Cavalry troop at Las Guasimas and San Juan in 1898, being cited for gallantry in action and awarded the Silver Star decoration with oak leaf cluster. He saw action against Navajo Indians in 1907 and was specially commended by President Theodore Roosevelt for his work.

Again in 1909, he participated in an expedition against the Navajos and during the Mexican Punitive Expedition led American troops in the skirmish at Las Vasas Pass. He retired in 1922. His wife and a son, Harry O. Williard, jr., survive.

Copyright Office Denies Revision of newspaper Rules

Copyright Office officials said today that no rules or regulations had been issude covering the registration of copyrighted newspaper articles.

The requirement that a story published with a copyright notice must be registered and a $2 fee paid, promptly after the story appears in print, is a requirement of the present copyright act which became law in 1909, it was explained.

Only one registration is required for any specific article published with a copyright notice, no matter in how many newspapers it appears.

Confusion over procedure in registering a copyrighted newspaper article had arisen out of misinterpretations of a recent Supreme Court decision bearing on the subject.

Designer Wins Award on Finger Free Glove
Queen of England Said to Sign Name 'Lizzie'
Midgets Rounded Up for World's Fair

New York, May 1.

FOR THE second year, one of the best Fifth Avenue stores awarded $1,000 prizes and diplomas to the four outstanding American designers of the year — chosen by a smart jury. Two went to Ray Lowey and Walter Teague, industrial designers, and a third to Adrian, the famous dress-maker of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Hollywood. But the fourth was the best. It was young and clever, and as home-grown as deep-dish apple pie.

ALICE HUGHES

The winner was that pretty Columbus, Ohio, girl known now to the trade as "Merry Hull," but whose square name is Gladys Whitcomb Geissmann, whose husband, Bob, is an able artist. Gladys is a pretty creature, but then, all the Whitcombs are fine to look at. Her brother, Jon, an illustrator, and her two sisters, are remarkably fine-looking kids. Glad is in the tradition.

She it was who thought up the Finger Free Glove—that three-dimensional hand-covering which represents the only genunie advances in glove design in hundreds of years. It's barely a year ago that she brought it to me for judgment and advice. Since then two American firms have been licensed to make it, and it is a tremendous success for the glove companies. Gladys, the girl wonder, and of course the consumers. The kid has worked like a slave these past months on new designs, but the result has been worth it. She has taken in a nice chunk of the needful, and has received striking national publicity. A year ago a clever girl with her way to make—today a person known from coast to coast.

Small wonder I was happy at the very fancy luncheon at which the awards were made—to see Gladys march up and get her check and parchment. She certainly deserved it, if anyone ever did. The glove thing is only the beginning for her. Already she is restless, and itching to conquer new worlds in the field of design. And she will, too, without a doubt. I almost felt like a proud mamma, no kidding!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The girl I most envy in the world—Princess Elizabeth of England, because of the thrill she got on her thirteenth birthday when her Queen Mother gave her her first long silk stockings! What a moment! . . . Speaking of her majesty, a local snoop reports that the royal lady signs herself "Lizzie" when writing to bosom pals. Why in heck not?

Speaking of snoops, I think at once of an aptly named British gent who has been visiting around town of late, and looking pretty middling bored at some of our gayest places. The bloke's name is Sir Francis Peek.

DEAR OLD MORRIS GEST, Belasco's son-in-law and a noted producer on his own, rounded up no less than 65 midgets in the Old World and brought them in the other day to live in a village at the Fair. They were held on the Ile de France until bonds of $500 apiece were posted with immigration authorities. Uncle Morrie was dismayed a bit at that. Incidentally, one member of the big party is a normal-sized woman who is married to one of the little people, and who has a midget daughter by him. Local jokesters made much of the gag that the Government wouldn't accept half-sized bonds for the pint-sized folk.

HAW, HAW . . . Now that I have begun to pull myself out of a recent serious illness, a powerful lot of company has been dropping into my igloo. The other night Sam Jaffee, one of my favorite actors and persons, got a night off from working in "The Gentle People" and came in, with his lovely wife, Lillian Taiz, the singer. Sam played Gunga Din himself in the picture of that name, and the million-year-old lama in "Lost Horizons," but his first fine fame came with Kringelein in "The Grand Hotel." Shock-headed, sensitive-looking fellow, beloved by hundreds of friends. A great mathematician, a fine musician, he went in for acting, anyhow.

MY SENTIMENTAL old spouse, Len Hall, deviled Lillian until she sang "With a Song in My Heart," from a musical comedy called "Spring Is Here," which she did on Broadway. Lovely song, lovely girl—so Hall blubbered slightly, overcome with memories. . . . Owing to the flowers I've had, and the visitors, Hall calls me either The Duchess or Mrs. Capone. He's a poor floundering old gentleman.

Calves' Liver In New Guise Is Suggested

My Martha Ellyn.

The Post Food Editor.

TIMES ARE CHANGING! Years ago the butcher threw in a piece of liver for the cat. Now, calves liver is considered a real delicacy and is priced accordingly. If you feel listless, or if the rapidly growing children look a little pale and seem tired, perhaps there is a lack of iron in the diet. Liver is an excellent source of iron and contains copper which aids in the utilization of iron and should have a regular place in the diet.

There are many vays of preparing liver, so, if the family has grown tired of it served one way, try a new recipe or a new combination. Liver may be broiled, braised or fried in fat, and is interesting when made into liver timbales or liver patties.

LIVER TIMBALES

Add 1 cup of milk to 1 cup dry bread crumbs and cook to a smooth paste. Add 1 cup cooked ground liver, 4 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, and 2 egg yolks. Then fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Fill slightly greased molds three-fourths full. Set in pan of hot water and bake for 1 hour at 350 degrees.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Deserted by Wife Whose Expensive Tastes Led Him To Embezzle Funds, Husband Wants Her Back

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Six years ago I was responsible for breaking up an engagement between my wife and her former boy friend. He had much more to his advantage than I—in the form of wealth, educational background and social standing. But my wife did not love him and broke her engagement with him, against her parents' wishes, and married me. (We were both past 25.)

During the next four years, we lived in what I believed to be completed happiness. Both of us worked, and my wife's every wish or desire was to me a command. I saw to it that she had everything and wanted nothing. During the fifth year of our marriage, business was exceedingly poor and as my wife's demands increased, the financial situation became more acute, with the result that, in order to satisfy her demands, I used funds that were not mine. Like so many others, it was my belief that I could restore the money as business recovered.

I explained to my wife that we must lower our standard of living for a while, until the financial situation had adjusted itself. But her attitude was that you can live high if you work harder and demand more. Of course, this was impossible in my business . . . Naturally, she had no idea of my situation and I did not go into detail, for I believed at the time that the problem was mine, although I see differently now.

The climax was reached a few months ago, when my wife found out about the embezzlement. Although the persons involved were more than willing to co-operate in the matter of repayment, my wife severed all connection with me, stating that her love had died; that she was through; that there was no possibility of reconciliation and that the only decent thing I could do would be to grant her a divorce. But her parents, who had come to know me as a good and devoted husband during the years of our marriage, do not want us to break up.

I might add that my wife has intimated, on occasion, that she demands the best, and at any cost. She has admitted that she is selfish and self-centered and that if I could not give her everything she wanted, I was of no use to her. We do foolish things when we love devotedly, and although I feel that I am at fault for being weak enough to do the thing I did, I have been deeply hurt by my wife's reaction in casting me aside, when what I did was entirely for her. Strangely enough, I am still in love with her, after all that has taken place. What do you think would be best for me to do? UNWISE.

Vampire's Behavior

DEAR UNWISE: It is futile to speculate on what is "best to do," when the decision is already out of one's hands. Your wife, running true to type (and a philosophy of life which she has never denied), has abandoned you, not without justification — thereby leaving you no choice but to do what will prove, I think, to be "best" for you in the final analysis, whether you like it or not. Like a vampire, she has brought you to a "debased and impoverished condition" (see Webster's explanation), and like a vampire, she now has no further use for you (her own words!). What greater folly could be imagined than that of your continuing to cling to her?

And what greater wisdom than to conclude, with Shakespeare, that "the fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, but in ourselves, that we are underlings—," when we yield to (not to mention invite) exploitation at the hands of rapacious, ruthless personalities? It has been said that experience keeps a dear school, but fools will learn in no other. You have (or should have, by now) learned a bitter lesson in the school of experience which should stand you instead for a lifetime, namely, that when a man risks his honor, he risks his all, with every chance of losing all. If your erstwhile rather weak and unformed character isn't hammered into a firmer and better mold, fit for finer usages, as a result of this bitter trial, then you are slated for the scrap heap of human flotsam and jetsam—and no one could blame even the finest woman for cutting adrift from you.

If you are so devoid of character, courage, common sense and the self-preservative instinct, as to be willing to continue as a slave of desire in the service of a creature who has demonstrated that she is ready to toss you callously to the wolves, then you must be rated one notch lower in the scale of human worth than she—and that is pretty low. In view of what has happened, the only proof you could possibly supply that you are fundamentally worth-while would be the heroic gesture of overcoming your emotional dependence upon this woman, who has shown that she counts your honor and happiness as nothing, in comparison to the importance of gratifying her own selfishness and vanity.

More fortunately for you than you realize, just now, she has put you in the position of having to pull yourself together and go on without her. Moreover, she has given you the measure of a feminine personality to be avoided like poison in the future. If you would justify her parents' belief in your essential manliness, and the similar vote of confidence which those you have defrauded have likewise placed in you—through being "more than willing to co-operate in the matter of repayment"—then close the book of your marriage as though it had never been, let her have a divorce, cut down your living expenses until you are square with the world, and look around thereafter for a woman who will make you a nobler helpmeet than this one could ever be. M. H.

Summer Furniture Bargain Is Not Just Low in Price

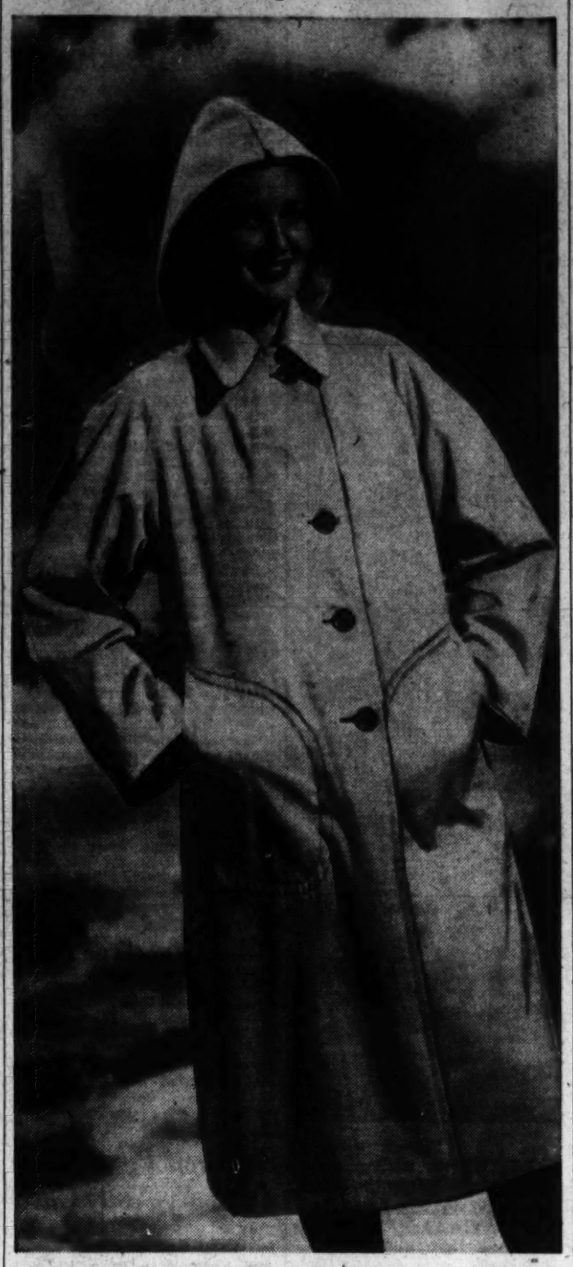
By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WHAT IS a bargain, anyway? Well, there one thing we're sure about—it's not just a low price. Take our Spring suit, for instance . . . or the lacy white iron furniture we're coveting for the lawn. We could wait till July or August and pick them up for a song in the clearances. But alack-aday, we'd be doing without all during the spring and early summer when we'd really enjoy them most. So with a leer at the budget, we're going to splurge on some summer furniture.

White metal still leads in popularity—a light and lacy wrought iron in designs of scrolls, bowkonts, leaves and lattice panels (that look like metal cane). If you want something with a little more side to it, then consider these same wrought iron pieces in other finishes such as antique green, terra cotta or rusty black. Or else use white with bright cushions (turquoise, yellow, jade or red). This metal furniture has weather resistant finish that doesn't chip or rust. Our heart's desire is a table of this type with a plate glass top.

The next best bet in summer furniture is ratten. And that's smarter this season if you choose it in a pickled pine finish. Very handsome indeed with this are beige cushions, but light green cushions are pretty enough too. Bridge sets, tea wagons, canopied chaise longues, long sofas, deep easy chairs, or outdoor dining tables—these are the pieces to ponder over in rattan.

May Preparedness



Despite the reputation April has for showers, May often runs up a higher record for rainfall. Consequently, it would be well to be prepared for coming rainy days in the neatly tailored coat above. The fabric is hurricane cloth, which means that even a typhoon couldn't injure the permanent finish of its water repellent surface. Luscious shades of South Sea blue, sand or new tile have been used for the raincoat's side while the Donegal tweed on the reverse is black and white or brown. The clever zippered hood, the raglan cut, and the patch pockets make this outfit becoming in the worst cloudburst

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain.

Beauty Parlor Alone Won't Provide Pulchritude Developing Figure to Normal Weight, Important Average Woman Is 16 Pounds Too Heavy

AS IF Uncle Sam didn't have enough on his hands, Miss Loretta Young, the movie star, has come out with the suggestion that he undertake to turn 10,000,000 homely women into beauties. She contends that roads, dams and bridges are not nearly as important as pretty faces.

"Turning homely girls into beauties," Miss Young is reported to have said in a recent interview, "is a far more important project than building a battleship, and it wouldn't cost as much." In Miss Young's opinion, the cost of this mass beauty treatment would be counterbalanced by the millions saved in the divorce courts.

We can't see how it would work out that way because, so far as we know, the Government is not losing any money in the divorce courts. But the real drawback would be if Uncle Sam did go into the beauty business he wouldn't have very much time for anything else, and there are a few little things that seem to require his attention.

It's a Problem

Besides, you can lead a woman to a beauty parlor but you can't make her exercise, and although Miss Young modestly refrained from mention of her own slender figure, she would not be a movie star if she didn't have it.

You may have observed that a good percentage of the women who do frequent the beauty parlors are not nearly as attractive as they might be. That is because the biggest detractor from the average woman's appearance is the fact that she is far above normal weight. According to life insurance statistics, the average woman weighs 16 pounds more than she is entitled to weigh. But since the survey does not include the excessively overweight woman, the estimated 16 pounds is an understatement.

Then, again, only about 5 per cent of the women in the United States have beautiful postures, so it's no wonder the woman who stands and walks beautifully stands out from the crowd. But the Government could not regulate posture. That is something that is strictly up to the individual.

Beauty is so much more than a pretty face! It's a composite: normal weight, an erect and graceful carriage, beautiful, well-brushed hair, and a clear complexion seem to be the most important factors, and they are the things you have to attend to yourself. In Hollywood, where beauty is a girl's business, those are the factors that are given the most time and attention. Even if she had the time, the average woman would not be willing to devote as much effort to her appearance as the movie star does, but just a little consideration to diet and exercise makes an amazing difference in looks, efficiency and health.

Should Be Attractive

Miss Young is right in her contention that the woman who feels her best can do her best work. And, other things being equal, the ones who look their best probably get more fun out of life, and I agree that women owe it to themselves to be as attractive as possible—but the burden of the responsibility falls on the individual, not on Uncle Sam!

Glycerin Will Keeep Patent Leather Shiny

Patent leather accessories may be kept shiny and new looking by an occassional rub over with glycerin. Apply the glycerin with a clean cloth. Not only does the glycerin keep the patent belts, lapel gadgets, boutonnieres, hat trimmings free from dust but it prevents the patent from becoming too dry and eventually cracking.

DeGoofey Platform

The Do Something About It League, whose president and founder is Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, may be a factor in the 1940 Presidential campaign. At her press conference yesterday, Mrs. DeGoofey announced she had several political alignments in view. She also reiterated her league's platform.

Mrs. De Goofey

"I have just received a letter," said Mrs. DeGoofey, "from an organization known as the Association for Advancement, whose headquarters are 11 Maple avenue, Hyattsville, Md. I find that this association, founded April 18, 1938, has similar aims to the Do Something About It League and I hope our groups may work together—especially now that a political campaign is in the offing.

"The Association for Advancement states that it has passed resolutions as follows:

"For the elimination of all hairdressers who insist on the upturn hair-do—no method of procedure in the act being prescribed, but with the recommendation that the sooner the deed is done the better.

Constructive Aims For Right Thinkers

"For the absolute prohibition of the display of kodak picture albums or home movies at meetings.

"For the ruthless disposal of the 'louse' who leaves an empty matchholder available for smoking guests.

"For a general educational campaign to inculcate greater civic spirit among birds.

"The Association for Advancement has also sent suggestions for the disposal of empty plates at buffet suppers, which is the subject of a contest I recently announced. Here are some of them:

"Have plates made of edible pie crust.

"Have sink with running water at end of buffet table and let each guest rinse his plate, thus providing a clean plate for the next guest.

"Have Chesapeake Bay retrievers that have been trained to gather plates, circulating through the room.

"Have guests place used plates on window ledges and let the birds do the rest.

"Serve food in boxes so guests may take it home and enjoy it in comfort.

"Now I want to say that I am very glad to receive these suggestions and I am most happy to learn of the great work the Association for Advancement is carrying on. The Do Something About It League, whose organization I announced in this column March 21, 1938, hopes to co-operate with this and all similar groups.

Major Issues Of Campaign

"At this time I want to restate the program of the Do Something About It League, which, as I said in my first announcement, is designed to 'take drastic action against the petty annoyances of life,' especially those that relate to women. Here are some of the planks in our platform:

"We stand for the complete abolishment of the overnight guest.

"We ask that all women shoppers be made to pass intelligence tests and be given licenses before being permitted downtown. Also that no men shoppers be permitted in department stores.

"We demand the abolition of the 'large tea,' or, failing that, its complete overhauling.

"We stand flatfootedly against oratory a la mode at banquets or the introduction of officers or honor guests.

"We ask for the removal of slick, fancy embroidered Christmas gift guest towels from bathrooms.

"We recommend pogroms for women radio speakers with little girl voices, for men announcers who think they are putting sex appeal in their tones, for women in theaters who won't take off their hats, for men in streetcars and buses who straddle over three-fourths of the seats and for all writers of maudlin greeting card verse.

"We demand a reform of women's conventions with less reports and more hi-de-ho.

"Now, of course, we expect to add to this platform as emergencies arise——"

"Just a minute, Mrs. DeGoofey," interrupted a reporter, "is the report true that you are planning to run for President in 1940?"

"We-ll, you may quote me as saying—and by the way, Sepia's have a new pose of me in my new green sequin evening gown—that I do not choose to run—unless, of course, I should feel that my country needed me."

Ten Hats Cited By Singer as Wardrobe Need

Jean Tennyson Named Ideal Type For Chapeaux

Ten hats constitute the proper millinery wardrobe for a woman, in the opinion of Jean Tennyson, blonde Chicago Opera prima donna, who has been chosen "America's Ideal Hat Type" by the fashion committee of the Millinery Merchandising Executive Association. The award will be made at a luncheon today at the Walfdorf Astoria in New York by Miss Virginia Pope, fashion editor of the New York Times and head of the fashion merchandising clinic of the association.

Miss Tennyson concentrates on hats in her dressing because she says the hat will do more than any other article of apparel to create a mood.

Ten Hats In Closet

"Even if I skimp on shoes and dresses I always have at least ten hat in my closet," she said, and every one gets worn regularly. I know there are at least ten different situations for which a special kind of hat is a good idea.

The Chicago prima donna, who the milliners decided was the type that "could wear any hat and look well in it," lists her own ten hats as follows:

"First, the basic hat, the good-looking classic felt, usually in some neutral tone to go with most of my daytime clothes.

"Second the rainy day hat in which I concentrate on color to offset the drabness of the day and which changes the ordinary raincoat into a 'costume.'

Dramatic Entrance

"Third, fourth and fifth are the hats I wear for afternoon affairs. The third hat is my dramatic entrance one and is always the craziest one in my wardrobe, calculated to catch every feminine eye the minute I walk in a room.

"The fourth is slightly modified, for there are days when you just don't feel up to wearing a trying hat no matter how smart it is.

"The fifth is to wear for both men and women, as it is designed to flatter and make me look at my best. It is usually navy touched up with a bit of white which makes an unbeatable combination.

Modified for Gay Moments

"Sixth is my 'jeune fille' hat to wear when I am gay and bubbling over. It is usually the modified bonnet style with streamers under the chin.

"Seventh is my siren hat for dinner dates, black usually with wicked wide brim.

Eighth is a wide brimmed one, straw in summer, felt or velvet in winter, a hat that gives you a feeling of queenliness.

"Ninth is my devil-may-care hat, a perky little number to wear when I feel in the mood for going to the circus or a shooting gallery

"Tenth is my demure hat, tiny, usually of flowers and with a tiny veil. It is for the clinging vine or fragile mood—a grand hat to wear for men."

Cowboy Songs Add Gayety

FOR REAL fun, sing the songs of the cowboy. Shyness vanishes, you feel like you're ridin' to the round-up yourself as you join the crowd in the favorite "Git Along, Little Dogies":

"Whoopee ti-yi-yo,
Git along little dogies,
It's your misfortune and none of my own.
Whoopee ti-yi-yo,
Git along little dogies,
For you know Wyoming will be your new home."

On parties, dates, get out the songbooks—and take turns picking tunes. Many will like "Red River Valley":

"Come and sit by my side if you love me.
Do not hasten to bid me adieu;
But remember the Red River Valley
And the girl that has loved you so true."

And here's one that calls for good old-fashioned feeling:

"O bury me not on the lone prairie,
These words came low and mournfully,
From the pallid lips of a youth who lay
On his dying bed at the close of day."

Get into the swing with heart-warming Western songs. Our 50-page songbook, "Western Heart Throbs, has 27 surefire hits—cowboy favorites, ballads of the plains. Complete with words, music, piano accompaniments, guitar diagrams. Easy to sing and play.

Send 15c in coins for our songbook, "Western Heart Throbs," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of book.

Mlle. Eve Curie to Visit Washington Next Week

Both Count Potocki and Count de St. Quentin Will Entertain for Half-French, Half-Polish Daughter of Scientist; Other Europeans Here

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

MLLE. EVE CURIE, whose visit to Washington has been eagerly anticipated ever since she came to this country early in March, has at last set the date of her arrival. She has made one quick trip to the Capital, stayed overnight at the White House and then slipped out of town before many people knew she was here, but she will be back again Wednesday, May 10, for a short stay.

Since she is half French and half Polish (her famous mother, the late Mme. Marie Sklodowska Curie, was born in Warsaw), Mlle. Curie will be feted with appropriate fanfare by both the Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki, and the French Ambassador, Count Rene de Saint Quentin. She will stay at the Polish Embassy and will be guest of honor at a dinner given there on May 11. As has already been announced, she will be feted at a dinner at the French Embassy on May 10.

According to present plans, Mlle. Curie will leave Washington early on the morning of May 12, going to New York, and will sail from there for France the following day.

Meanwhile, the calendar for the Polish Ambassador, who is now in New York, continues to be crowded. Tomorrow he will be present when the Polish pavilion at the New York World's Fair is officially opened. The ceremony will be part of a Polish national holiday marking the anniversary of the founding of the first Polish constitution.

Count Potocki is expected to return to Washington the latter part of the week and next Monday he will entertain at a dinner and reception in honor of three of his distinguished countrymen and their wives—the Minister of Industry and Commerce and Mme. Roman; the Vice Minister of Communications and Mme. Bobkowski, and the Minister of Foreign Affairs and Mme. Zaleski. The company will arrive in New York today on the Batory and will come to Washington next Monday to stay until Friday. Mme. Roman, Mme. Bobkowski and Mme. Zaleski will be tea guests of Mrs. Roosevelt on Thursday, May 11, and a number of other parties are being planned for them.

French Envoy Fetes Parliament Members

The French Ambassador, who returned yesterday from New York, where he attended opening ceremonies of the World's Fair, was host last evening at a dinner given in honor of several members of the French Parliament, who arrived yesterday afternoon for a two-day visit and are staying at the Wardman Park Hotel.

The company, which came to this country especially to attend the exhibition, were with the Ambassador at the initial ceremonies on Sunday and came with him to Washington. Last evening's dinner, which was a stag affair, included among the guests several Representatives from Congress and the press.

The French Parliament members present were M. Jones, Depute des Alpes Maritimes; M. Paul Campargue, Depute de l'Yonne; N. Louis Dubosc, Depute du Gers; M. Fourcault de Pavant, Depute de Seine et Oise; M. Henri Gerente, Depute de Haute-Savoie; M. Coulandon, Depute du Puy de Dome, and M. Roger Benenson.

Two Senators Are Among the Guests

Senator James E. Murray, of Montana; Senator Theodore F. Green, of Rhode Island; Representative Richard B. Wigglesworth and Representative Robert L. Mouton were others on the dinner list, which also included Barnet Nover, Constantine Brown, and Jean Baube, French newspaper correspondent, and the following members of the French Embassy staff: Jacques Truelle, Minister-Counselor; Col. Emmanuel Lombard, Military Attache; Lieut. Col. Rene Weiser, Air Attache; Jacques Dumaine, James Baeyens and Charles Lucet.

SOCIETY - GO - ROUND: Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill have chosen June 9 as the date of the tea at which their daughter, Miss Rosemary Merrill, will make her bow to society . . . Rumor is going the rounds that Mrs. Roosevelt has invited Mayris Chaney, her dancing protege, to appear on the program following the State dinner being planned for Great Britain's King and Queen . . . The Minister of Rumania and Mme. Irimescu, who are in New York, will remain there until Sunday. On Friday at 11 o'clock the Minister will take part in the ceremony officially opening the Rumanian pavilion at the World's Fair. A large luncheon will follow and that evening there will be a concert, both events taking place at the pavilion . . . Miss Sibella Skidelsky will leave tomorrow for a week's stay in New York, where she will join her stepfather and mother, the Minister of Portugal and Mme. Bianchi . . . The Congressional contingent's trip to the opening of the New York World's Fair on Sunday, mentioned in some accounts as a junket, wasn't at all. Organized and managed by Representative Sol Bloom, it was financed by the board of directors of the fair.

Bride-Elect to Make Southern Visit

Hessler Studio.

Miss Mary Tyler McCormack, whose engagement to William Nelson Wilbur, of Warrenton, Va., has been recently announced, will attend the Gold Cup race in Warrenton this week-end and then will go on to Kentucky for a visit before returning to her home in Washington. Miss McCormack and her mother, Mrs. M. Tyler McCormack recently returned to Washington following a winter spent in the South, where they visited San Antonio, Monterey, New Orleans, Mobile and Natchez

Lieut. McCoach Wed in Oakland

Although accounts of the marriage of Miss Rosemary Hays, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm R. Hays, of Oakland, Calif., and Lieut. David McCoach 3d have appeared in newspapers on the West Coast, formal announcement of the wedding is just now being made in Washington, where Col. David McCoach, father of the bridegroom, is District Engineer Commissioner.

The quiet ceremony, originally planned for later in the season, took place in the Presbyterian Church in Oakland, on February 25. At the conclusion of Lieut. McCoach's engineering course at the University of California this month, he and his bride will come to Fort Belvoir, Va., where he will be stationed. A graduate of the United States Military Academy, class of 1936, Lieut. McCoach has been on detached service while he has been completing his current course.

The former Miss Rosemary Hays is descendant of a prominent Georgia family. She was graduated from the University of California in 1934 and later took a business course. She is a member of Alpha Chi Omega Sorority. Her father is with the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco.

Betrothal Told

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Wood Connick, of this city, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Willie May Connick, to Earl Frederick Hennings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Hennings, of Marshall Hall, Maryland. The wedding will take place the latter part of this month.

Robert Taft, Jr., To Wed Miss Noel In New York June 27

Miss Blanca Noel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Noel, of New York, has selected June 27 as the date for her wedding to Robert Taft, jr., son of Senator and Mrs. Robert Taft, of Cincinnati and Washington.

The ceremony will take place in St. James Church in New York. Mr. Taft is a grandson of Mrs. William Howard Taft, of Washington, and the late President Taft. He is a graduate of the Taft School and will graduate from Yale this June.

Miss Noel atended the Bradley School here, the Ethel Walker School at Simsbury, Conn., and Bryn Mawr College.

Mrs. Robson Brown Hostess at Shoreham

Mrs. Robson D. Brown, of Hartford, Conn., who is staying at the Shoreham, entertained at luncheon in the Louis Seize room of the hotel yesterday in honor of Mrs. Hadley F. Freeman, of Cleveland.

Other guests were Mrs. Samuel Spruce, Mrs. James Greear, Mrs. Charles P. Trussell, Miss Ruth McGowan, Mrs. Benjamin M. McKelway, Mrs. Lewis F. Colbert, Mrs. Charles W. Mitchell, Mrs. A. Lee Thompson, Mrs. Bruce Handy, Mrs Oscar Matthews and Mrs. W. A. Eccleston.

Mrs. Douglas Entertained

Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of the Supreme Court Justice, was the ranking guest at a luncheon that Mrs. Robert E. Healy gave yesterday in the Shoreham. Covers were laid for 32.

G. T. Krohns To Live in N. J.

Returning from a Southern journey, the Rev. Gerald T. Krohn and Mrs. Krohn will proceed to Succasunna, N. J., where they will be at home in the manse of the Presbyterian Church after May 15. Mrs. Krohn before her marriage on April 26 in Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church was Miss Marjorie Grinstead, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Grinstead, of Morrison street, Chevy Chase. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Hillman Hollister, and Mrs. George Fraser played the wedding music.

The bride wore a white lace gown cut on princess lines, the skirt open in redingote fashion over a slip of white satin. The tight-fitting bodice was trimmed with Peter Pan collar and tiny satin buttons. The long tight-fitting sleeves were puffed at the shoulder. The tulle veil was draped from a coronet of seed pearls. Her flowers were gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The bride's cousin, Miss Lois Ernest, of Washington, was maid of honor. Her pink net frock was made with an underskirt of net, trimmed in blue ribbons, the neck of the bodice square and short puffed sleeves. The wide-brimmed pink horsehair hat was trimmed in blue velvet ribbon matching the blue on the underskirt. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and delphinium.

Two of the bridesmaids, Miss Leora Sanford and Miss Elizabeth Marsden, wore similar lace frocks of pale blue, with pink ribbons on underskirt and wide-brimmed hats. Their flowers were pink sweet peas and cream roses. The other two attendants, Mrs. Haylett Shaw, of Chicago, and Miss Eleanor Kephart, wore dresses of chartreuse trimmed in a lavender blue ribbon. Their flowers were lavender sweet peas and tea roses.

The best man was Henry Kuizenga, of Maplewood, N. J., and the ushers Adolph Behrenberg, Pittsburgh; Edward Goodrich, Hyattsville; G. Hall Todd, Princeton, and Ralph Hill, Washington.

There was a reception for the wedding party and out-of-town guests, at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Emil T. Krohn, who came from Shelby, Iowa, for their son's wedding, also assisted in receiving. Later, Rev. and Mrs. Krohn departed. The latter wore a Navy redingote over a dress of navy and chartreuse print, with hat and accessories of chartreuse.

De Escalantes Return to Capital From N. Y. Today

The Venezuelan Ambassador and Senora de Escalante will return to Washington today, accompanied by the Counselor of the Embassy and Senora de Fombona-Pachano, who arrived yesterday on the Santa Rosa from their homeland.

The Ambassador and Senora de Escalante have been in New York since last week and were present at the formal opening of the World's Fair Sunday.

Senor and Senora de Fombona-Pachano have been on leave for some time, but were here during the winter while Senor Escalante attended the Pan-American Conference in Peru. After that, they returned to their homeland to complete their vacation.

Finnish Visitors To Be Guests At White House

Tonight's Concert Will Be Notable Diplomatic Event

The Minister of Finland, Hjalmar J. Procope, and three directors of the famous Finlandia Male Chorus will be received at tea at the White House this afternoon when they will present a beautiful Finnish cut crystal bowl as a gift to Mrs. Roosevelt. In the absence of the First Lady, it will be received by Mrs. James M. Helm, who will entertain the group at tea.

The concert featuring the Finlandia chorus at Constitution Hall this evening promises to be an unusually interesting event, drawing official and diplomatic notables in droves. Following the concert, the Minister will entertain at a large reception at the Mayflower Hotel, where another program will be given, featuring two well-known stars of Finland's concert stage.

Mme. Aune Varmavuori-Poijarvi, whose husband is assistant conductor of the chorus, has given several concerts in her native land. Mrs. Saga Krogius, mezzo soprano, has appeared on the concert stage both in Finland and in Berlin, where she was a soloist with the Berlin Symphony Orchestra and achieved wide acclaim as a "lieder" singer. Both these singers have assisted at the symphony orchestra's concerts in their own country and will appear on the program at the reception.

Another feature of the entertainment at the Mayflower will be a recitation or two given by Mrs. Elli Tompuri, whom the Finnish commission for the New York World's Fair invited to perform in connection with the opening of the Finnish exhibit on Thursday. Mrs. Tompuri, who formerly had a successful stage career, is known as the best interpreter of the Finnish national epic, Kalevala. Still another artist who will entertain guests at the reception is Miss Karttu Vanne, young Finnish violinist and composer, who is known throughout Europe as a concert star of the first rank.

H. B. Bells Hold Farewell Party At Army-Navy Club

Lieut. Harman Brown Bell, jr., U. S. N., and Mrs. Bell entertained yesterday at a farewell reception and tea at the Army and Navy Country Club prior to their departure for the West Coast.

Receiving with Lieut. and Mrs. Bell from 5 to 7 yesterday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Harman Brown Bell, senior. Generally assisting during the afternoon were Mrs. C. F. Holden, Mrs. E. C. Craig and Mrs. P. H. Toberman.

Lieut. and Mrs. Bell and their children, Suzanne Jack and Harman Brown Bell 3d, will leave in three weeks for Long Beach, Calif., where Lieut. Bell will be attached to the U. S. S. New Mexico.

Clayton Hunnings On Bridal Trip

Now on a honeymoon trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Fleming Hunnings will make their home, after May 15, in Latrobe, Pa. The bride formerly was Miss Mary Esther Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Thompson, of Pittsburgh. She and Mr. Hunnings were married here Saturday morning in the Westminster Church Memorial manse, with the Rev. Harry V. Porter officiating.

Mr. Hunnings is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Hunnings, former residents of Washington, who now make their home in Avon Park, Fla.

Following the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast at the home of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Alice Hunnings Robinson. Several out of town guests were present, including Mrs. W. F. Hoene, of Baltimore; Mrs. C. E. Smith, Miss Betty Smith and Miss Caroline Smith, of Fairmont, W. Va., and Edward Miller Thompson, of Pittsburgh, brother of the bride.

Sra. de Castillo Najera And Son Return Here

Crown Prince Olav of Norway to Race American Yachtsmen Off Long Island

CROWN PRINCE Olav of Norway, whom a press release from the Norwegian Legation describes as "the type of a Nordic out-of-door man," has two of his 6-meter yachts over here with him, and has expressed the hope that he can do some racing with Long Island Sound yachtsmen. An enthusiastic skipper, he likes to sandpaper and paint his boat like any other old salt.

The Prince will race with a group of Americans off the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club if the events are arranged before July 6, the date of his departure. The State Department is still working over plans for his visit to Washington the end of June, the Danish and the British royal schedule having a prior claim, as they arrive sooner. To judge by the newspapers, Prince Olav has one of the most engaging smiles seen on visiting royalty since the Duke of Windsor paid us visits when he was Prince of Wales.

NOT FOR YEARS have lion hunting hostesses had such an opportunity to embellish their parties with celebrities as this spring. It is even difficult to get reservations on ships sailing from Europe this year, so loaded are the passenger lists with people coming to the World's Fair. Among those who arrived yesterday in New York on the Normandie are Francois de Tessan, French Deputy and former Undersecretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Prince Mohammed Ali Ibrahim, uncle of the King of Egypt. M. de Tessan, who is a personal friend of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, will pay Washington a visit, and the Egyptian Minister is now conferring in New York with Prince Mohammed about a possible stay in the Capital. The King of Egypt seems to have a great many uncles, and one of them did a painting which was shipped here last winter to hang in the legation on Sheridan Circle.

IT TAKES a bachelor to invite 60-odd people to a buffet luncheon in a not-too-large house, as Jack Segar did on Sunday, and have everything run smoothly. Men never seem bothered by details or get that harassed "hostess" look on their faces.

Everybody at Mr. Segar's luncheon sat on the floor or perched on the arms of chairs with the exception of Patricia Griffin, who ate her lunch sitting under a table in the living room. A strolling accordionist went from room to room playing the latest hits, and Elise Hill abandoned her lunch to lead some singing. Around her neck Miss Hill had wrapped one of the new fishnet scarves which are enjoying such a vogue that the fishermen of the country are complaining that there's not enough netting left for their season's haul.

Others present were Maisie Howard, in a salmon colored wool suit; Ann Wilkinson, who wore a tailored one, navy blue; Emily Davis, in a sweater and skirt; Ruth Sowers, Alice Barry and Emily Meyers. Carlyle Porter, who came out here several seasons ago, and now lives in Philadelphia, sat on a sofa and compared notes with Ruth Dove. Carlyle spent the week-end here. Yolande de Mauduit, another guest, said she had a job this summer teaching riding at a girls' camp.

PARTY NOTES: the Naval Attache of the French Embassy and Mme. Benech are planning a buffet supper for Wednesday evening, May 17 . . . Mrs. Walter Louchheim will give a cocktail party tomorrow for Miss Polly Ehrlich, of Brookline, Mass.

MRS. JOHN FARR SIMMONS is in town for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hustor. Thompson. She will leave next week to return to Ottawa in time for the festivities for the King and Queen of England, who arrive there May 16.

Mr. Simmons is Charge d'Affaires of the United States Legation in Ottawa. Seen at tea yesterday, Mrs. Simmons looked very smart in a black and white print and silver fox furs.

educated in the South. She has spent the past three years in Washington, where she is a popular member of the younger set.

Mr. Peter is the son of Walter G. Peter, of Georgetown, and the late Ellen Beale Peter. He was graduated from the Architectural School of George Washington University and is at present connected with the Architectural Department of the Procurement Division.

Mrs. Elston Entertains For Mrs. Geo. Hoadley

Mrs. Charles H. Elston, wife of Representative Elston, of Ohio, entertained informally at luncheon yesterday in the Colonial room of Wardman Park Hotel, in honor of Mrs. George Hoadley, of Cincinnati, Ohio, a prominent clubwoman visiting in Washington for several days.

Mrs. Elston's other guests were Mrs. Robert A. Taft, wife of Senator Taft, and Mrs. William E. Hess, wife of Representative Hess.

Shouses to Hold Carnival June 3

Early June will be a busy time in Washington society, but chances are other events will be skipped by a sizable section of Capital notables on the evening of Saturday, June 3, while they attend the carnival of Wolf Trap Farm, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse.

Arranged as a benefit party for occupational research connected with the Institute of Women's Professional Relations, the event will have a number of "fun features" and will include a country supper. Turner Catledge is on the program for a platform stunt, as is Mrs. Jay Hayden, one of Washington's most accomplished non-professional entertainers.

Mrs. Edgar Prochnik will be in charge of the "taxi dancers" for the event. William P. MacCracken and Ewing Laporte will manage the horse races, and Mrs. Harold Sims will look after the ring toss table. Mrs. Lawrence Baker and George Garrett are others who will be in charge of stunt features. Buggy rides, fortune telling, square dancing and "regular" dancing will be other items on the "Have Fun" program.

Son Is Born Here To F. F. Chesleys

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Francis Chesley announce the birth of a son, Frederic Francis Chesley, jr., on Thursday, April 27, at Columbia Hospital.

Mrs. Chesley, the former Miss Nelle Offutt, was presented to society in Chicago, first at a tea given by her aunt, Mrs. Nelson Thomasson, jr., and then at a dinner dance by her mother, Mrs. Ellwood Offutt, of Chicago. Frederic Chesley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby Chesley, of Washington.

Newspaper Women Hold Housewarming

Distinguished Guests Attend Reception At Club's New Headquarters; Visitors Are Welcomed by Miss Katharine Brooks

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

A formal housewarming marked the opening of the new headquarters of the Newspaper Women's Club of Washington last night at the Raleigh Hotel.

Members and their guests were received in the new clubroom by Miss Katharine Brooks, first vice president, and other officers. Miss Brooks, who is also unopposed candidate for club president, to succeed Mrs. Ned Brunson Harris, received last night as Mrs. Harris is still in the hospital recovering from an accident she suffered some week ago.

Miss Brooks' gown was rose-colored satin, made with a little jacket. Her mother, Mrs. Kate Scott Brooks, who was also present, wore black with a necklace and brooch of coral.

The club room was attractively furnished and the walls were hung with the pictures of women prominent in official and diplomatic circles, either associate members of the club or those who have been honor guests at its parties.

Supper was served in the Elizabethan Room of the hotel, and across the hall there was chamber music during the reception by a trio composed of Miss Elena de Sayn, violinist; the Rev. Hugh D. O'Neill, cellist, and Herbert Herzfeld, pianist.

Among guests present were the Minister of Eire, Mrs. Robert Brennan, accompanied by Frank Gallagher, a press correspondent who recently arrived from Ireland.

Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, wearing a gown of black trimmed in gold sequins, was chatting with Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, author and editor of the National Historical Magazine of the D. A. R. Mrs. Henry Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, who joined their group, was gowned in a becoming frock of boy blue, made with a jacket.

Among other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Morley, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Representative and Mrs. Herron Pearson, Representative and Mrs. Charles F. McLaughlin, Edwin A. Harriman, whose wife, an associate member of the club, was unable to be present last night; Mrs. August P. Eberly, who had as her guests Mrs. Fred Kelley, Miss Jane Hastings, Paul Lazar and Bernard Duncan; Col. and Mrs. William Shearer, and Joseph McCord, author and newspaper writer, who were guests of Miss Helene Kravatz; Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, Mrs. Charles M. Lean and Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose.

The Newspaper Women's Club, founded nearly seven years ago, was organized by a few women on local newspapers, who restricted its active membership to women writers doing actual newspaper work. An innovation was its associate membership, composed of women interested in the newspaper profession and those coming in close contact with the women of the press.

Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Coolidge are the club's honorary members. Included in its associate membership list are also wives of Cabinet officers, diplomatic hostesses, wives of Congressional leaders, women members of Congress, heads of patriotic organizations and women notable for personal achievement.

The first headquarters of the club was in the old Elsemere Hotel, the site of which is now occupied by the Trans-Lux Building. It moved from there to the Admiral, where it maintained headquarters for two years, and now to the Hotel Raleigh, which is centrally located and more convenient for its many members.

Washington Club Will Hear Nolan On Future Parks

The first of a series of nature study lectures will be given this morning at the Washington Club by John Nolan, jr., assistant to Col. Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the Park and Planning Commission of the Washington region. His subject will be "Future Parks of the Washington Region."

The three other lectures to be given on successive Tuesdays in May will be by Miss Margaret Jones of the American Forestry Association on "Trail Riders of the Wilderness;" Dr. Harry C. Oberholser of the U. S. Biological Survey, on "Bird Sanctuary Magic," and Dr. Homer L. Shantz the U. S. Forestry Service on "Wild Animals of Our National Forests."

Mrs. Alfred H. Brooks is chairman of the program for May.

Mrs. Deal Receives President's Gavel at Sunshine Breakfast

Mrs. W. W. Deal, newly elected president of the Sunshine and Community Society, received the gavel yesterday from Mrs. Charles H. Bair at the organization's annual breakfast at the Shoreham Hotle. Mrs. Bair has served as president for the last two years.

Nearly 100 members and guests attended the breakfast at which the newly elected officers were introduced and the retiring president was presented a strand of pearls in appreciation of her service to the club.

Other new officers are: Mrs. Frank M. Shortall, first vice president and chairman of yesterday's luncheon; Mrs. Maurice Emerson, second vice president; Mrs. R. King Stone, recording secretary; Mrs. A. T. Reid, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Samuel G. Keery, treasurer; Mrs. Edward Stevens, auditor; Mrs. Henry W. Sawtelle and Mrs. F. J. Mulkern, directors.

The society devotes itself to the philanthropic work for which it was founded more than 25 years ago by Mrs. Ella S. Knight. Mrs. Knight, due to a slight accident a short time ago at the home of her daughter, in Florida, was unable to return to Washington in time for the occasion.

Thomas Ellis Lodge, former president of the District Federation of Citizens' Associations, was the guest speaker at the breakfast. Discussing "Civic Development," he urged elimination of slum areas and efforts to beautify the city.

Music on the program included songs by the new president who is one of the city's widely known sopranos, Charles Haycraft, barytone, also sang and Mrs. Elsie Harvey Weaver was the accompanist. Mrs. William T. Reed led the singing of "America," with which the program opened.

Member of the committee assisting Mrs. Shortall included: Mrs. H. Stewart Boyer, Mrs. T. R. Powers, Mrs. Reid, Mrs. H. A. Matson, Mrs. M. H. Uelsmann, Mrs. J. Noble Hoover, Mrs. Sawtelle, Mrs. Worthington Bean and Mrs. E. L. Burton.

Colonial Dames Council Meets

More than 250 delegates and members of the National Society, Colonial Dames of America, gathered for their twenty-fourth biennial council meeting yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel.

Mrs. Joseph V. Hutchinson, of Brwn Mawr, Pa., president of the national society, was hostess last night at the president's reception to the council. In the afternoon, with members of the board of regents, she received members of the organization at Gunston Hall, historic estate now owned by Louis Hirtle, which will eventually come into the custody of the society.

Following a business session this morning, there will be a garden party at Dumbarton House, in Georgetown, headquarters of the society, and this evening, at the Shoreham, a dinner, celebrating the twentieth anniversary of the National Patriotic Service Committee.

Tomorrow, at 9 a. m., a pilgrimage will be made to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, where the Oregon Society will place a wreath, and in the afternoon a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon. In the evening, a reception willl be given for council members by the Club of Colonial Dames, with Mrs. Hutchinson and her officers as guests of honor Thursday at 4 p. m., the Dames will be received at the White House.

Mrs. Fairfax Harrison is president of the District society. Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, "Aunt Bessie" of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, was among those who registered yesterday.

Miss Howry Heads Boys' Club Aides

Woman's Auxiliary Elects Officers at Annual Meeting

Miss Elizabeth Howry yesterday afternoon was elected president of the Woman's Auxiliary, Metropolitan Police Boys' Club, at the annual meeting at the Raleigh Hotel. She succeeds Miss Mae Helm, during whose presidency the auxiliary, founded by Mrs. John Allan Daugherty, has extended its service to the boys' club and given substantial aid to Camp Ernest W. Brown.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who is honorary president of the auxiliary, addressed a luncheon meeting December 10. Maj. Brown, founder of the boys' club, also spoke and showed motion pictures of the activities at the summer camp which bears his name. The projector he used for the movies was one of the gifts of the auxiliary and hsa made it possible to stimulate interest in the work by presenting the films before other civic groups.

More than 200 blankets and 200 sheets and pillow cases have been provided for the camp by the auxiliary during the past season and $200 was contributed for a cabin to be named for Mrs. Daugnerty, according to Miss Helm's report.

Miss Howry, the incoming president, has served for the past two years as general chairman of the educational, entertainment and patriotic committees. Assisted by Mrs. Goodwin Rhett, she arranged for the showing of the F. B. I. film, "You Can't Get Away With It," for members of the boys' club at a meeting at Eastern High School and, April 22, arranged the Saturday morning program at the Capitol Theater at which Gene Tunney addressed 4,500 boys. Miss Howry also was chairman of the card party for which the Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun recently opened the Turkish Embassy, the proceeds of which were more than $300. Mrs. Ernest W. Brown, chairman of the house and camp committee, also has sponsored several benefits.

Other new officers serving along with Miss Howry are: Mrs. Brown, vice-president; Mrs. Harvey Miller, treasurer; Mrs. Lawton Miller, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Casper M. Durgin, recording secretary, and Mrs. James A. Councilor, corresponding secretary.

Women Advocates Of Peace Meet Here Thursday

The annual convention of the Women's International League for peace and Freedom will be held at Hotel Washington Thursday, Friday and Saturday with delegates from 126 branches of the league in this country attending.

Several members of the Canadian and British sections of the league also are expected at the meeting, according to Mrs. William I. Hull, of Swarthmore, Pa., national president.

At the luncheon meeting the opening day, Clarence Pickett, director of the American Friends Service Committee, will speak on "Refugees—Asset or Liability?"

D. A. R. Chapter Makes Pilgrimage to Law Office of President Monroe in Virginia

A PILGRIMAGE to Fredericksburg, Va., to visit the law office of President James Monroe, was made Saturday by 50 members and guests of the President Monroe Chapter of the District D. A. R., of which Mrs. Z. Lewis Dalby is regent. Tea was served by the junior membership of the chapter, headed by Mrs. Douglas Wolf.

Speakers were Thomas Lomax Hunter, commentator of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, and Frank B. Steele, of Washington, registrar general of the Sons of the American Revolution. Among guests of honor were Miss Maud Gouveneur, granddaughter of President Monroe, Major Gouveneur Hoes and Lawrence Hoes, great grandsons.

Tuesday of next week, Mrs. Dalby will entertain the chapter at its meeting, which will be devoted to American music, with Mrs. Lois Marshall Hicks as speaker and Demetrius Bonos, son of Mrs. Constantine Bonos, one of the members, as harp soloist.

A TEA will be given from 4 to 6 today at the Girl Scout Little House, Eighteenth and New York avenue, by the Washington Council in honor of Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, who with Canon Stokes will leave for Massachusetts to reside, following his retirement.

THE MINISTER OF IRELAND and Mrs. Brennan, accompanied by Frank Gallagher, of Ireland, will be guests of honor at the Arts Club tonight for the lecture by Dorothy McArdle, Irish author, now in this country.

MISS LAURA DE ARCE, of Uruguay, who holds the Latin-American fellowship of the American Association of University Women this year, was a guest at the tea of the local branch of the clubhouse yesterday afternoon. Paul Bartsch was guest speaker.

Miss de Arce, who is studying penal institutions for women, will be guest of honor at a dinner to be given at the clubhouse Friday night, arranged by Mrs. Frank Smith, of the hospitality committee.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF the board of managers of the Baptist Home for Children in Bethesda is being held today at the home. Mrs. E. Hilton Jackson, the president, will preside.

THE PHYSICAL EDUCATION SECTION of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase will present an entertainment Friday afternoon at the clubhouse, followed by a silver tea.

The program will include a skit, "Well I Never——," by Mrs. Winslow Herschel, in which she and Mrs. Irving Day will take part, and a demonstration of a rhythmic exefcise class by the Marian Chace Dancers.

Soroptimists of Washington, Baltimore, Montgomery County and Alexandria are preparing for the spring conference of the South Atlantic region, comprising these groups, which will be held May 14 at the Army and Navy Country Club. Arlington will be the hostess club.

Representative H. K. Claypool, of Ohio, picked the name of Miss Ruth Shafer, of Athens, Ohio, as winner of an all-expense trip to the Sigma Phi Gamma International Sorority convention at Cincinnati on June 21 to 25.

Rose d'Amore To Play Mozart's D Minor Concerto

Rose d'Amore, concert pianist, will play the concerto in D minor by Mozart with the chamber orchestra composed of 15 members of the National Symphony in a program this evening at 8:15 in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets. Kurt Hetzel will conduct. The concert is being sponsored as a benefit for the church.

ROSE D'AMORE

Karl S. Hoffman will be in costume as Mozart. All ushers and hostesses will be costumed as opera stars. Following the program, there will be dancing and cards, and ice cream and hot strawberry shortcake will be served on the terrace and in the dining room.

Mrs. Rowland S. H. Dyer is general chairman for the festival. Those in charge of special features will be Mrs. Donald D. Sells, costumes; Mrs. Edward H. Horton, floral decorations; Mrs. Edward Rowse, special decorations; Mrs. Winfred Overholser, cards; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Ward, dancing; Miss Kathryn E. Dunkhorst, May pole; Mrs. William G. Eliot, ice cream; Mrs. Laurence C. Staples, shortcake; Mrs. Gordon S. Fulcher, tickets; Charles Wright, lighting.

S. P. O. Holding ConventionHere

The national convention of Sigma Phi Omega, professional accounting sorority, is being held at the Carlton Hotel, today through Saturday.

The sessions will be devoted to business, including plans for expansion and advancement of women in the accounting field, amendments to the constitution and election of national officers.

Installation of new officers will take place at 7:30 p. m. Friday, to be followed by an entertainment consisting of solos by Mrs. Betty Morgan Fant, who will be accompanied by Miss Catherine Kelley at the piano, and a one-act play by members of the various chapters. Honor guest of the evening will be Wayne Kendrick, C. Vaughan Darby and S. Frank Levy, members of the D. C. Board of Accountancy; Joseph K. Moyer and Dr. James A. Bell, of Southeastern University; Nedeham C. Turnage, Dean Bosworth and John T. Kennedy, of Benjamin Franklin University; Edmond S. Donoho, Edgie G. Purvis and Harry L. Darner, of Strayer College of Accountancy.

Saturday at 7 o'clock the founders' day banquet will be held in the Carlton Room, followed by dancing

Congressional Club to Honor Mrs. Roosevelt

Mrs. Roosevelt will be the guest of honor at the annual May breakfast of the Congressional Club Thursday, at the Raleigh Hotel. Other guests will include Mrs. Garner, wife of the Vice President; wives of the justices of the Supreme Court; of Cabinet members; Mrs. William B. Bankhead, wife of the Speaker of the House, and former presidents of the club, of which Mrs. Edward R. Burke is president.

Mrs. Clarence Lea, of California, chairman, and the members of the hospitality committee, will greet the guests, and associate members of the club will assist as ushers. Following the breakfast, Mrs. Roosevelt will speak.

G. O. P. Women Hear Mrs. Church

American women should be aroused to take their stand as a living force in modern politics, Mrs. Ralph Church, wife of Representative Church, of Illinois, told members of the League of Republican Women at their monthly meeting yesterday. The session was held at the Mayflower Hotel.

In these troubled times, women should form a strong force of public opinion, trained and ready to cope with national problems, she said. "A citizenry of enlightened American women fired by civic consciousness, with their feet on the ground and eyes on the stars, can be a potent force for preservation among all peoples of those ideals which alone can save the civilization of the world."

Mrs. Church urged that women point their interest toward the rebuilding of a world based on moral principles and that these be stressed in education.

Mrs. Edward E. Gann, president of the league, presided.

D. C. Delegation Opposes Removal To Chicago

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 1.—The Washington delegation to the National Congress of Parents and Teachers arrived here today, 18 strong, bent on fighting the proposal to move national offices from Washington to Chicago. They hoped to get the matter on the floor of the convention.

The Washington delegation also is bending its effort toward the election of Mrs. Walter B. Fry, president of the D. C. Congress, as vice-president of Region Two. Due to a misunderstanding, her name was not put in nomination.

The slate of the nominating committee is: Dr. William Robinson, of Michigan, second vice-president; Mrs. S. C. Cox, of Virginia, vice-president of Region Two; Mrs. Logan Hughes, of Indiana, vice-president. Region Four; Mrs. M. A. Taylor, Texas, vice-president of Region Six. Dr. Joseph Artman, of Chicago, was nominated from the floor for second vice-president.

The convention theme, presented by Mrs. J. K. Pettengill, national president, is "Freedom for Growth." Dr. William M. Carr, secretary of the educational policies commission, of the National Education Association, and Dr. Bess Goodykoontz, assistant commissioner of education, spoke on today's program.

Mrs. Brown Addresses Women Democrats

"A new friendship is being cemented between the United States and Central America under the Administration of President Roosevelt," said Mrs. D. Tucker Brown, president of the Women's National Democratic Club yesterday, in a talk upon "Life in Central America," before the luncheon meeting. Mrs. Brown spent several years in the Central American republics, where her late husband, David Tucker Brown, senior highway engineer of the Bureau of Public Roads, who was in charge of construction of the Inter-American highway.

"The development of the Inter-American highway," declared Mrs. Brown, "is becoming a big factor in this new picture."

A New Idea in Dining Alcoves
by "Mary Annette," Decorating Hostess, The Hecht Co.

Many a woman who adores wrought iron furniture labors under the delusion that because she hasn't an estate with a sweeping terrace, it isn't for her. If she has a sun room, dining room or even a dining alcove, she can use it and achieve a sprightliness that would be impossible with a dark wood, and (in the case of the dinette) giving a more formal feeling than a painted suite would give. And nothing could be more practical . . . for it can't warp or scratch and a new coat of paint is all it will ever need.

Consult "Mary Annette" or any of our other decorators at any time, without any cost or obligation whatsoever. Or, if you prefer an appointment, call NAtional 5100, Branch 500.

Manor Park Opposes New School Office

Citizens Indorse Transfer of Two Zoning Boards To Public Works

The Manor Park Citizens Association last night opposed the creation of a new department of school personnel, as proposed in the bill being considered by the sub-committee on reorganization of the District government of the House District Committee.

The group also opposed the transfer of the custody and operation of school buildings to the department of public works and indorsed the transfer of the Zoning Commission and the Board of Zoning Adjustments to that department.

Committees were appointed to study the public utilities provisions of the bill, for action at the association's next meeting.

The following officers were elected: Daniel Lloyd, president; F. Arthur Oehm, and Mrs. Arthur Krimmelmeyer, first and second vice presidents; George R. Kiegerle, recording secretary; Mrs. J. M. Hardy, jr., corresponding secretary; T. William Buckley, treasurer; Lloyd and George A. Corbin, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Association.

Kenilworth Citizens

The resignation of George A. Fuller, vice president and long an active member of the Kenilworth Citizens Association and delegate from the group to the Federation of Citizens Associations, was accepted last night. Fuller has been transferred to Atlanta, Ga., by the Civil Service Commission, to serve there as inspector.

Charles McCall was elected to succeed him as vice president, and Walter Barnes as delegate to the federation.

Resolutions adopted by the group indorsed the Nichols bill to permit small loan establishments in the District, and requested the postmaster to re-establish a Kenilworth branch postoffice.

Progressive

The Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown last night joined the new Georgetown Community Conference, clearing house for the exchange of information and ideas among member groups.

Before adopting the constitution of the new organization, speeches were heard by Mrs. Lewis Mackall, president of the Georgetown Garden Club; E. I. Lewis, president of the Georgetown Citizens Association, and John Paul Jones, president of the Lions Club of Georgetown, who spoke for the Georgetown Business Men's Association in the absence of Thomas Gulick, president of the group.

Resolutions were adopted urging repair of the sidewalks and preservation of the old street names through signs on house walls. Letters were sent to the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. requesting a local name instead of "Michigan"; to the Board of Architects urging that Georgetown builders continue the prevailing 18th century style and to the Takoma Park Citizens offering to co-operate in that group's effort to secure rigid enforcement of zoning regulations.

Dupont Circle Citizens

Woodson P. Houghton, attorney, was re-elected president of the Dupont Circle Citizens Association at the final meeting at the Mayflower Hotel.

Following a talk on cancer control by Dr. Eugene Whitmore, of the District Medical Association, committee reports covering the year's business were made by Houghton, as president, and committee chairmen.

Other officers elected were William Floyd Crosby, first vice president; Dr. Harry A. Garfield, second vice president; Rowland S. Marshall, recretary; W. Herbert Gill, treasurer; Miss Lelia Peachy and Harral Mulliken, executive committee delegates.

Forest Hills

Officers including Leslie B. Wright, president; Charles D. Hammel, vice president; J. N. McCullom, treasurer; Frank T. Baldwin, recording secretary, and Mrs. E. L. Springer, corresponding secretary, were re-elected at a meeting of the Forest Hill Citizens Association. Mrs. Edith Meggers was elected to membership in the executive committee.

Following a talk on cancer control by Dr. Joseph Horgan, of the District Medical Association, members reviewed the Griffenhagen plan previously adopted in principle in a general discussion. After a talk by Mrs. Charles Burmeister on the proposal, members were instructed to "watch for" controversial or disadvantageous features of the plan.

The association voted to join the Northwest Council of Citizens Associations, now in the process of formation.

Metropolis View

Plans for an excursion of all Washington citizens associations to the New York World Fair were initiated at a meeting of the Metropolis View Citizens Association last night.

A resolution was adopted asking the Federation of Citizens Associations to sponsor the excursion if a majority of its delegates were found in favor of the trip.

A membership drive was launched with members of the Metropolis View baseball team delegated to canvas the area. Opposition was voted to the licensing of a Class A liquor store at Seventh and Franklin streets northeast.

Self-Help Unit Reports 22 New Workshops

Summer Camp Planned For Vacations to Be Paid for With Scrip

Constant expansion of services and establishment of three new branches were noted as outstanding achievements last year by the Washington Self-Help Exchange in its annual report yesterday.

Noting the exchange, "has not yet been operating two full years," the report said:

"We have established 22 workshops in which needy, unemployed people are daily exchanging their labor for food and other necessities."

In the year a branch was established at 920 Snows Court northwest and another at 1428 U street northwest. The third branch was a farm near Kensington, Md., it was explained.

New activities contemplated are dental services for participants; manufacture of seersucker suits, socks for men and hose for women, tooth powder and cosmetics and a summer camp where participants and their families may take a vacation and pay for it with scrip earned by labor in the exchange.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., was elected honorary president of the exchange.

Other officers chosen were Hugh V. Keiser, president; Robert Woods Bliss, first vice president; Mrs. Charles Goldsmith, second vice president; Miss Edna Lonigan, third vice president; Frederick P. H. Siddons, treasurer; Robert Flather and L. Pierce Riddle, assistant treasurers; Mae Helm, counsel, and Mrs. Samuel Spencer Gordon, secretary.

Holdup Nets $60, Robberies $690, In Washington

Armed bandits netted $60 in a basement holdup yesterday afternoon while robberies netting nearly $700 also were reported.

Harry Bowers, 929 M street northwest, reported that while in the basement of 1211 I street northwest two men held him up at pistol point and took the $60.

Irving Saidman, 4503 Iowa avenue northwest, told police that his home was robbed of jewelry valued at $340.

Mrs. Florence Salladin, of Oswego, N. Y., visiting here with her sister, Mrs. Ethel Hilleary, 1430 Rhode Island avenue northwest, reported that her car was looted of coins and diamond jewelry valued at about $350.

Watchman Finds Dead Man Floating In Potomac River

An unidentified man, who, police say, had been dead for about two days, was found floating in the Potomac River yesterday afternoon between the Highway Bridge and the Memorial Bridge.

He was described as about 6 feet 1 inch in height, weighing 180 pounds, having red hair and wearing a white shirt and blue trousers.

He was discovered by F. E. Garland, a watchman on the Highway Bridge, who notified Harbor Police.

Engineer Takes Bride in First Radio Wedding in Washington

Lillian Costello and Mark Webb Married in Broadcast 'So Whole World Would Know About It'

Mark H. Webb and Miss Lillian I. Costello became "man and wife" last night by Judge Robert E. Mattingly of Municipal Court as they stood before the microphone at Station WMAL in Washington's first "radio wedding."

In the ceremony while Lee Everett, announcer, was reading the Old Testament story of the marriage of Isaac and Rebecca, a wedding bouquet of white gardenias and pink roses was handed to the pretty black-haired bride. It was the gift of a local florist.

The calmest people at the wedding were the bride, attired in a black sailor hat trimmed with white ribbon and a tweed suit, and the groom, chief engineer of the Martinique home, where the couple will make their home.

Staff members of the radio station and friends crowded into the small studio.

Edwin Rogers, an announcer, sang "Oh Promise Me" while Robert Callhan played the organ.

As he concluded the service, Judge Mattingly said to the groom, "Now kiss the bride as long as she'll let you."

Later he handed the marriage certificate to the bride and remarked, "That belongs to you. Don't ever let anyone else have it. Show it to your husband now and then when he needs to be reminded of this occasion."

Lee Everett explained that the couple had known each other for many years and had "wanted their wedding broadcast so the whole world would know about it."

Capital News In Brief

An alleged attempt to filch a Bible from a department store led to charges of narcotics act violations as well as an attempted larceny for a 31-year-old District man last night.

The man was arrested by Policewoman Pearl Pythian after two customers caught him as he snatched the Bible and attempted to dart away through a rush-hour crowd.

A search revealed a quantity of heroin in the man's pocket, police said. He was wearing the new coat and vest of a suit he had allegedly stolen from the clothing department.

War, Health, Labor Topics On May Day

Norman Thomas Talks in Park; Legion Has Rites At Memorial

May moved in on the Capital yesterday, bringing with it brilliant sunshine, demands for "working class solidarity," attacks on "subversive influences" and free dental examinations for 110 members of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

No Maypoles were reported in the District, but several citizens sported white shoes on Connecticut avenue as the sun touched fresh foliage with silvery light. The mercury rose from 40 at 4 a. m. to a high of 60 at 4 p. m.

Labor organizations and left-wing political groups maintained their May Day traditions with two demonstrations here. More than 300 persons heard Norman Thomas address a Socialist rally in McPherson Square.

Urge Economic Planning

A bugle fanfare blared out from a passing car as the perennial Socialist candidate for the Presidency warned against "the delusion that we can save our own democracy, or anybody else's, by going to war again."

"We've fallen into a rut talking about defense of democracy," Thomas said. "We must regain the initiative which has been seized by the Fascists and take positive, aggressive action."

The only effective defense and fulfillment of democracy, he declared, is "the assertion of socialist principles by a fraternity of workers—economic planning under democratic control."

Mentions Hague

The silver-haired former Presbyterian minister, who was pelted with eggs when he attempted to speak last year in Jersey City, contended that Mayor Frank Hague, "except for a certain lack of imagination, has all the standard Fascist views."

Thomas advised his audience, however, that "Fascism won't come to the United States neatly labeled—it will in fact proclaim itself anti-Fascist, but the concentration camps will look just the same from the inside."

Thomas spoke before a huge red banner, surmounted by two American flags. A dozen policemen circulated through the crowd.

Meanwhile, at the District World War Memorial, in Potomac Park, another audience of 300 heard a bitter attack on "disciples of Marx, Lenin and Stalin, assembled today in this country and even this city to deliver violent tirades against our form of government."

Legion Commander Speaks

"They scorn this government," said Department Commander James T. Brady, of the American Legion, "which has given them more comfort and more rights than in any other nation on earth." He expressed the opinion, however, that most persons attending left-wing May Day demonstrations are "idle spectators" rather than adhcrents of "subversive doctrines."

World conditions do not justify any hope that the United States will be immune from future war, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commanding officer of the District National Guard, asserted.

With "the mere desire for peace as impotent to bring it about as ever in the past," he called for vigilant preparation for national defense, pointing out that "armies cannot be raised overnight."

Climax of the program came with a popp processional by sons and daughters of Legionnaires, honoring the memory of District men who fell in the World War.

Labor Movement Play

"The Cradle Will Rock," Marc Blitzstein's play about the labor movement, was presented last night in the Sylvan Theater by the United May Day Committee in co-operation with Contemporary Stage.

Speaking before the play, Charles H. Houston, chairman of the Marian Anderson Citizens Committee, saw in the status of America's colored population "the acid test of our democracy."

He attacked "the blindness and prejudice of the white worker who cannot see that ultimately he goes up or goes down tied to his Negro brother."

Merle A. Vincent, chairman of the Washington Lawyers Guild, traced organized labor's progress from the American Federation of Labor's first May Day celebration of the eight-hour day, more than 50 years ago, to its present "unique position" in the "struggle for power."

Industrial Peace Influence

Organized labor, he said, "has been and is the Nation's dominant influence for industrial peace." An employer class which he claimed has demanded "license to represent a 50-cent investment as a $2 asset" now calls for "emasculation of laws designed to maintain industrial peace. In this controversy labor's voice is the voice of law, of orderly procedure."

The District's observance of Child Health Week was launched with a luncheon at the Y. W. C. A. attended by representatives of 21 organizations. A general physical check-up for children scheduled to start school next fall began under auspices of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers. More than 1,000 children will be examined in the next ten days.

Two buses unloaded members of the Boys' Club at the Georgetown University Dental School, where teeth cleaning, filling and extractions proceeded at a brisk rate.

Denver Jewish Home Head to Visit Here

Mrs. Fannie E. Lorder, president for the thirty-first year of the National Home for Jewish Children at Denver, will arrive in Washington tomorrow to attend the third annual donor luncheon which will be given by the Washington Chapter of the home next Tuesday at the Mayflower Hotel.

D. C. Bars Windshield Stickers To End Blindfold Driving

Full, Clear Vision Ahead Necessary To Pass Compulsory Auto Inspection; Blemishes in Glass Also Outlawed

By Howard F. Wentworth

Would you—a safe and sane motorist—take your chances in heavy traffic driving blindfolded? Of course you wouldn't. But what about those stickers, emblems and fancy seals plastered all over your windshield?

When you next go vacationing and decide to collect as many souvenir stickers as your windshield will hold, think twice, because under the District's new compulsory automobile inspection law they won't be tolerated. The driver must have a full, clear vision ahead from his position behind the steering wheel or his car will not be granted a clean bill of health.

Aside from stickers, the inspectors are going to check carefully for any blemishes in the windshield glass itself. A tiny hole may have been overlooked by the car owner, but when he applies for examination his automobile is going to be rejected. Tiny holes frequently result in larger cracks, and larger cracks mean broken glass.

The city's plan to protect life and property by having vehicles of all kinds in the safest possible mechanical shape is going to catch many local motorists napping. Unless everyone of 33 items on a car is in perfect condition, the offending owner is going to be ruled off the streets until corrective measures are taken.

"The windshield," said J. Earl Steinhauer, supervising inspector of the new service, "is going to come in for special attention. We are not going to be unreasonable, but we intend to be strict. Cars manufactured after January, 1936, must have safety glass all around. Shattered or cracked windows and windshields will not pass inspection."

The car which appears for examination at either of the two testing stations—1827 West Virginia avenue northeast or 615 Tenth street southwest—with windshield dotted with stickers and seals will not even be permitted into the inspection center until an attendant has removed the offending emblems.

Through its rigid mechanical requirements, the District hopes to reap a handsome profit in reduced accidents and a lowered fatality rate.

Press Agent Lets It Slip—Circus Coming to Town

The Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus press agent dropped in last night to announce that the "Greatest Show on Earth" will descend on Washington May 15, 16 and 17 in a new location, at Twenty-first and C streets northeast.

Streamlined with an air-conditioned big top and a "spectacle moderne," "The World Comes to the World's Fair," designed by Ziegfeld Follies specialist, Charles Le Maire, the circus will boast its famous attractions of Gargantua the Great, the world's largest and most evil-tempered gorilla and a bevy of newly imported European daredevils.

Bible-Story Test For Junior Girls At 'Y' Tonight

Finals for junior girls in the annual Bible story telling contest, under auspices of the Central Young Men's Christian Association, will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the Y. M. C. A. building.

Finals for junior boys will be held at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night, while finals for the senior boys and girls will be Friday at 8 night. The junior groups range from 9 to 13 years of age and the seniors from 14 to 18.

Citizens Meet Thursday

Connecticut Avenue Citizens Association will hold its last meeting of the season at 8 p. m. Thursday in the parish hall of All Souls' Memorial Church, on Cathedral avenue near Connecticut. Charles M. Fyfe, managing director of the Boys Club of Washington, will present a sound motion picture.

Committee Aims Blow at D.C. Gunmen

Reports Schulte Bill to Increase Penalties for Armed Violence

The House District Committee yesterday moved to crack down on armed robbers by reporting out bills to make jail sentences mandatory, to require registration of firearms, and to increase the penalties for armed violence.

Local judges came in for criticism on the ground of leniency as Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, urged adoption of the two bills he had introduced.

Schulte was the victim of an armed robbery about a year ago. Subsequently, Maj. Ernest W. Brown and other police officials presented a watch to him in recognition of his work for public safety.

One of the Schulte bills, which will be called up next District day in the House, would amend the probation act to exempt offenders against the firearms act, thus making a jail sentence mandatory.

The other would require registration of firearms and provide that in crimes by violence the perpetrator, if armed, shall be punished by imprisonment of five years for the first offense and ten years for the second or subsequent offense "in addition to the punishment provided for the crime."

Terming crime conditions in Washington deplorable, Schulte cited the shooting of a cab driver Saturday night as an example. Judges who has imposed light sentences, he asserted, are in part responsible for the condition.

Mrs. Roosevelt "Interested"

The committee in a brief executive session decided to ask the District Commissioners to file charges in writing against Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith, dismissed superintendent of the National Training School for Girls, or grant her a hearing within 30 days.

The action was taken after receipt of a letter from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt stating that she was interested in the case. The committee had been considering the case for several weeks.

Approval was given by the committee to a bill giving the Commissioners greater latitude in awarding benefits in the opening of certain streets and to a measure to extend retirement privileges to Charlotte E. Hunter, former public school teacher.

Eleanor Powell to Tap Capital's Risibilities

Dancing Star to Headline Capitol Stage Bill; Jane Cowl to Play 'Camille' at Olney; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

THE RETURN of Eleanor Powell to a Washington stage on Friday of this week will prove a source of gratification to a great number of Capital theatergoers.

Miss Powell is more than a supreme artiste of the dance. She is one of the most graciously indefatigable young women I have ever met when demands are made upon her good nature and powers of physical endurance. But we will get back to that later.

BELL

My first recollection of Eleanor is that of a vivacious young woman, prancing out during one of the later Ziegfeld "Follies" to stop the show cold in its tracks—if a show has tracks. She wore golden "slacks" and worked "in one"—meaning the curtained-off apron of the stage—without benefit of chorus background or other aid than orchestral accompaniment. And how she handed!

That initial Washington success has been repeated more than once. It also has been scored across the length and breadth of the land, as the saying is. It was, of course, so substantial a success that it could not be ignored by the moguls who mold the gelatins out in Hollywood. That is why the nimble-footed Miss Powell has been one of the top-ranking dancing stars of the cinema for a good many months—or is it years?—now.

But let's get back to the matters to which we alluded earlier—Miss Powell's graciousness and great generosity of time and effort. For two successive years a guest star at the President's Birthday Celebrations, through the courtesy of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Loew's, Inc., Eleanor was the hardest working and the least complaining of all the celebrities. Not only did she appear at all of the scheduled Washington functions—and they were many and exhausting—but with complete willingness included Baltimore in her official rounds and all but annihilated herself with hard work.

I remember especially the Gold Plate Breakfast at the Carlton a year ago, when Eleanor sat at General Chairman Melvin C. Hazen's right. Everybody wanted to dance with her. She had spent the day in Baltimore and made the dizzy round in Washington that night and it was now in the neighborhood of 2 a. m. After two sips of consomme, Eleanor spent the rest of the wee sma' hours dancing with all who asked her—mostly gold-braided young men whose Army, Navy and Marine posts gave them the notion that they held some sort of priority.

This year's Gold Plate Breakfast was almost as bad, except that I believe Eleanor managed to negotiate a bite of roast squab in addition to the two sips of soup.

You can't beat a girl like that.

It is further, a pleasant thought that Eleanor on this visit will be accompanied again by her constant companion and best friend. That would be the charming Mrs. Powell, her mother. Knowing them as I do, I still think they are sisters, instead of mother and daughter. The only difference between them is that Eleanor dances.

So here comes a clipping from the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, dated Wednesday, April 26, evidently posted by three other old friends. It seems that those incorrigible zanies, Marty Collnis and Harry Peterson, who annually—or oftener—convulse audiences at Loew's Capitol Theater, or the Earle, have been playing on the stage, for Loew, in Norfolk and on the links, for themselves, at golf. On their golf junkets, Roscoe Drissel, Loew manager, always was along to see to it that they didn't wreck the course. Roscoe was long associated with the loewcal Loew houses on F street. Nice to be remembered by the boys.

It is a welcome sort of corroboration of early season judgment that filters through the loudspeaker to the effect that Robert E. Sherwood's play of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," starring Raymond Massey in the title role, has won the Pulitzer Prize for the year 1939.

This, I should think, should put the New York Drama Critics Circle a little bit to shame. They couldn't make up their minds sufficiently to give any play among the current Broadway list of hits a majority vote. It also should afford some comfort to my old friend Clayton Hamilton, who came to Washington and expounded the virtues of "Abe Lincoln" to me long before the play got here. He was entirely right in everything he said, extravagant as everything he said was. Mr. Hamilton, you will recall, for many years was chairman of the Pulitzer Prize committee. If he were on it now, he would have voted precisely as the committee voted—and so would most of the rest of us. "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" is a play of enduring and monumental worth.

Nothing seems to be stopping Panjandrum Stephen E. Cochran this year in his projected plans for the Olney Theater, opening May 15. As usual, a few complications have arisen, but they have speedily been overcome. For instance Eva Le Gallienne has discovered that her run-of-play contract with Frank Fay, in his eminently successful vaudeville venture in New York, is apt to hold her past the date of her announced appearance, out Olney way, in "Camille." A little daunted, but not defeated, Mr. Cochran promptly secured the services of the brilliant Jane Cowl for the role. Miss Cowl, always a Washington favorite and particularly one of this department's, should insure the Olney a banner week. The first three plays of the Olney's new season remain the same, Glenda Farrell in "Stage Door," Douglass Montgomery in "Night Must Fall" and Cornelia Otis Skinner in "Romance." Nice line-up, as I have said before.

Rudy Berger, Washington manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has come to the rescue of his confrere, Carter Barron, Eastern division manager for Loew's, Inc., in the matter of holding the fort while Master J. Raymond Bell—no relation—goes to Paris on that prize-award trip. During Ray's absence from the chief magistrate's chair in the Loew publicity department, it will be occupied by Carlton Duffus, M-G-M field exploiteer in this territory. That takes quite a load off this desk's mind—if any. Carlton, also, is an old friend and we won't have to worry how about rewriting everything that comes in. Ray is off tonight to catch the scow Normandie—the lucky such-and-such!

"Night Must Fall" will begin a revival engagement at the Little Theater tomorrow. This is the picture which Robert Montgomery confessed to this department on his recent visit to Washington he deemed the best he ever had made. Rosalind Russell and Dame May Whitty in the cast do not hurt it any.

Glancing-at-the-Calendar-Note

This may be May, but it feels about as frosty as March or April to me.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

THE RANEE of Sarawak, who went to Hollywood to see her daughter, Mrs. Bob Gregory, is returning to England this week to join the Rajah there. Mrs. Gregory will follow—without her husband, who will remain in America to continue his wrestling career. The Gregorys then will be reunited in the fall . . . Mrs. Chip Robert, wife of the secretary of the Democratic Nationale Committee, will drop her columning career next week to please her husband . . . The Shuberts are bringing suit for an injunction restraining the showing of the movie "Three Waltzes" in this country, claiming that they own the screen rights. The producers of this French film insist that they purchased the screen rights from the authors of the play.

Last week Mayor LaGuardia suspended for two days the cabaret license of El Morocco—because John Perona, the proprietor, hit Fred Wildman, who had thrown the first punch . . . The mayor explained his action by stating that brawling in public places must stop . . . And yet it is Fiorello's proud boast that when he himself was hit by a stranger recently on the steps of City Hall—the most public place in New York—his assailant wound up in Bellevue Hospital.

A PUBLIC official, a Mr. B. will be indicted by Pros. Amen on Tuesday . . . The New York police department now is checking every building, from the Battery to City Hall—the line of march for the parade of the King and Queen—for possible vantage points from which anti-British plotters can operate. The detectives are checking hallways and rooftops to block all moves . . . The New York branch of the Lawyers Guild now is squaring off into two factions—with an internal struggle expected . . . Leon Henderson, who will conduct the monopoly probe into totalitarian economics, has invited John Gunther and other foreign correspondents to testify in Washington.

JACK KIRKLAND is telling of a drunk who, after a three-day binge, staggered into a barber shop, collapsed into one of the chairs, and, while his chin rested against his chest, muttered: 'Gimme a shave, mister" . . . The barber prepared the soap and razor, prodded the drunk and said: "I can't shave you this way. You've got to lift up your head" . . . "Then," replied the drunk, "make it a haircut."

A number of Democratic clubhouses in Brooklyn will be defendants in nonpayment-of-rent cases . . . Bodie Smith, whose last Broadway play, "Dear Octopus," didn't click, turned down Hollywood offers of $3,000 a week this month, because she wants to write another play . . . Joe Rines' band will reopen the St. Regis Roof May 4 . . . J. Edgar Hoover may lose his chief aide, Clyde Tolson, to the movies. The screen scouts are interested—after viewing Tolson's photo in the May issue of True Detective Stories . . . "From Ragtime to Swingtime," the newest book about Tin Pan Alley's history, bears the by-lines of Isidore Witmark and Isaac Goldberg. Goldberg died before the book was completed. His job was finished by Frank Owens.

AT 7 A. M., in one of those Hollywood bars which only Robert Benchley can discover at 7 a. m., a man standing next to Benchley turned to him and said: "Stars Fell on Orchi Chornya" . . . The startled humorist stared at the stranger and said: "Say that again" . . . "Stars Fell on Orchi Chornya," the man repeated . . . The fascinated Benchley took the stranger to his home and housed him for three weeks, plying him with food, wine and even permitting him to wear Benchley's most expensive lounging robes—but not once did the man speak . . . After three weeks the stranger finally said: "I spoke too soon. I guess I shot my bolt, eh?"—and walked out of Benchley's home and life forevermore.

THE NEW Paradise revue, which made its debut last night, is a real delight. The headliners, Jack Waldron, Rex Weber and Dick Himber's band, all contribute to making the show a treat for Broadway's pleasure seeker. The girls are New York's prettiest and the "Venus" number should lure as many Fair visitors as the Ford exhibit . . . "P. M.," the new evening tabloid which is expected to reach the newsstands in the fall, will feature multicolor on its pages . . . The Sacramento Fair is swamping New York celebrities with invitations—but the letters all bear Jim Farley's new stamp advertising the New York World's Fair. . . . Tommy Corcoran drafted the President's new reorganization bill.

THE ARGENTINE Ambassador, who was scheduled to return to his country May 5, has canceled his passage because his treaty hopes have been messed up. He'll remain until he gets that new treaty between America and the Argentine . . . Irving Hyland, of Warner Brothers, will head the Dallas office . . . Francois de Paris, the Village hairdresser who just issued that attack against movie hair styles, at the Hairdressers Association show—an attack in which he declared that movie styles are pretty awful—is the same dresser who set Hedy La Marr's hair in "Ecstasy."

Belatedly supplying that frolicsome fillip which the season has so conspicuously lacked since its opening last fall, "I Married an Angel," this week's final attraction at the National Theater, offers merry melody, madcap dancing and comedy in abundance to assuage ravenous and unappeased theatrical appetites.

This imaginative musical comedy by Rodgers and Hart, in two acts and 11 scenes, projects no more substantial story than is necessary to string together a succession of relatively unrelated incidents that compound a fine measure of gayety, humor, viacity and charm. It purports to have been adapted from a play by John Vaszary, but one suspects that Herr Vaszary's plot must have been lost somewhere in the reshuffling.

There is, to be sure, something about a run on a bank and an angel coming down from Heaven to marry a human who seemed not to be doing so well on this mortal coil, but every pretense to sustained and believable drama ends there and the proceedings happily take on the contours of a gleeful charade aimed only at frivolity. A good many of the lines are more than a little risque, if that is a word you can do with in this day and age and many of the songs and dances fall a little this side of being completely celestial. That is all very well, for "I Married an Angel," as its year's run in New York and prosperous road tour have indicated beyond cavil, is one of the best of the musical fol-de-rols to have come along in a month of Sundays, a year of blue moons or however else you wish to denominate a period of interminable duration.

Undisguised Musical Comedy

Here is an item that is neither revue nor operetta. It is sheer musical comedy in the best traditions of that most irresponsible form of entertainment. The dialogue you will have to hear with your own ears to appreciate in all of its virgin indelicasy; the song hits of the piece have been fixtures on the recordings and the airwaves for too many months now, although they all take on new life as tossed across the footlights by the fine cast presented by Dwight Deere Wiman in this latest of his enduring hits. You will want to hear them again and applaud them, as they were applauded last night by an enthusiastic last-week audience.

If titles have to be singled out, "I Married an Angel," "How to Win Friends and Influence People," "A Twinkle in Your Eye" and "At the Roxy Music Hall" are the particular numbers in which your major interest should center. Then there is that "Honeymoon Ballet," in the first act, that will stand in your memory as one of the most gracefully and picturesquely spectacular offerings that have come along in a lengthy string of seasons.

The star of the cast, of course, is Vera Zorina, already known to Washington, but not from any previous stage engagement here. Zorina, as I have said numerous times before, is not only an accomplished dancer of the ballet school, but also an actress of more than ordinary capability. She proves it again in "I Married An Angel," just as she did on the screen in "The Goldwyn Follies." She is the "angle" of the title and manages to make her role convincing with dazzling facility.

Many Stars in Cast

There are many others among the roster of principals who do no less than the star to make this Rodgers and Hart work the hit it is. There is no greater need at the midnight moment than to recite their names. Their accomplishments are an older story to the National Capital than Zorina's. So here we have Dennis King, star, not so long ago, of "The Three Musketeers" and "Richard of Bordeaux," who both sings and acts his costellar role admirably; Vivienne Segal, who has blossomed forth from "Blossom Time" into one of the stage's most expert comediennes; Walter Slezak, Charles Walters, a dancing juvenile of the first rank; Audrey Christie, a sprightly expositor of everything musical comedy needs in the way of spontaneous song, dance and comedy.

The singing and dancing ensemble that lends as much semblance of truth to this gaily musicalized fiction as any such gossamer tale could hope to possess is one of fine selection, both as to voice and appearance. The settings are as appropriate to the bizarre action of the two acts as they are tricky. They do not revolve, but they slide from side to side in a most surprising manner.

It may be that Count Willy Palaffi didn't quite marry an angel, but Dwight Deere Wiman certainly wed himself to a honey when he made up his mind and his bank account to produce this one. The National ends its season on a resoundingly humorous and melodious note.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

By International News Service.

Hollywood, May 1.—Erich Maria Remarque, author of "All Quiet on the Western Front," who has been besuing Marlene Dietrich to every socia. function, has been attending to a little business on the side. He brought to Hollywood his new novel, as yet untitled, and it's so dramatic and timely Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer probably will pay him his price of $70,000 for the right to convert it into a movie. This time Remarque, who was banned from his native Germany after writing "The Road Back," in which he stressed the futility of war, deals with the refugees.

LOUELLA PARSONS

His story is that of a Jew who is sent out of Germany while his wife, an Aryan, is kept there. The unfortunate refugee's difficulty in getting across the borders of Europe is very exciting and is said to be the experience of other unhappy souls placed in the same position. The deal with M-G-M probably will be closed this week.

Good news indeed is Darryl Zanuck's decision to put Mack Sennett into "Hollywood Cavalcade" as technical director and assistant to Harry Jo: Brown, producer. Mack knows Hollywood history backwards. He was here when Griffith made "Birth of a Nation" and brought the Gish sisters to fame. He knew Mary Pickford during her biograph days and he himself gave Gloria Swanson, Carole Lombard, Phyllis Haver and many others their first chance as bathing beauties. He brought Mabel Normand into the film limelight and created interest in Charlie Chaplin and Marie Dressler before they were known. Alice Faye and Don Ameche will be starred in "Hollywood Cavalcade," a history of our fabulous city.

Jeanette MacDonald's bickering with M-G-M was never taken seriously by those of us who knew that each needed the other. When she returns she will sign a contract and agree to be costarred in Eugene Heltai's "Silent Knight" with Nelson Eddy. The fans have joined these two together by popular acclaim. Nelson is back with his bride and starts work a week from Saturday with Ilona Massey in "Balalaika," the musical which I saw in London. It will be interesting, indeed, to see what Massey does. She has a gorgeous voice but up to now has had little chance to use it. Reports still are current she will one day wed Sam Katz, one of M-G-M's top executives.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Hollywood's latest and most ardent twosome is June Gale and Norman Krasna; Jerome Odlum, author of "Each Dawn I Die," home from Las Vegas with a new divorce. His new book has the startling title "God's Gone Fishing"; Joan Blondell asked me to deny she and Dick are expecting the stork again. She says she's sorry it isn't true; Claudette Colbert's party honoring Tyrone Power and Annabella went on until the 'wee sma' hours with many of the guests dancing to a swell hillbilly orchestra. Constance Bennett, who came in late, was not accompanied by Gilbert Roland, so I reckon this is one romance that is really dead. Meanwhile Gilbert was at the Versailles with Geraldine Spreckles. Anatole Litvak came to Claudette's party without Miriam Hopkins, who is sick and out of "The Old Maid" for a few days. Ernst Lubitsch and Gregory Ratoff discussing "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," pro and con.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., May 1.—One of the silliest suits ever started in this town was that of Yvonne Du Val to wrest the title of the "Oomph Girl" away from Ann Sheridan. My spies tell me that Ralph Pollock of the Burbank Burlesque Theater, claims that he started the "oomph" contest way back in December 1935, by running a series of ads calling Dorianne the "Oomph Girl." Even he didn't originate but lifted it bodily from the Lincoln High School's Yearbook. Now will you all be good?

HOPPER

Frank Whitbeck of Metro did a little scooping on his own, when he went back East and made a "trailer" of Alexander Woolcott for "Goodbye Mr. Chips." As you know, it was Woollcott who introduced Hilton to America. His own country hadn't discovered him but through writing and radio Woollcott made America Hilton-conscious. So much so, that every story he's written has been sold for pictures. Among others, "Lost Horizon" and "Knight Without Armor" (for which Marlene Dietrich got $450,000). In fact, he's put Hilton, who used to earn around $1,500 a year, into the millionaire class.

Where do you think the Junior Fairbanks had their first dinner? They left their home, complete, with tin cans, rattles, old shoes tied on the back of their car, for an out-of-town destination. When out of sight, the car was rid of all the evidence, and they motored along the highway to an obscue hot dog stand and dined there. Then returned home after the last guest had been swept out.

The first scene of "The Women" was a honey, with Norma Shearer and daughter, Virginia Weidler, on horseback—Norma teaching her to jump. While only the shadow of a man darkens the screen, they did nothing but talk about Virginia's pappy.

Now that Bob Montgomery has set a deal to make two pictures in England, wait and see—he'll return one of our biggest stars. But it leaves Ilka Chase cooling her heels at Metro, while they're finding another lead for "Stranger Than Desire" to take Bob's place.

Lots of bets won over Spencer Tracy's vacation in Europe. His pals didn't think he'd make it. They were wrong, he'll have ten days there.

Tom Hull, who runs our Plaza and Roosevelt Hotels, begins construction on a new resort in Las Vegas, Nev., in about three weeks. Expects to be cozy by November. There will be all kinds of gambling devices, tennis, swimming, polo, etc. That should take the edge off Reno.

Trans-Lux

On the very day that Hitler made history in his unusual speech in answer to President Roosevelt's appeal for peace the Trans-Lux Theater burst forth with a most unusual dish of current news and short subjects.

Highlights in the news include England's super-speeding of conscription as the thrilling scenes are depicted of the Japanese storming Nanchang. Also at the top in the news are the pictures of the Red Cross convention, in Washington, and the thrilling review of the cadets at West Point in full dress, a treat for the eyes of any red-blooded American. Also in the news are shots of the trans-Atlantic liner Paris, burning because, according to some reports, of sabotage. The new Atlantic clipper is christened at Baltimore as the world's largest cheese arrives in the Capital from the State of Wisconsin.

In the realm of fashions milady gets a view of the last word in Vogue summer styles with another shot showing the South Sea influence on the mid-year dresses. As though the show was not enough in dynamic news subjects, there is the latest "March of Time," showing the first uncensored pictures from Japan.

Sports of all descriptions are wonderfully covered and the inimitable Lew Lehr and a bevy of beauties make a huge crab cocktail. A "Screen Snapshots" is on the bill and a Disney color cartoon, "Society Dog Show."

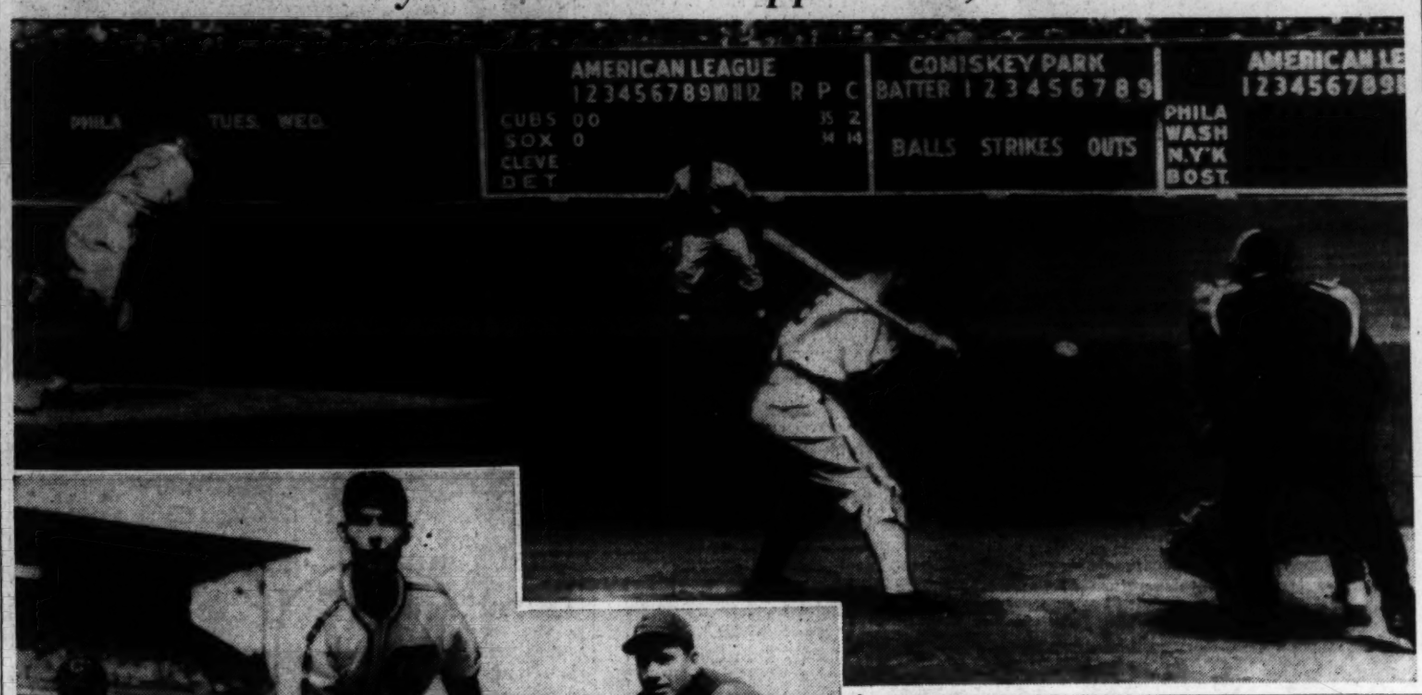
Baseball's Loyal Turnout for Crippled Star; Diz Cuts Loose



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Old Dizzy Dean unlimbered his "?" arm in the benefit game for Monty Stratton yesterday at Chicago before 25,594 loyal fans but that's about all Dix did. The Chisox had a field day off the former Cardinal ace and routed him after four innings. In the upper shot, Diz is shown serving one up to Mike Kreevich. Hartnett is the catcher and McGowan is the ump. Monty is shown in the lower panel as he tossed the first ball. Dean (right) and Whitehead, opposing pitchers, are also shown

Dizzy Dean Routed, Cubs Bow, 4 to 1

Crippled White Sox Pitcher Gets Upward Of $25,000; Diz Is Chased in Fourth

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 1.—Monty Stratton won upwards of $25,000 and Dizzy Dean lost the ball game today.

The Chicago White Sox, for whom Stratton pitched last year, knocked Dean out of the box and won an exhibition intracity game, 4 to 1.

All receipts from 25,594 spectators went to Stratton, whose gameness and courage after he lost his leg in a hunting accident last November inspired the benefit game.

The Sox belted Dean and his $185,000 arm out of the box after four innings. It was Dean's mound debut since the season began.

Dizzy Is Easy

Dizzy, tossing up only his famous "nothing" ball, was no mystery to the American Leaguers. After giving up only one hit in the first two innings, he lost control of the situation in the third and was touched for four hits and three runs, sewing up the ball game. John Whitehead went the route for the Sox, scattering the Cubs' ten hits and pitching shutout ball for the first six innings.

Vice President Harry Grabiner, of the White Sox, said Stratton would realize "between $25,000 and $30,000" out of the game, but added the definite amount would not be known for two or three days.

Everybody paid into the game, including reporters, umpires and players, Stratton also receiving the "take" from all concessions—parking lots, score cards, hot dogs.

Then came the dramatic and pathetic touch. He took the mound, from which he tossed 15 victories for the Sox last season. In a halting style, he tossed several balls over the plate. Then he walked off the mound, across the infield and into the dugout, a truly forlorn figure.

Maryland Beats Duke To End Great Streak

Capt. Knepley's Single in Tenth Brings 9-8 Victory to Old Liners, Stops Devil String at 25 Straight

By Jack Munhall.

Stepping up to the plate with two out in the tenth inning yesterday, a slight, shadowy figure in the gathering dusk, Capt. George Knepley, Maryland's great athlete, struck a blow that resounded over the collegiate baseball world.

He hit a single to center field to score Pinch-Hitter Newton Cox with the run which gave the Terps a 9-8 extra-inning victory over Duke, which snapped the winning streak of one of the greatest college nines in history at 25 straight.

He also ended a game that will never be forgotten at College Park; a game which packed almost every thrill known to baseball and which further established Maryland's slim ace, Earl Springer, as one of the outstanding young pitchers in this region.

The 20-year-old Hagerstown junior southpaw went the route, hurling good baseball all the way and displaying unlimited heart in limiting the hard-hitting Blue Devils to 11 hits in face of miserable support afield. In dealing Duke its first defeat in 14 games this season and its first since the early part of the 1937-38 campaign when North Carolina State stopped Jack Coombs' nine by 5-2, Springer gave a performance nothing short of sensational.

To the team that has won the North Carolina Big Five title and the Southern Conference championship for two years in succession, Springer gave only eight clean hits. Seven of their vicious hitters, who have batted more than .300 as a team this season, Springer struck out. Only one did he walk, and at no time, even when his mates fell apart in the ninth to allow the Blue Devils three unearned runs and apparently clinch for them the victory, did he lose his poise or his great competitive heart and spirit.

Although Maryland received the benefit of two unearned runs which enabled it to get back in the running in the eighth, at 4-5, and although two consecutive errors by Russ Bergman, star Duke shortstop,

Rizzo, Sewell Beat Reds, 2-1, For Pirates

Pittsburgh Ends Its 8-Game Losing Streak; Rizzo Hits 2 Doubles

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, May 1.—Johnny Rizzo's bat and spectacular pitching by Huett (Ripper) Sewell snapped Pittsburgh's eight-game losing streak today as the Pirates beat the league-leading Cincinnati Reds, 2 to 1.

The speedy young Pirate leftfielder drove in both of his mates' runs with ringing doubles in the first and third innings. Later he added a single to his batting average.

Sewell, who will be 30 May 11, worked as cool as a veteran in winning his first major league game. He held the slugging Reds to six hits, two of them scratches,

Cleveland, May 1 (AP).—Fred Apostoli, of San Francisco, recognized as world's middleweight boxing champion in New York and California, won a close ten-round decision over Eric Seelig, of New York, here tonight in a non-title bout. Apostoli weighed 159¼ and Seelig 163.

Dodgers Take 3-Hour Game From Phils

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, May 1.—In a wild, see-saw ball game that involved seven pitchers and took 3 hours and 2 minutes, the Dodgers out-lasted the Phillies today, 13-12, by pushing over two runs in the last of the ninth after Philadelphia had taken a one-run lead with seven tallies in the first half.

Emmett Mueller started the Phils' futile comeback with a home run over the score board.

With Jim Henry, the Phils' fourth hurler on the mound, Brooklyn opened its half of the ninth with Fred Sington, batting for Manager Leo Durocher, drawing a walk. Mungo ran for him and was sent to second as Oris Hockett, another pinch-hitter, dropped a single in center. Tut Stainback was sent in to run for Mungo, both men advanced while Goody Rosen was being thrown out, and both scored as Cookie Lavagetto drove a single into centerfield.

Walter Haight Bets 50 Cents, The Big Piker

By the Associated Press.

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, May 1.—Holders of six tickets profited handsomely as the meeting opened when they were fortunate enough to hold winning daily double tickets worth $2,050.50 for $2. The combination which hit was Nos. 10 and 1, Sally Pass By in the first race and Chimney Top in the second. In the straight mutuel wagering Sally Pass By paid $48.30 for $2 and Chimney Top's backers collected $20.70.

Included in the winners were George R. Wilson, and a Mr. O'Rourke, both of Baltimore; a woman who gave the name Mrs. Hall, of Virginia, and a woman who said she was Mrs. Smoot from Washington.

One ticket was held by four turf writers who pooled 50 cents each to buy a ticket. Their names were given to Mortimer Mahony, director of the mutuels, as Arthur Brown and Walter Haight, of Washington, and Eddie McCann and Mickey McGuire, of Baltimore.

Haight is racing editor of The Washington Post.

Nats Acquire Bud Thomas On Waivers

St. Louis, May 1.—Pitcher Luther (Bud) Thomas, one-time Washington sandlotter, today was acquired by the Washington club from the Philadelphia Athletics at the $7,500 waiver price.

THOMAS

Originally a protege of Clark Griffith's, Thomas was claimed by the Washington club three days ago when waivers were asked by Connie Mack. The deal was consummated today when the three-day waiver period expired with no other clubs claiming the pitcher.

Regarded two years ago as a promising addition to Connie Macks' pitching staff, Thomas fell from grace with the manager of the A's by his failure to win persistently. He was off to a poor start this year, being knocked from the box in his two appearances.

With the Nats, Thomas will be used chiefly as a relief pitcher, Manager Bucky Harris stated. Harris requested that Griffith claim the 28-year-old right-hander. The Nats'

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

St. Louis, Mo., May 1.—Unlike Hitler, some of the New Deal acts and those trousers you might have slept in, big league baseball has a favorable press. In many cities, favorable isn't exactly the word for it. Better make it worshipful.

POVICH

At least that's the impression we glean in our dashes around the baseball circuits. What else are we to think when we read in New York newspapers, for example, not that the Yankees were beaten by Washington but that "Our Yankees went down to a heart-breaking defeat today." And a Cincinnati newspaper, its headlines face-up in the lounge cars of the Nats' special train, blares that "Our Reds Now Lead the National League."

Just what are the functions of a baseball writer? Is he a reporter apart from the common herd, unfettered by the demands of impartiality? Is he excused from the unwritten rule that newspaper reporters must put bias aside, bury his personal feelings and call 'em as he sees 'em without prejudice? Up there in the press box and later when he starts punching his portable, is he a reporter or a rooter?

The evidence is that, by and large, they are as much rooters as reporters. And perhaps that isn't their fault. In fact, it probably isn't the fault of anybody but the hometown fans who devour the favorable reports, want little of the otherwise. Editors tremble lest a political story be colored, they watch the output of dramatic critics like hawks lest it be too Pollyanna-ish. The news that goes over the city desk is fine-combed for bias. But baseball—ah! editors are a bit generous on that point.

Red Sox, Bees Are 'Perfect'

Editors won't stand for the bare-faced alibi. That is going too far. And on occasion they get up on their hind legs and command a reporter to "put the rap in" on the home club if the situation warrants.

But barring clear-cut cause for criticism of the biting kind, the baseball writer usually can be tolerant with the home club.

It's a flattering commentary, undoubtedly, on baseball's place in the American scene, this kindly bent of the newspapers toward the game. And unlike radio sponsors, a city's newspapers—at least Washington's newspapers—are under no obligation to big league club owners. Radio sponsors are given contracts for broadcasting rights with the understanding that they will boost the team. Washington newspapers are uncompromised.

In all of the 12 cities in the league, Washington is the only town in which the newspapers pay the expenses of their baseball correspondents.

In Yew York, Chicago, St. Louis and all the rest, the correspondents are on the cuff, with the ball clubs picking up the tab for their rail fare and hotel expenses. It amounts to a considerable item, but hardly enough to prejudice a paper in favor of the home-town team. Any favoritism that is shown is fairly natural.

The most favorable baseball press of any big league city probably is that enjoyed by the two Boston clubs. Rare is the day when a Boston paper puts in the rap on a local club. In the main, Boston baseball writers are staunch old party men, quick to gloss over defeats, tumbling over themselves to hail victory. The Red Sox and the Bees can do little wrong in the eyes of their camp-following scribes.

We'll never forget the time we rummaged through the files of the Boston Public Library for the newspaper account of the only no-hit ever pitched by Walter Johnson. That was in 1920, at Fenway Park. We found the story. We waded through 200 words of sympathy and consolation for Harry Harper, the Boston pitcher, who, it seems had lost the game, 1 to 0. Eventually it was told briefly that Johnson had pitched the first no-hitter of his career.

Most New Yorkers Partial

Save for one New York newspaper which has a long-standing feud with Bill Terry, and another which has singled out Leo Durocher for the rap, Manhattan baseball writers are on the bandwagons of their clubs. Even to the extent of writing with arched eyebrows when they must write of a Yankee defeat. In a city where the visiting club gets a better break from the fans than it does in any other big league point, it gets grudging credit from the writers.

It's about the same all over the league, with only a couple of exceptions. St. Louis writers are probably quickest to give the visiting team due credit. In recent years, Philadelphia newspapers have had the hammer on Connie Mack, but at the first sign of a turn in the club's fortunes, the same papers will be back on the bandwagon. That goes for Chicago, too.

If there is anything downright funny in the baseball writing situation, it's probably at Cleveland. There the writers blow hot and cold from week to week. In their written opinions the Indians are either pennant mad—or simply mad.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

(Bob Considine is on a brief vacation. While he is away his column will be written for him by prominent sports figures.)

By Dolly Stark,
National League Umpire.

New York, May 1.—After being hurt over in Brooklyn's Ebbets Field, in the opening game of the season between the Giants and Dodgers, I suddenly discovered that an umpire, too, has friends among the fans. I was amazed at the interest displayed by fans in my profession. They are not only kind and sympathetic—indicating that they rarely mean it when they call an umpire a few varieties of bums—but they also want to know about the trials and tribulations of the man in the blue suit.

STARK

I am by no means attempting to make the umpire's job seem like a task of Herculean proportions, but an arbiter faces many trying conditions during an afternoon's work. Such elemental conditions as rain and darkness are the bane of an umpire's life, and the seemingly trifling matter of ground rules has produced some serious headaches. There are, without exaggeration, about 100,000 situations that arise for an umpire in any one day, from the time he gets out of bed to the hour he retires.

People are always asking me how I got into umpiring. I've been an umpire for 18 years, 12 of these in the majors. But I have been exceptionally fortunate. It was Clyde Engel, the old Red Sox third baseman—the same Engel who hit the ball Fred Snodgrass muffed in the deciding game of the 1912 World Series between Boston and the Giants—who gave me my first break. Clyde was coach of the University of Vermont baseball team in 1923 when he asked me to umpire a game. I've been at it ever since.

Got Lucky Break at Start of Career

I was a very lucky fellow, moreover, to break into the majors with such umpires as Bill Klem, Ernie Quigley and Charley Moran. They were helpful no end in getting me started. Klem, Quigley, Moran, Billy Evans, Red Ormsby, George Moriarty and Bill McGowan have done a great deal to make umpiring the dignified profession it is today. They have given invaluable aid to young umpires breaking in. There is no other business in the world where that feeling of co-operation and helpfulness exists between veteran and rookie.

Gestures by ballplayers are often misconstrued by the fan. Take a popular player like Joe Moore. Joe is at the plate . . . the pitcher delivers a ball that cuts the center of the plate. The umpire calls a strike and Moore steps out of the batter's box. He is shaking his head and he starts talking to the umpire. Immediately the fans start shouting:

"Attaboy, Joe! Tell that blind Tom where to get off, the big bum . . ."

What Joe and many others really say in such cases is, "Gee, ump, I wish I had that one back again."

Some pitchers are harder to work with than others. A pitcher's delivery has a lot to do with it. Dazzy Vance, with his explosion curve and high hard one; Carl Hubbell, with his screwball and curve ball, equally as effective, and his fast one, were both grand to work with. So was Dizzy Dean. I suppose the toughest I ever looked at was Hub Pruett, Pruett, wno was Babe Ruth's nemesis, had what was called an "Enoch" ball—a combination of curve, fadeaway and screwball that was extremely hard to judge. Cy Blanton, of the Pirates, with his high-breaking curve, is also difficult because of his peculiar delivery.

I've had many thrills in my 12 years, but the greatest of them all came in the World Series of 1931. The series between the A's and the Cardinals was tied at three games each and the Cards were leading 4-2 in the ninth inning of the deciding game. I was working behind the plate. Suddenly, Burleigh Grimes, hurling for the cards, was stricken with acute appendicitis. Wild Bill Hallahan was summoned from the bullpen to face camera-eyed Max Bishop, then the best lead-off man in the majors.

A Tense Moment and a Tough One to Call

The tension was great. The only sound in the air was the flicking of typewriters and telegraph keys in the press box. There were men on first and second, two were out, and the count on Bishop reached three and two. The game and the series depended on the next pitch. Hallahan wound up and let fire. The ball sped toward the heart of the plate and it was lucky for me that Bishop hit it on a line to Pepper Martin for the third out. That would have been a tough one to call.

Carl Hubbell gave me my next biggest thrill in the all-star game of 1934 at the Polo Grounds. Fifty thousand fans were in the stands that afternoon and never in my career have I seen a player receive such an ovation as was given the master of the screwball when he struck out Ruth, Gehrig and Foxx—three of the game's mightiest hitters—in one eventful inning.

The greatest player I ever saw was Ty Cobb.

Baseball is the national pastime because it is bigger than any one individual. It has done well at all times—good or bad. And it was great fans, men like George M. Cohan, Sam Harris, Joe Bannon, Jay Flippen, Jack White and Bennie Fields, who delight in talking about players, past and present, men who would rather watch a ball game than eat and who know as much about the game as most people in it.

(Tomorrow—Tommy Hitchcock, greatest polo player of all time, discusses the coming United States-Great Britain match in Bob Considine's On the Line column.)

Interhigh Interest Centers on Tech and Anacostia Today

Three Games Scheduled For Series

Wilson and Central Meet; Roosevelt Plays Western; All Games at 3:30 P. M.

Given the slightest nod from the erratic spring weather, Washington's public high schools take up the sagging reins of their interhigh baseball series today with three games scheduled for as many different diamonds. Interest still will be heaped on Tech's initial start against Anacostia, postponed from last Friday, but the games between Wilson and Central and between Roosevelt and Western will hardly be overlooked. The three clashes take place at Tech, Central and Western diamonds, respectively, starting at 3:30 p. m.

Each of the teams involved, except Tech, have already poked a hesitant finger into the 1939 mixup, and Anacostia, Roosevelt and Central are the three holding victories. The triumph of the Indians of Anacostia was easily the outstanding, coming over Eastern's defending champions in an upset, and that fact should center interest in the Anacostia-Tech fray.

In today's game, as in their surprising victory over the White Tide, the Indians will be forced to function minus their first string infield but Coach Roland Lund is becoming more satisfied with his present line-up every day. The five lettermen will warm the bench until the next release of grades, and perhaps longer. Art Faircloth will send his sizzling slants against Tech's unfathomed nine, and the opposition will be either Heinie Webb or Dickie Wine.

Big Eddie Vermillion, whose heady performance earned a shutout for Roosevelt over Wilson in the Riders' first game, will probably see action in the Roosevelt-Western clash, and Coach Moore of Western may start his southpaw sensation, Carmel Nance, again. The latter was roundly whaled by inconsiderate batters of Central last week, but hopes for a little more support.

At Central it will be Dick Rozelle against Herman Byer in Wilson's desperate effort to stay in the Western League race. One more loss and it goes definitely out of serious consideration.

Maryland

helped them deadlock the score at 8-8 in the ninth. Springer deserved his fourth straight win.

After Cox, batting for Bill England, had started the tenth with a sharp single to centerfield which Crash Davis, the Devils' great defensive second baseman, failed to touch with a prodigious leap, Springer laid down a perfect bunt to place Cox in a scoring position on second base.

It was then, after Angelo (Shorty) Chumbris had flied deep to rightfield for the second out, that Knepley ended the game.

The visitors amassed a lead of 5-1 into the eighth, for the Terps had been able to get three hits and a single run off the fast-balling Kerr. Then the Terps fashioned a three-run rally from three hits, a walk and a trio of wild pitches by Kerr.

But just as Duke's pitcher had ruined his own cause by throwing away three deliveries and allowing two Terps to score, so Springer's own mates betrayed him in the first of the ninth. On a pair of fluke hits, which fell between undecided Maryland fielders, and one clean blow by the dangerous Bergman, Duke forged into what seemed a prohibitive 8-4 lead and about 1,000 disgusted Terrapin rooters began to leave.

With one out in the ninth, however, Maryland went about its business of deadlocking the score, with the aid of some doubtful relief pitching by Johnny Perry. Perry, who had supplanted Kerr on the mound with none out in the eighth and retired the Terps without further trouble, hit Shorty Chumbris with a pitch to launch the uprising.

Errors by Bergman on grounders by Knepley and Keller, the latter after Bengoechea had popped to second for the first out; a wild pitch which scored Chumbris; a two-run single by Johnson, and a game-tying double by Fritz Maisel, a substitute outfielder, accomplished the knotting.

Lorton Blues Open With 8-7 Victory

A nip-and-tuck battle between the Palace A. C. and the Lorton Blues ushered in the baseball season Sunday at Lorton, Va., the Blues winning by a close 8-7 margin on an error by Palace's Arthur in the final inning. Lewis started the game for the losers, but was slammed from the box before the first inning was over by Lorton batsmen, who accounted for four runs in that period.

The Brighter Side

By Damon Runyon

Mr. Joe Turp writes:

Brooklyn, April 28.

Dear Sir: The other night my wife Ethel woke me up out of a sound sleep by shaking me by the arm and she ses wake up Joe, wake up. I ses, what is the matter, Ethel, is the house on fire? She ses are you awake now, Joe? I ses certainly I am awake. I ses how could I be talking to you if I was still asleep? She ses, well you were snoring something terrible. Turn over on your side, Joe, and then you will not snore so loud.

RUNYON

I ses, see here Ethel, do you mean to say you woke me up just to tell me I was snoring? She ses yes, you were snoring so loud you were making the whole house shake. I have not been able to sleep a wink, Joe. You were going uh hah hug uh hah hug uh hah hug uh hah ug. I ses, please, Ethel, I ses just let me get in a word edgeways, will you? she says, why sure, Joe, but that is the way you were going all right. Uh hah hug uh hah hug uh hah hug uh huh ug.

I ses, Ethel will you kindly stop that noise? She ses, well you see how terrible it sounds, Joe. Uh hah hug uh hah hug uh hah hug. I ses, oh, Ethel, you are just making it out worse than it was. I ses maybe I was breathing a little heavy, because I was pretty tired when I came home from work tonight. I ses a fellow has got a right to breathe a little heavy when he is sleeping if he is tired from working hard all day.

Serious Business

Ethel ses, no, Joe, it was not just heavy breathing. You were snoring. You were laying on your back with your mouth wide open and you always snore a little when you are that way, but I never heard you snore before like you did tonight. I tried to roll you over myself, Joe, but you were too heavy for me to manage good. I was going to stuff something in your mouth, too.

I ses, what d you mean, you was going to stuff something in my mouth? I ses what was you going to stuff in my mouth? She ses, I thought of a towel, Joe, because that was the only thing handy. I ses, oh you did, hay? I ses, why Ethel you might have choked me to death, and she ses, yes that is what I was afraid of.

I ses, well, it is certainly a fine thing if a fellow cannot go to sleep in his own bed when he is tired without his wife thinking of stuffing something in his mouth. I ses, suppose I stuffed something in your mouth some night, Ethel? She ses, oh, I do not keep my mouth open and snore, Joe.

Moms Says So

I ses, how do you know? I ses, did you ever see yourself when you were asleep? I ses, did you ever hear yourself? She ses, of course not Joe, but my moms ses I sleep as quiet as a little child. She ses I never made a sound. I was thinking of my mom's, Joe, while I was lying here listening to you going uh hah hug uh hah hug, and what she used to do to my pops when he laid on his back with his mouth open and snored.

I ses, oh, some member of your family snored, did they? Ethel ses yes my pops was a terrible snorer like you, but he went hunk honk hunk honk hunk honk instead of uh hah hug uh hah hug.

I ses, Ethel, if you keep making those noises I will jump out the window and she ses, why Joe, you would land right in my little flower bed and spoil it.

I ses, well then, let me go back to sleep, Ethel, and she ses, don't you want to hear what my moms used to do to my pops to keep him from snoring. I ses no, and Ethel ses, well, I might as well tell you, because I am wide awake now from your snoring and it will take me awhile to settle down again. My moms used to put a cake of soap in my pops mouth.

Home Remedy

I ses Ethel this is a fine time to try to kid somebody and she ses I am not kidding, Joe. My moms really used to put a cake of soap in my pops mouth when he got to snoring loud like you do. She has often told me about it. It was a cake of soap too big for him to swallow, so he could not choke himself on it, but it was big enough so he could not snore through it. Joe, my moms ses it was wonderful the way it made my pops stop snoring.

I ses, Ethel, if ever I woke up and found a cake of soap in my mouth somebody would hear about it. I ses, that would be grounds for divorce, and Ethel ses, why Joe, I would never put a cake of soap in your mouth and you know it. I ses, well you was just thinking about a towel. I ses I guess I better sleep in another room alone and lock myself in before something happens to me right in my own house and she ses, but what would I do if a burglar got in the house and you were not here with me?

I ses, Ethel, try putting a cake of soap in his mouth and she ses, that's foolish, Joe, because a burglar would not be asleep and snoring. I ses, good night, Ethel, and she ses, well, good night, Joe, but this time I wish you would try not to go uh hah hug uh hah hug before I get to sleep myself.

Yours, truly, JOE TURP.

The figures show that arts and sciences are attracting more tourists than Sally Rand. However, when the figures show we will look at Sally's.

We've got two world fairs going now full blast and war is a secondary amusement. But owing to the sales tax, luxury tax and super-taxes the penny arcades cost 48 cents. And due to the shrinkage in currency the dollar arcades cost only 47 cents. Looks like the house of tomorrow should contain an extra large laughing room.

Posedel Gives Giants 4 Hits As Bees Win, 7-2

Boston Takes Lead As Right-Hander Checks New Yorkers

By the Associated Press.

Boston, May 1. — Right-Hander Bill Posedel, making his first start of the season after two relief jobs, turned in a four-hit pitching performance today, to whip the New York Giants, 7 to 2, and shoot the Boston Bees into the National League lead on the strength of their fifth straight victory.

Posedel, who was with Brooklyn last year, had a one-hit shutout going into the ninth. Then three singles and an error by Toby Cuccinello combined to give the Giants their two runs.

Before a chilled crowd of 3,188, the Bees started early to put the game in the bag. Singles by West and Garms in the first frame produced one run, and they got two more off Slick Castleman in the second. Fletcher singled and Miller doubled, the former scoring on a wild pitch and Fletcher crossing the plate while Posedel was hitting into a double play.

Castleman was yanked after walking the first two men to face him in the third, and Al Simmons greeted Lohrman, his replacement, with a single to center that drove in one tally. Cuccinello then blasted a home run over the left field fence for three more and the ball game.

Until the seventh, Posedel hurled no-hit ball, retiring the seventh-place Giants in order from the second through the sixth. Mel Ott broke the ice with a two-bagger after two were out in the seventh.

Eagle Netmen Beat Catawba Here, 5 to 2

American University's netmen lost two of their five singles matches to Catawba University, of North Carolina, yesterday at Columbia Country Club, but swept the doubles to earn a 5-to-2 victory. The most difficult of the doubles was the match which B. Fausold and Harold Landsman took from Haag and Surratt by scores of 6—4, 6—3.

After dropping his first singles set to Towson, of Catawba, Fausold staged a rally in his second set but was finally on the short end of a 3—8, 6—4, 3—8 count. Ernie Webb and Howard Hudson won their singles for American, the first beating Haag in straight sets, 6—4 and 6—1, and the latter going through 18 games in the first set before beating Moorehead by 9—7 and 6—1. Harold Landsman accounted for the Eagles' second single loss when he fell before Surratt, 6—1, 3—6, 3—8.

Webb and Hudson played the last doubles match and gave American its top-heavy total when they trounced Towson and Moorehead by 6—0, 6—2.

Wilson's Rally In Fifth Beats Little Hoyas, 8-6

A five-run rally in the fifth inning gave Wilson High diamonders an 8-6 victory over Georgetown Prep yesterday on the Garrett Park field in an eight-inning contest.

The Little Hoyas scored four times in the third, but their lead was short lived as the Wilson nine batted around in the fourth and gave Bill Poore a three-run lead. Poore was relieved in the seventh but received credit for the victory.

Wimsatt, who went the route for the leaders, allowing eight hits, was the victim of poor support, his mates kicking in six errors.

Turf 'Experts' See Two-Horse Race in Derby

Johnstown and Technician Loom Strongest in Field

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Ky., May 1.—Derbytown perked up its ears tonight as the vanguard of the annual crowds which head for this racing capital to see the Kentucky classic began to pour in from all sides.

As hotel business picked up with early arrivals among the 80,000 to 90,000 expected to see Saturday's sixty-fifth renewal of the historic mile-and-a-quarter, most veteran horsemen predicted the event shaped up as a two-horse affair, between William Woodward's big bay Johnstown, and Herbert M. Woolf's son of Isaco, Technician.

Even the Derby books agreed with that theory. The latest odds made it appear all but these two likely choices, and possibly W. L. Brann's Challedon, might just as well have stayed at home. One St. Louis quotation listed Johnstown, six-length winner of last Saturday's Wood Memorial at Jamaica, at even money, and his longest price was 2½ to 1. Technician, working well here in the blue grass since winning the Flamingo in Florida, was rated at odds of from 3 to 4½.

Challedon, generally, was conceded about as much chance as William Ziegler, jr.'s El Chico, which arrived at the Downs today with Trainer Matt Brady, while scattered support was forthcoming for the Earle Sande-trained Heather Broom, W. E. Boeing's Porter's Mite, Mrs. Bessie Franzheim's mud-running Xalapa Clown and Junius W. Bell's Steel Heels.

Derby decorations broke out in parts of the city today, from Fourth and Walnut streets on out. Banners bearing pictures of horses and other symbols of this "big week" in the Blue Grass were strung overhead on the main thoroughfares, and knots of horsemen dotted Fourth street arguing the relative merits of the candidates.

A small field was in prospect for the call to the post in the run for the roses, with the chances of a starting number approximating the ten which ran last year, when Technician's stablemate, Lawrin, won the pot of gold.

All the outstanding contenders among the original eligible list of 115 were on hand tonight with the exception of Johnstown, and Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons was due at this beautiful racing oval with his long-striding son of Jamestown-La France tomorrow.

Nats, 'Hottest' Club in League, Open Western Tour Today

Gelbert's Bat Given Credit For Success

Nationals Also Are Getting Splendid Pitching; DeShong To Face Browns

By Shirley Povich.
Staff Correspondent.

St. Louis, May 1.—Out here in the West where the handshake is supposed to be a bit stronger, but the pitching and hitting not so good, Bucky Harris' surprising Nats arrived today, tabbed as the hottest club in the American League.

Out here in the West, the Nats will drop down into cheaper company, as the race track folks would say. After mingling with such esteemed folks as the Red Sox and Yankees in seven of their first nine games, the Nats will open a two-game series tomorrow with the lowly regarded Browns.

Harris' club is, indeed, the surprise club of the league and winning, besides ball games, an entirely new sort of respect in American League circles. This new respect is all very logical. All that the Nats have been doing is slapping down with great regularity the Yankees and the Red Sox, the two clubs who were supposed to outdistance the rest of the league like Man o' War and Twenty Grand in a race with your milkman's plug.

Nats Are Yanks' Jinx

It seems that the only three defeats the Yanks have suffered in their eight American League games this season were handed 'em by the Nats. Not bad. And in a two-game series with the Red Sox, Harris' club split even. Against the Red Sox and Yanks in their last four games, the Nats won three. Not bad a-tall. At present, Washington has a three-game winning streak.

It's all fairly simple to explain. All of a sudden the Nats began to get swell pitching and co-operated by belting the ball hard. They used up nine of the Red Sox pitchers in two games, then went to Washington and knocked George Caster of the A's out of the box, and then went to New York and licked such as Lefty Gomez and Oral Hildebrand.

Their recent victories haven't had a profound effect on their own standing in the American League—they're only in fourth place—but what the Nats have done is tightened up the league race to the point where, as a fourth-place club, they're only a half game behind the leaders. Just by way of citing how closely the teams are bunched, the Nats would now be leading the league if they had won that opening in Philadelphia, where they took a 2-0 beating.

Gelbert Main Cog

Charley Gelbert, as much as anybody else, has probably been responsible for the rise in the Nats' fortunes. The former Cardinal has been a potent performer for the Nats with his consistent slugging and his splendid play at third base. But all down the line the Nats have been getting results.

When Harris benched the brilliant Gelbert the other day against left-handed pitching in New York, Buddy Lewis returned to the lineup and responded nobly by banging out three hits, including the single that scored two runs to win the ball game. And Bobby Estalella, finally restored to the outfield, celebrated his return by swatting Gomez for a triple and a single.

And the reformation of the Nats apparently affected Jimmy Wasdell also. That young man, perilously near release to the minors, or at least relegation to the bench, did nothing but slam out four straight hits against Hildebrand when he finally got the opportunity to play ball.

Pitchers Praised

But the Nats' pitching! Ah, that's been Harris' prime delight. Where the Nats' manager could perceive last week only a pair of disappointing rookie left-handers, he now is beholding visions of two swell southpaws. When Ken Chase and Joe Krakauskas rebounded from their early defeats to lick the Yankees on consecutive days, holding them to one run in each game, they established themselves pretty thoroughly with Harris.
only three runs. Not bad.

Notes on the Nats.—Jimmy DeShong will get the assignment tomorrow against the Browns . . . who are expected to counter with Van Atta . . .

A favorite fellow with Bucky Harris these days is Alex Alexandra . . . The vast Venezuelan's two relief pitching jobs against the Yankees hint that he'll be around for a long, long time . . . in fact, Alexandra may become so important in the Nats' scheme that little Rene Monteagudo will continue with the club if only for his value as an interpreter . . . With Myril Hoag playing in their outfield, and Joe Glenn, another former Yankee, catching, the Browns are not the same pushovers they have been in previous seasons . . . Bucky Harris is undisturbed by Rick Ferrell's batting average . . . the catching job Ferrell is doing has been no small part of the success of the Nats' pitchers.

St. Alban's Net Team Wins, 4-1

St. Alban's racquet wielders defeated St. John's, 4-1, yesterday in the first matches of the Private School League. Capt. Cowan, St. Alban's star, nosed out Hughes, of St. John's, in the first match to give his team a lead which the Johnnies could not overcome.

After downing Hughes in the first set, 6—3, Cowan was treated with several hot volleys that buried him under, the result being a 4—6 set down in the second set. But Cowan came back in the third to win, 6—0.

In other singles matches Chewing (St. Alban's) defeated Maulding, 6—3, 6—4; Cooper (St. Alban's) defeated Mulvihill, 6—2, 6—3. In the doubles Manger and Pritchett (St. Alban's) defeated Hughes and Maulding, 2—6, 6—0, 6—4; Batchelder and Mulvihill (St. John's) defeated Lee and Myers, 9—7, 6—4.

C. U. Gridmen Beat Virginia In Scrimmage

Practice Game at Charlottesville Ends In 12-7 Victory

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 1.—A streamlined running attack brought Catholic University a 12-to-7 victory over the University of Virginia this afternoon in their second yearly spring practice meeting. Dutch Bergman's brilliant backs crossed the Cavalier goal twice in a regular session, then added another touchdown for good measure in an added session.

Frank Krawczel, John Matukaitis, Charlie Montenout, Dicco Pirro and Pete Sachom combined their talents to give the Cardinals the point advantage in a workout under the direct supervision of the coaches who followed the action at close range, making frequent suggestions and criticism, and almost as frequent substitutions.

Catholic accounted for ten first downs during the regular play period; Virginia made eight. During the whole of a May afternoon that was ideal for football the play was extremely close, and fumbles at crucial periods cost the Virginians several scoring opportunities.

The Cardinals counted first, when the veteran Krawczel broke over center and sprinted nearly half the length of the gridiron. But the point-try kick was wide.

Bob Lamas' passes put the Cavaliers in scoring position toward the end of the first half, and LeRoy Neustedter smacked through the Washingtonians' line to score, and Frank Dudley drop-kicked to give Virginia a lead.

After the intermission Catholic charged deep into Virginia territory with a high speed running attack that offset aerial ineptness. But Virginia held on the 15 and passed and charged back down the field until a fumble cut short the drive.

Here Catholic reached into the trick satchel for a screen pass legal under revised rules, which gained 50 yards when Pirro took Sachom's long aerial. And when the center of the Virginia line refused to budge, Matukaitis circled end to score. This time the point try was blocked.

Little time remained of the regular period, but the sun was high and the fray was started all over again. Before the three-hour session had been rounded out Virginia had lost a prime scoring opportunity because of a fumble, and as the sun neared the ridge of the ragged mountains Matukaitis bucked his way into scoring territory for an extra counter.

Virginia's co-captains, Jim Gillette and Harry MacLaugherty were not in action nor were the stalwart Cavalier linemen, Lee, Phil Rothar, McLaughlin and Arthur Bryant. Catholic was also without the services of several ill or injured regulars, including young Joe Guyon.

Heurich Nine Beats Grillmen In Opener, 6-1

James Checks Rivals As Brewer Slugs in Industrial Debut

The six-hit hurling of Lefty James, coupled with the timely hitting of Shortstop Frank Brewer, gave the Heurich nine a 6-1 victory over O'Donnel's Grill yesterday in the opening game of the Industrial League on the Ellipse field.

Brewer doubled to right to send two runners across home plate in the first inning, enough to win as things turned out. With Booty McQuinn, lead-off man for O'Donnel's, leading the attack, the losers pushed over a run in the first frame, but from here on, James was complete master of the sea food boys. Heurich grabbed two more in the second and two in the eighth, but the four tallies were superfluous.

Gus Cook Wins Belle Haven Golf

Gus Hook, superintendent of Baltimore parks, won low net in the monthly tournament of the Mid-Atlantic Association of Greenkeepers yesterday at Belle Haven, with 80—5, 75.

Hook and Bob Williams, pro-greenkeeper at Annapolis, tied for low gross with 80 each.

Two tied for low second net of 76, Williams, with 80—4, 76, and Tommy Ryan, pro-greenkeeper, of the host court in Alexandria, with 82—4, 76.

Ivan Gantz, Media Heights Course of Lancaster, Pa., had 82—4, 78; R. P. Hines, District public links, a 78 net; Tom Fisher, Burning Tree, 90—11, 79; J. W. Leverton, White Flint, 90—8, 72, while Bob Scott, Baltimore C. C., and R. D. Giddings, Gibson Island, did not complete their rounds.

Marion Brown Paces Woodmont Play With 89

Marion Brown, Manor's District champion, monopolized the honors in the guest day at Woodmont yesterday winning low gross honors with 42—47, 89. Mrs. L. G. Pray, also of Manor, had low net, a 91, while low putts went to Mrs. Donald Kane, Kenwood, with 32. Miss Brown had low putts with 28, including two greens where she chipped in the cup from off the edge, but was only eligible for one prize.

Miss Bertha Isreal won low net among the members with 90, while Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith and Mrs. Milton Harris tied with low putts, 32.

Manor and Kenwood golfers were guests of the Woodmont women's glof committee, that will invite two clubs a month over the season.

manager believes that Thomas' fast ball and hic urve will be effective in relief roles.

"I've always thought he was a pretty good pitcher," said Harris. "Usually he had one bad inning, which was enough to beat him. I think he has enough stuff to be a winning pitcher."

With the A's in the last two years he won 17 games and lost 29.

Hearing of the Nats' acquisition of Thomas tonight Buddy Myer had this to say, jokingly:

"I'll say one thing about Thomas—he's the best bean-ball pitcher I've seen."

Silver Spring Ladies Take Bowling Lead

Bronson Quaites Rolls First Ball to Open Duckpin Tournament

Victoria Laundry, Class C team from Silver Spring Ladies League, took the lead in its division as the Washington Ladies Duckpin Association tournament started last night at Arcadia Alleys for a 10-day run.

Bronson Quaites, president of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress, roled the first ball to give the event an official sendoff. The association presented Miss Quaites with flowers.

The Laundry five rolled 1,519, Congress Wallpaper and Bergman's Laundry, of the same league, 1,488 and 1,475, to lead the Class C scores. Monument Electric had 1,419 for the temporary advantage in Class D.

Leona Adair and Edith Orpin paired to take the lead in Class B doubles with 688, while Miss Quaites and Ora Emge had 637 for second place.

Queen Pin Bowlers Take B Class Lead

Queen pin bowlers from the Northeast Temple League took the Class B lead in the Washington City Duckpin championships last night at Temple Alleys with a 1,784 total, Ernie Hauser's 408 set was tops.

REA Cleaners, of the Prince George County League, went into second place in B with 1,772, led by a 375 from Horace Snowden. Mikal Kola, of Bethesda, took over seventh position with 1,723.

Sherman Clotheirs took over fifth place in C class with 1,720, with Billy Stalcup's 371 high. War Department No. 1, of the N. F. F. E. League, went into the runnerup spot in E with 1,656.

Duke Golfers Defeat Hoyas, 6-3, at Capital

Johnny Burke Loses; Brownell Has 69, Beats Billy Shea

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

They posted the "local boy makes good" sign at Capital Golf Club yesterday as the District's top-ranking golfer, Bobby Brownell, clipped par figures by a stroke with a 69 and led Duke's unbeaten golf team to a 6-3 victory over Georgetown.

Skip Alexander, bespectacled captain of the Blue Devils, handed Johnny Burke his first defeat in college competition since he captured the National Intercollegiate championship in Louisville last June to make it a bad day all around for the Hoyas.

It was the sixth straight of the current season for the Duke sextet and its seventeenth victory in succession over the past two years for the Southern Conference and Southern Intercollegiate champions. Every man on the team is a champion of a State or sectional tournament.

The outstanding victory for the Hoyas was scored by Billy Dettweiler, who was only three shots over par as he trounced Joe Taylor, newly crowned Southern intercollegiate champion, by a 4-and-3 margin. Charlie Pettijohn defeated Johnny Cree, of the Blue Devils, 1 up, while the locals also scored a victory in the last foursome when Ray Higgins started with a pair of birdies and defeated Russell, 2 and 1.

They Hoyas paired poorly and lost the best ball point in every match, breaking even in the six individual encounters.

Brownell was out in 34, one under par, and three up on Billy Shea, a rival since high school days, and closed the match on the fourteenth green by a 5 and 4 margin, still one below perfect figures. It was the best score of the day by several strokes. Dettweiler defeated Taylor in the same foursome but he and Shea fared poorly in the best ball, losing to Brownell and Taylor, 4 and 3.

Alexander, touted as one of the finest golfers in the South, was a little ragged around the greens, as was Burke, but he put on a sensational finish to win the match. One up and two to go on Johnny, he knocked a four iron shot on the par three seventeenth hole 2 inches from the cup—it looked like a hole in one from the tee—and won the match when Burke's 50-foot putt, a birdie attempt, stopped on the lip, after Johnny jumped in the air as he thought the putt was good.

Pettijohn was two up and four to go on Cree after leading all the way, lost two of the next three holes and then won the last hole with a bogey five for the match. He and Burke lost the best ball, 2 and 1.

Joe McBride, sixth man of the Hoyas, lost 4 and 3 to Guy Taylor and he and Higgins lost the best all on the seventeenth hole, 2 and 1.

Alexander (Duke), defeated Burke, 2 and 1; Pettijohn (Georgetown), defeated Cree, 1 up. Best ball Duke, 1 up.
Brownell (Duke), defeated Shea, 5 and 4; Dettweiler (Georgetown), defeated Taylor, 4 and 3. Best ball, Duke, 4 and 3.
Higgins (Georgetown), defeated Russell, 2 and 1; Miller (Duke), defeated McBridge, 4 and 3. Best ball, Duke, 2 and 1.

Here's Ultimate In 'Comebacks;' Braddock Trains

By International News Service.

New York, May 1.—James J. Braddock, former heavyweight champion of the world, announced today that he definitely will begin a comeback within the next few weeks in England.

BRADDOCK

Braddock has been working out daily at a local gymnasium and will start sparring tomorrow or next day, he said, with a view to getting in shape for a bout late this month or early in June with Jack Doyle, Len Harvey, Eddie Phillips or Larry Gaines under the promotion of Sid Hulls, of London.

Promoter Hulls will communicate with Joe Gould, Braddock's manager, by telephone from England tomorrow and probably will set a definite date at that time for the big Jersey dock-walloper's first start on his new comeback.

He was knocked out by Joe Louis for the heavyweight title at Chicago in June of 1937, and came out of subsequent retirement temporarily to pound out a thrilling victory over Tommy Farr a few months ago, after which he hung up his gloves again.

Pencheff, Powers On Wrestling Card

George PePncheff will be back again at Turner's Arena Thursday night to grapple in a special match on the card featuring Rosy Red Ryan and Jack Hader in their "rubber" headline bout.

Pencheff, who is undefeated in ten local engagements, will take on Ernie Powers, the former Canadian boxing champion. It will be a 30-minute match.

Also on the card is Cliff Olson, the Minnesota Swede, who makes his first appearance at the Arena after a nine-month absence. Olson's opponent will be Tom Mahoney.

Jim Admick, Manager Are Reinstated

Chicago, May 1 (AP).—The Illinois Boxing Commission reinstated Jimmy Adamick, Midland (Mich.) heavyweight, and his manager, James Brady, today after a suspension of about ten months.

They were suspended last July 5 for participating in what the commission described as a "fixed fight." Adamick won the bout on a two-round knockout of Jack Trammell.

The commission at the time of the suspension ruled Adamick could not fight in Illinois for one year and banned his manager for five years.

G.W.U., Riding Club to Stage Show on May 6

Many Classes Are Listed; Three Will Be Open for Students

The George Washington University Riding Club will sponsor the third annual University Horse Show, Saturday, May 6, at 2 p. m. on the Meadowbrook Show Grounds. The show is open to students of other schools in this vicinity.

Three classes, the G. W. hack class, the fraternity-sorority jumping class and the hunter hack, will be open only to students, and the top point scorer will be school champion.

Classes open to all entrants include beginners' horsemanship class, the bridal path hack, open jumping class and student jumping class.

Col. Robert A. Whittaker will judge the events, and Maj. Edward A. Kane will act as ringmaster.

Catherine Stewart, president of the club, is in charge of the show. Entries close tomorrow, but post entries will be accepted.

W. A. McClenon Heads Takoma Park League

Walter A. McClenon was elected president of the Community League of Takoma Park last night to succeed Dr. Guy L. Clinton. Other officers elected were Walter Prichard, vice president; Mrs. Harold C. Heffner, recording secretary; Mrs. Dana F. Angier, corresponding secretary, and Walter D. Lambert, treasurer.

The following were named delegates to the Montgomery County Civic Federation. Prichard, Judge H. C. Heffner and John R. Magness. Alternates are Walter McClenon, De Witt Zook and Dr. C. C. Galloway.

It was decided to send a letter to Gov. O'Conor requesting that the new police magistrate for the Silver Spring-Takoma Park area be appointed from Takoma Park.

Six Share in $2,050.50 Daily Double at Pimlico Track

OldRosebush Home First In Feature

Upsets Sun Egret In Inaugural Purse; Sally Pass By and Chimney Tops Score

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico, Md., May 1.—A series of upsets, topped by a $2,050.50 payoff in the daily double, marked the opening of the Maryland Jockey Club's stake-studded program. A half dozen customers collected the "get well" money on the twin wager. Up to and including the running of the $2,500 added Baltimore Spring Handicap, the favorites were conspicuous by their absence from the winner's circle.

The feature surprise was the brilliant performance of Old Rosebush, owned by Mrs. Anthony Pelleteri. He had been close in three previous starts in this State, but had shown nothing to give the majority of the customers the feeling that he would take the big money in the 6 furlong sprint. But at the finish line it was Old Rosebush by 2½ lengths in front of a photo finish for second money between the A. C. C. Stable's Sun Egret and J. Yancey Christmas' Rough Time.

With Sun Egret, winner of the Harford Handicap, installed the favorite by the crowd of 10,000, Old Rosebush provided those who thought he could do it with a $22 mutuel. To his owner, the 5-year-old son of Infinite and Goldiva brought $2,530 in purse money.

While Sun Egret managed to get a good money position at the end, the race was a two-horse affair between Old Rosebush and Rough Time. These two were first out of the gate and staged a nip-and-tuck struggle which ended when Rough Time, racing over the same track where he broke a bone in his foot two years ago, began to weaken. Jockey Charlie Stevenson, Maryland's leading jockey, let out the wraps on Old Rosebush at this point and the horse gradually opened a gap on his rival. Rough Time, under the sting of Jockey H. Dabson's whip, could not keep up, and was caught by the final charge of Sun Egret.

The biggest daily double of the season was, in the most part, the work of H. P. Metcalf's Sally Pass By, trained by Max Smart, who conditioned horses for years for the late Admiral Cary T. Grayson. Making the first start of her career, after being trained mostly at the Benning, D. C., track, the 2-year-old came from behind to beat out A. G. Vanderbilt's Corsica by a neck. She had only a scattered backing in the individual betting, as well as the daily double, and paid $48.30.

While it was youth that started the $2,050.50 ball rolling, it was old age in a horse way, that completed the deal. Chimney Top, hero of many a Maryland race, found the slightly dull track to his liking and withstood a long drive to down Jinx while performing in the colors of J. Kugelman. Cleaning Time, owned by Mrs. D. A. Buckley, was third in the field of 11.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SALLY PASS BY, $48.30, $19.90, $11.50; CORSICA, $9.10, $6.70; DARK RAPTURE, $4.30.

SALLY PASS BY, off alertly and kept out of trouble on the outside, improved her position gradually entering the stretch, engaged CORSICA and wore down the latter to close with good energy. CORSICA, first away, set a good pace and fought it out willingly; hence aught. DARK RAPTURE worked her way to contention and came with good speed in the final test. GOOD RECEPTION was off sluggishly and improved her position in the final three-eighths. ANNIE ALONE went evenly.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:45. Off at 2:50. Winner, J. Kugelman's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BILLY BEE, $12.80, $6.20, $4.60; MAECLOUD, $6.00, $4.40; ZOSTERA, $3.90.

BILLY BEE, going in best form, disposed of PATSEY BEGONE to take command and galloped into a long lead to win handily. MAECLOUD, slow to begin, came to the outside while improving her position sharply and was being taken up while holding place position safe at the end. ZOSTERA was in the thick of contention from the beginning, but weakened gradually during the stretch run. ZENANA could not keep up. WHITE COCKADE had early speed.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,300. The Mount Royal. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:15. Off at 4:15½. Winner, A. S. Hewitt's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ORCADES, $10.30, $5.00, $3.60; SUN LOVER, $3.60, $3.00; SKYFLIER, $5.00.

ORCADES, steadied along while racing on the outside of the leaders, responded when put to intermittent punishment and wore down SUN LOVER. The latter, slow to begin and losing ground for the quarter, improved his position sharply on the outside to get in front, moved in on the rail and closed gamely, but could not resist the winner. SKYFLIER forced the pace of LARKAR to take brief lead and weakened thereafter. DARK WATCH rallied mildly after a half and hung thereafter.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,500 added. The Baltimore Spring Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:45. Off at 4:46. Winner, Mrs. A. Pelleteri's ch. h. (5), by Infinite—Goldiva. Trained by A. Pelleteri. Net value to winner, $2,530; second, $500; third, $280; fourth, $100. Time, 1:13 1-5.

OLD ROSEBUSH, off alertly and steadied along while close to ROUGH TIME'S pace, wore down the latter in the early stretch and drew out under hand riding. SUN EGRET, outrun for 3 furlongs, saved ground entering the stretch, swung out for racing room and closed full of run. ROUGH TIME assumed command at once, raced on the inside of OLD ROSEBUSH, began weakening when straightened out in the stretch and was put to punishment. BATTLE JACK was off sluggishly, was hard ridden, but could not threaten seriously.

Selections at Pimlico

Everybody and his cousin has been sending in lists of all time sprinters, but it remained for Joe McCabe to come up with five brand-new ones. His line-up is Joe Blair, Useeit (dam of Black Gold), Iron Mask, Panzereta and Leochares. The new centerfield odds and results board was the subject of much favorable comment. The layout is the same as used at Santa Anita. It requires no squint from any part of the stands to keep up with the statistics on the bangtails. And that "Time of day" signal is a pip. Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, widow of the "Physician to Presidents," is starting a horse here tomorrow. Jockey George Seabo leaves Wednesday night for Louisille to ride W. L. Brann's Challedon in the Kentucky Derby. Jockey F. A. Smith, injured at Hialeah Park last winter, swung into atcion here today. He came in from Keeneland. Jockey Warren Yarberry went back to Kentucky but will return to pilot the Shandon Farm's Burning Star in the Dixie Handicap, a week from Wednesday. Condition books for the Charles Town meeting are being distributed by Greg Johnson. There are more than 100 jumpers on the grounds, including Annibal, owned by Tommy Hitchcock and winner of the Manley here last Noember. Annibal was regarded as the steeplechase king of 1938. The

Job Accidents Fewer Than Other Classes

Building Industry Continues to Show Consistent Drop

By Thomas M. Cahill.

A welcome message that occupational accidents are being reduced was brought to members of Washington Building Congress yesterday by W. Graham Cole, of New York, director of safety, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Mr. Cole addressed a luncheon meeting of the congress at Lafayette Hotel and in his subject, "Fitting Safety to Construction Business," grouped general accidents into motor and traffic, public place, home premises and occupational classifications.

The latter group today shows the smallest number of deaths and economic loss, he said, in part, and considerable reduction has been made in this kind of accident within the past few years. This is in face of an almost continuous increase in accidents in all other fields up to and including 1937, a downward trend having been noted during 1938.

Aware that his audience was particularly interested in occupational accidents, he informed it that last available figures indicate these resulted in an economic loss to American industry and public of approximately $700,000,000 in 1938, such accidents being responsible for 19,000 deaths. Since organized safety work was first undertaken in a deliberate manner, in 1913, however, there has been a decline, according to the National Safety Council, of approximately 43 per cent and a total estimated saving of 300,000 lives.

Construction Industry

Reductions noted in the construction industry are generally consistent with the splendid results which have been obtained through organized safety efforts in many industrial plants throughout the country, he reminded, reducting in frequency and severity rates having obviously been supplemented by an appreciable economic saving.

Admitting the need of physical safety on the job and the necessity for correct engineering procedure, Mr. Cole advised, we must realize that basically the human factor must be given adequate consideration in the development of any program to prevent accidents and decrease the frequency of operating errors. These human factors must be considered not only with respect to the employe but with respect to the supervisor and management. Some of these human factors he grouped under the general heading of faculty attitude, unsuitability for the job because of personal physical and mental conditions and inexperience.

The speaker explained that proper development of a program to prevent accidents, considering "accident" in the broadest possible term, requires several factors: First, if accidents and operating errors represent an important economic loss on a constructive job, prevention of these is an outstanding and definite responsibility of management. This responsibility cannot be delegated to anyone else inside or outside of the organization.

"No safety engineer representing an insurance company can stop accidents on your job," he emphasized, "unless you are thoroughly convinced of your responsibility and unless you take the active leadership necessary. In other words, the first step in a constructive program is the absolute conviction of the management that accidents are responsible for economic loss and can and must be reduced in frequency."

Proper Training

Likewise, the supervisor on a given section of the job is responsible for the prevention of accidents among his employes, he continued. He must be convinced of this responsibility by management and subjected to proper training opportunities. The selection and proper placement of employes physically and mentally capable of conducting the work to which they are to be assigned and having previous experience is essential. When necessary a proper training program is essential in order to integrate new employes into the organization.

Proper planning of the job from the time the ground is broken until the building is completed is an essential phase of the preventive program, he explained. This planning should include not only construction methods to be used, procedure to be followed in each step, but also provision for adequate protection of each operation during the course of construction.

In summation, he emphasized the fact that acidents are in reality operating errors which not only result in personal injury but also in inefficient operations, waste, high costs, and in some instances may actually represent the difference between profit and loss on a given job.

"Prevention of these errors," he concluded, "should not be considered as a welfare activity conducted for altruistic purposes, but rather a definite operating necessity, in most instances as important as any other phase of the operation of the job. Success of a preventive program will depend basically upon the active interest and leadership indicated by the management of your company."

Steel Industry Net Declines In 1st Quarter

Earnings Are 25.4% Less Than in Final Quarter of 1938

Cleveland, Ohio, May 1.—Fourteen leading iron and steel producers, representing 85.6 per cent of total ingot capacity, report net earnings in the first three months this year were $10,169,925, or 25.4 per cent lower than the $13,629,009 reported by the same companies for the fourth quarter last year, according to the magazine Steel today. In the first quarter of 1938, the 14 producers incurred an aggregate net loss of $3,788,575.

Assuming the experience of these producers to be typical, indicated net income for the entire industry approximated $11,880,000, or about $1.25 per ton on the 9,506,594 tons of ingots produced. This compares with indicated earnings of $1.62 per ton of ingots produced in the fourth quarter last year, and with a net loss of 92 cents per ton of ingots made in the first quarter of 1938.

Ingot operations for the industry averaged 54.14 per cent of capacity in the March quarter, down slightly from the 55.77 per cent average in the fourth quarter 1938. In the first quarter of 1938, operations averaged 31.58 per cent.

Commenting on the outlook for the remainder of the current quarter, E. G. Grace, president, Bethlehem Steel Corporation, said: "I don't see anything to indicate important change in the steel business either way. I don't look for the bottom to drop out of things, nor do I see any prospects for sharp improvement. Rather, I look for a slight shrinkage."

Knudsen Heads General Motors Administration

C. E. Wilson Becomes Executive Vice Pres.; Dividend 75 Cents

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 1.—W. S. Knudsen, president of General Motors Corp., was designated chairman of the company's administration committee by the board of directors today. To the post of vice chairman and executive vice president, which had been vacant since Knudsen himself vacated it, two years ago, to become president, was elected Charles Erwin Wilson, 48, of Detroit.

Wilson, born in Minerva, Ohio, and graduated from Carnegie Tech at 18, has been with General Motors 20 years, the last ten years as a vice president. Three new vice presidents were elected. They are Ernest R. Breech, 42; Graeme K. Howard, 43, and Bayard D. Kunkle, 56.

Breech, a native of Lebanon, Mo., has been group executive of the corporation's household appliance and aviation division. After graduating from the University of Illinois in 1921, he became comptroller of the Yellow Truck & Coach Manufacturing Co. In 1933-34 he was chairman of the board of Transcontinental & Western Air Lines. Later he became president of North American Aviation.

Overseas Manager

Howard, who has been general manager of overseas operations for the company's export division, was born in Los Angeles and graduated from Stanford University in 1917. During the war, he was captain of the Twenty-third Machine Gun Company, United States Army. He has been with General Motors ever since demobilization, spending ten years of that period abroad.

Kunkle, born in Steelton, Pa., was graduated from Pennsylvania State College in 1908 and joined General Motors in 1925 after varied manufacturing experience.

General Motors directors declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock payable June 12 to holders of record May 11. Similar dividends were declared in the two preceding quarters, while in each previous 1938 quarter the company paid 25 cents.

Packard Motor Announces Cuts Of $100 to $300

Detroit, May 1.—Climaxing an expansion program costing millions of dollars, Packard Motor Car Co., today entered its bid for a larger share of the popular-priced motor car business with price reductions ranging from $100 to $300. M. M. Gilman, newly elected president, said that the company now has the largest production capacity in its history.

"This is not a temporary price reduction," he said, "but the beginning of a new permanent price policy—the fulfillment of a plan that has been four years in the making.

"As a result of our four-year program of plant rearrangement and unification, and extensive outlays for equipment, Packard has effected important production economies.

"These economies are a major factor in allowing us to offer identical cars at these reduced prices, and thus pass the savings along to the public."

The three groups of cars affected are the Packard Six, the 120 and the Super Eight. The new prices start at $888 delivered in Detroit.

U. S. Displaces Reich In Sales to Brazil

The Commerce Department said yesterday that the United States outranked Germany in 1938 as a seller of merchandise to Brazil, after allowance for the depreciated value of Germany's askimarks. Based on the reichsmark value of German sales to Brazil, Germany outranked the United States last year and for the past several years, but officials said that Brazil pays for purchases from Germany with askimarks, which are cheaper than reichsmarks.

United States shipments to Brazil last year totaled $71,508,372, equal to 24.21 per cent of all the foreign merchandise bought by Brazil. Germany's sales, on the askimark basis, were valued at $61,179,288, or on a reichsmark basis at $73,808,784. Great Britain ranked third in sales to Brazil.

The Market

A Special Correspondent.

More Declines Than Advances as Trading Shrinks to Vanishing Point; Bonds Equally Dull and Featureless change was open for business today from 10 to 3, but no one knew the difference after the official day was over. For only 279,140 shares changed hands on the world's most active market place, which isn't as much as we could expect on a dull Saturday in the days before we knew anything about isms, easy money policies and appeasement.

For the sake of the record, this meant it was the dullest day on the big board since last June 8. One financial commentator dropped back to July 3, 1922, for a comparison, but our chief financial wizard, after searching diligently in dusty files, says this is all wet and that there was one other day that things have been as petrified. Emigrants from the financial district report that all brokers were at their desks at the appointed hour this morning and here and there were some customers, but the latter must have gone out to the World's Fair.

Among the various averages of stock market compilations, the one compiled by the Herald Tribune shows that throughout the day the fluctuation between the average highs and lows for the five hours was barely more than a quarter point. At the close there was a net loss of only 0.21 point. In other days this phenomenon would have called for a front page story; but we are getting far too accustomed to these dull sessions. One would think that Mr. Roosevelt was going to stay in Hyde Park and Herr Hitler in his Berchtesgaden retreat.

For those who wish to know, there was a bit of firmness in the public utilities, no change in the second grade rails and a bit of softness in the steels, metals and motors. Most active stock of the day was United States Rubber, followed by Callahan Zinc, that old line investment favorite, both of which rushed through with no change.

Commodity Gains

Far more significantly, and also more seriously, there were some changes of importance in the field of commodities. One of the difficulties of recent weeks has been the sagging tendency of commodity prices, for when prices ease off buying remains at a low level, but once a change appears, there is a rush to replenish depleted stocks.

Wholesale commodity prices have now moved ahead quite strongly, contrasting with the desultory performance of stocks. Nothing would be more welcome to business observers than a rise in commodities, which would stimulate buying by the consuming industries. Moody's commodity index went to 141.0 from 140.2, the sharpest rise of recent weeks, and the present level is the highest since March 29. A corresponding improvement took place in England, the Reuters U. K. index advancing 0.5 point to a new 1939 high. This index is regarded as indicative of international markets.

Increases today in commodities in primary markets included wheat, 1½ cents a bushel to a new 1939 high; corn, 0.875 cent a bushel; oats, 0.625 cent a bushel to a new 1939 high; rye, 0.5 cent a bushel; flour, 10 cents a barrel, 3 cents for most grades; tin, 0.45 cents a pound; cotton middling, 0.12 cent a pound and print cloth, 0.125 cent a yard.

In the cotton market the old crop positions went to new 1939 maximums but the new months were under pressure, with the close 12 points off to 9 points higher. Conditions regarded as menacing the new crop buoyed wheat futures and for the early part of trading prices were at their best since last summer. Major gains were cut down by profit taking but wheat closed up ⅝ to 1⅝ cents a bushel.

In the field of securities there was little to affect the value of stocks. Standard Oil, of New Jersey, declared a 2 per cent stock dividend. Steel operations started the week with their fifth consecutive decline, being 47.8 per cent of capacity against 48.6 per cent a week ago.

Bond Changes Narrow

Price changes in listed bonds were of a minor order today, save for a few movements in special groups. Even less impressive was the trading volume of $3,262,000 par value, which was the smallest for any full session since August 15, 1938, at which time war conditions restrained activity. Local traction bonds were in demand, but few other issues displayed anything resembling activity. Movements in most speculative issues were downward.

Interborough, Manhattan Railway and B. M. T. bonds all tended to advance, on improved prospects for early unification. The gains in these issues reached to more than 3 points. Lehigh Valley Coal bonds moved up on a small turnover. The market otherwise was quite inactive. Medium priced carrier bonds subsided slowly, with net losses rarely amounting to a full point. Holding company and convertible bonds were dull.

Long term United States Treasury bonds drifted slightly lower, save for a few inactive obligations that today made up for gains recorded generally last week. Guaranteed issues of the Farm and Home corporations were idle and lower. Telephone debentures were firm and small fractional gains appeared also in best power and light issues. Leading rails and industrials were steady.

Foreign dollar bonds were irregular and generally soft. Belgian issues improved against the trend, and there was a little interest in Canadians, but Scandinavians and Australian bonds merely idled. German and Italian bonds were neglected. Japanese issues suddenly became fairly active, leading observers to the opinion that sinking fund purchases have been effected. Latin-American default bonds were dull and lower.

Coca Cola Board Elects Acklin New President

Wilmington, Del., May 1 (AP).—Robert W. Woodruff, president of the Coca Cola Co. since 1923, was elected chairman of the board and chariman of the executive committee at the annual meeting today. The board named as president, A. A. Acklin, formerly vice president and assistant treasurer. W. C. Bradley, of Columbus, Ga., was elected chairman of the advisory committee. All other officers were reelected. All directors also were reelected.

Earnings for the three months ended March 31 were the largest for any first quarter in the company's history. Net applicable to 4,000,000 shares of common stock, after all charges and Class "A" dividends, were $4,817,764, compared with $4,414,195 for the comparable 1938 period.

Directors voted a dividend of 75 cents a share on common stock and the regular semi-annual dividend of $1.50 on Class "A" stock, both payable July 1 to holders of record June 12. The company paid 50 cents a share on common April 1, this year.

Japan Organizes Commercial Bank For Central China

Shanghai, May 1 (AP).—Japanese Embassy officials announced today the opening of a new Japanese-controlled bank, called the Huahsing Commercial Bank, in which the Japanese - fostered Nanking reformed government and six leading Japanese banks were said to be stockholders.

The undertaking was sad by Japanese to be a "joint Chinese-Japanese enterprise dedicated to the alleviation of financial stringency prevailing in central China." The bank, capitalized at 50,000,000 Shanghai dollars ($8,000,000) will operate within the jurisdiction of the Nanking government.

Foreign businessmen and bankers said they regarded the enterprise as a new effort to restrict their trade and banking in the Yangtze River valley. They expected that the new bank would attempt to establish a monopoly of financing whatever export trade has managed to survive in areas nominally under the Nanking government's authority.

Another Japanese commercial move today was the launching of the Central China Railways Company which is to operate 500 miles of Japanese-seized Chinese railways in the lower Yangtze River valley.

Wheat Prices Mount to Top For This Year

Advances of 1¾ to 2½ Cents Follow Covering by Shorts

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 1.—Another swift rise of wheat prices today carried the market to its best level since early last summer, establishing new high values for 1939 wheat contracts.

Gains of as much as 1¾ to 2½ cents, with May wheat quoted as high as 75⅛ and July and September as high as 74, or 6 to 7 cents higher than a week ago, were chalked up in a wave of short covering and stop loss purchasing. Heavy profit taking as a result of the recent upturn, the broadest the wheat pit has witnessed in almost a year, pared the gains just before the close, however.

Absence of moisture relief in dry sections of the winter wheat belt over the week-end and a forecast giving little promise of rain in the near future were important factors. With no indications of early deliveries of wheat on May contracts, dealers who have sold short covered their positions, which accounted partly for the outstanding strength of the delivery. Contracts remaining to be settled this month either by delivery of wheat or trading in the pit involve 12,000,000 bushels, having been reduced 8,000,000 bushels the past week.

Cotton Futures Irregular With Old Crops Higher

New York, May 1 (AP).—Old crop cotton deliveries slanted higher today while new months fell back. Offerings of the old months were closely held by possible sellers, mostly at limits above the market. Demand came principally through short covering and trade price fixing.

Declines in forward months, brokers said, were based mainly on opposition to the export subsidy plan which was reflected in foreign and Liverpool selling. This was partly offset, however, by good demand from mill interests.

The trade seemed to agree that with no break in the current tight supply situation probable before the current season ends, premiums on old crop months over new should continue.

I. B. A. Governors To Hold 100th Meeting

The board of governors of the Investment Bankers Association of America will hold its one-hundredth meeting, May 13 to 17, at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., it was announced today by Jean C. Witter, of Dean, Witter & Co., San Francisco investment firm, president of the association.

Most of the national committees of the association will hold meetings at White Sulphur during the same period, Mr. Witter said, and their members have been invited to attend the board sessions. Altogether some 250 representativse of member houses are expected to attend. The board includes 41 members, who represent all sections of the United States and Canada.

Steel Operations Continue Lower

New York, May 1 (AP).—Operations in the steel industry for the current week will decline 0.8 of a point to 47.8 per cent of capacity, compared with 48.6 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago operations were at the rate of 54.7 per cent of capacity, while a year ago they were 30.7 per cent.

Business Loans Drop $14,000,000 in Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board said today commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of banks declined slightly last week after rising for six consecutive weeks. Banks in 101 leading cities reported their business credits decreased $14,000,000 to $3,844,000,000 in the week ended April 26.

Banks in New York City, which reduced their business loans $6,000,000, and banks in the Chicago district, which reduced similar loans $5,000,00, were primarily responsible for the national decrease.

Philadelphia Banks Report Higher Profits

Philadelphia, May 1 (AP).—Net earnings of $35,300,000—a figure higher than that for 1936 or 1937, was reported for last year by the 649 banks of the Philadelphia Federal Reserve District. The Federal Reserve Bank analysis showed net earnings were $34,500,000 for 1937 and $35,000,000 for 1936.

The net addition to profits, however, was smaller than in 1936 and 1937. This decline in the net amount for distribution the Federal Reserve analysis attiributed largely to readjustments in book value of assets. Cash dividends declared aggregated almost $18,000,000, compared to $19,-600,000 in 1937.

Industrial Net In Quarter Up 73% Over '38

But Current Period's Profit Is Only Two-Thirds of 1937 Total

New York, May 1.—With reports for the first quarter from 318 representative corporations now in, it is apparent that American industry as a whole made a highly favorable showing in comparison with a year before, Standard Statistics says today. The total earnings (before preferred dividends) of these 318 companies was $276,155,000, against $158,993,000 for the first quarter of 1938, a gain of 73 per cent. However, if General Motors and United States Steel earnings are left out of the picture, the gain is only 46 per cent instead of 73 per cent.

Aggregate first quarter 1939 earnings were only about two-thirds as much as in the first quarter of 1937 and only about at the 1936 level. In 1936, the trend was upward, whereas at present it is expected that the second quarter showing will be poorer than the first.

*Deficit.

In considering this table, consideration must be given to the fragmentary character of the returns for each industry and the probability that in some industries, aircraft manufacturing for instance, reports from a larger number of companies will reverse the figures presented for the individual industries. However, the number of companies is large enough to give a comprehensive picture of industrial earnings as a whole.

Morell Named President of Federal Bar

Chosen Successor To Robert Freer at Annual Convention

William M. Morell, Board of Veterans' Appeals member, last night was elected president of the Federal Bar Association at its annual convention at the National Press Club. He was unopposed. He succeeds Robert E. Freer, Federal Trade Commission chairman.

Also elected without opposition were James W. Norris, Assistant Attorney General, first vice president; Heber H. Rice, head attorney, Home Owners Loan Corporation, second vice president; William E. Reese, General Accounting Office, fourth vice president; David S. Davison, Civil Service Commission, secretary; Harold E. Jacobson, Reconstruction Finance Corporation, financial secretary, and Herbert H. Rice, War Department Engineers office, treasurer.

Marguerite Rawalt, Internal Revenue Bureau, defeated two candidates for third vice president. William R. Vallance, State Department, was elected delegate to the American Bar Association.

The secretary reported that the association membership had reached the highest point in its history with an enrollment of more than 1,000.

Sharpe to Address Civitan Luncheon

C. Melvine Sharpe, executive assistant, Potomac Power Co., will address the Washington Civitan Club at 12:30 p. m. today at the Mayflower Hotel. Reports of the recent convention of the Chesapeake Division of Civitan Clubs at Annapolis will be submitted.

McNulty Heads Wage and Hour Legal Staff

Associate to Succeed Magruder Who Becomes New England Judge

The appointment of George A. McNulty, associate general counsel, wage and hour division, Department of Labor, to succeed Calvert Magruder as general counsel of the division, was announced yesterday by Administrator Elmer F. Andrews.

McNULTY

McNulty will take his new office when Magruder's nomination as judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the First (New England) Circuit, is confirmed by the Senate. President Roosevelt sent his nomination to the Senate a week ago.

Rufus G. Poole, now assistant general counsel, will succeed McNulty as assistant general counsel. Magruder, McNulty and Poole have been with the division since its establishment.

McNulty, a native of St. Louis, Mo., came to Washington in August, 1933, to join the legal staff of the National Recovery Administration. He also served on the Securities and Exchange Commission before joining the wage and hour division last September and was counsel to the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee during the "Little Steel" investigations.

Poole, a native of South Dakota, came to Washington in 1933 as assistant solicitor of the Department of the Interior. He helped draft the wage and hour law.

Magruder was secretary to former Justice Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court and is on leave of absence from Harvard University, where he has been a professor of law since 1920. He is a member of the American Bar Association, and the National Lawyers Guild, and a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

J. J. Forrester, Rail Labor Leader, Dies

Stricken in Pay Row With Maid; Expires On Way to Hospital

Stricken by a heart attack in a dispute with an employe at his home, James J. Forrester, 71, former president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, succumbed yesterday as he was being rushed to Garfield Hospital in a police car.

Police said that on arriving at the Forrester home, 4418 New Hampshire avenue northwest, they found him in a controversy with a maid over her wages. When he complained of acute illness, they helped him to the patrol car and started for the hospital.

Active in railway labor affairs since election as vice president of the brotherhood in 1908, he became departmental president in 1909 and grand president from 1915 to 1920. He was a member of President Wilson's first industrial conference in 1919, and in 1920 and 1921 a member of the United States Railroad Labor Board.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 10, 1939—

THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers, 1451 Eye Street, Northwest.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF VALUABLE TWO-STORY STUCCO DWELLING, BEING PREMISES NO. 2530 THIRTEENTH STREET, NORTHWEST.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded, in Liber No. 6783, Folio 209 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will sell, at public auction, in front of the premises, on WEDNESDAY, THE TENTH DAY OF MAY, A. D. 1939, AT THREE-FIFTEEN O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being Lot 77 in Harry B. Wilson's subdivision of lots in Block 30, "Columbia Heights," as per plat recorded in the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 36 at folio 174, except the West or rear 20 feet of said lot dedicated for alley purposes, as per plat recorded in said Surveyor's Office in Liber 52 at folio 4; said Block 30 being now known for purposes of assessment and taxation as Square 2866. Subject to the right of redemption by the maker of the aforesaid deed of trust, his heirs and assigns within a period of sixty days from date of sale, not excluding Sundays and holidays, as provided in said deed of trust. Subject to any and all liens created by conditional—bills of sale for heating and other equipment, if any, and overdue water rentals. All other taxes and assessments to be adjusted to date of transfer of title.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase-money to be paid in cash, balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years, with interest at five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $500.00 will be required at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within ten days from expiration of redemption period, otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

The Master Solvers Club directed by Sam Fry, jr., in "The Bridge World" is always a source of interest to students of the game who wish to test their skill.

Several interesting questions posed recently and the answers follow:

(1) The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 N T	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠Q54 ♡7 ◇QJ764 ♣10532

What do you bid?

Answer: Pass. We do not rescue our partner's opening no-trump bids and, since, despite the five-card diamond suit, our hand is too weak to offer any reasonable hope of game, we pass. This despite the singleton heart. If the opponents should reopen the bidding with a take-out double, we then, because of the singleton heart, will take out with two diamonds, but in the absence of such a contingency, we leave well enough alone and hope our partner can fulfill his contract. There is a good chance that he will, and if we bid two diamonds, an admittedly better contract, our partner unfortunately will not leave it alone, but will go on to two or three no-trump.

Question of Responding

(2) The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	?

♠83 ♡Q42 ♦QJ763 ♣K82

What do you bid?

Answer: One no trump. Naturally, we always show our five-card suit, regardless of the strength of the hand at the one level, and if the five-card suit is a major, we make every effort to bid it even at two odd. However, there is no necessity to do so with a minor suit. With just one plus honor trick in the hand and a balanced hand, one no trump adequately paints the correct picture. Concealing the diamond suit is of no particular loss and, on the other hand, a two-diamond bid would definitely infer greater strength, since partner is forced to rebid.

When in Doubt—

(3(With neither side vulnerable, the bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
3 ♡	Pass	Pass	?

You, West, hold:
♠QJ87 ♡K10764 ♦A105 ♣5

Answer: Pass. One must pass in this instance simply because there is no sensible bid available. You fully expect to be able to defeat the three-heart contract and quite possibly beat it decisively. However, a double by you in this situation is a take-out double and, even though partner from his hand may be able to tell you mean the double for business, he may have a very weak hand and desire to rescue. Heaven help you if he rescues in clubs. There is very little chance that you will miss a game by passing, since your partner could take no action over three hearts.

Your only hope of a good result by doubling is that your partner will leave it in, which he is not supposed to do. Even then he must have some help so that you can beat the opponents. The only other chance is that he can bid spades. Just pass and hope for a 50-points-a-trick penalty.

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

Good news for fishermen comes from the Department of the Interior. All streams and lakes in Yellowstone National Park, except the Madison and Yellowstone rivers, will be open from May 30 to October 15. Formerly, special opening and closing dates frequently stymied fishing enthusiasts casting for those famous Yellowstone trout.

Limit for a day's "work" will be 15 pounds of fish (dressed weight with heads and tails intact) plus one fish not to exceed a total of ten fish." If you can figure that out break out the old rod and reel.

About that bill, No. H. R. 5101, now with the Civil Service Committee, which it is claimed takes away military preferences from peacetime veterans—well, many Federal peacetime veterans are definitely irked, the Regular Veteran's Association informs. Included in the peeve is the American Legion for sponsoring the legislation, it is said. The Federal vets threaten to double up the American Veterans Association to defeat the feature.

Prospective civil service examinees, attention! Open examinations will be held for the following jobs: First and second assistant engineers in the Bureau of Lighthouses, Department of Commerce (salaries: respectively, $2,100-$2,220; $1,800-$1,920) and in the same bureau jobs for a second officer, quartermaster and an oiler. Applications must be filed with the manager, Fourth United States Civil Service District, not later than May 17.

Comes word from L. J. P. Fichthorn that Grand Voiture No. 174, La Societe Des 40 Hommes Et 8 Chevaux will hold its annual spring dance next Saturday at Indian Spring Golf and Country Club. The festivities will begin at 10 p. m. and wind up about 1 a. m.

For reservations, Chairman Clarence T. Milne may be reached at District 5050, Branch 521 during the day and at Columbia 1993-W in the evening. T. A. Bean, T. P. Royston, M. J. Lyons, F. F. Money and William T. Slattery are assisting with arrangements.

Members of the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday received letters from Kenneth Orr, president of Local 92, United Federal Workers of America, protesting against failure of the House to provide enough personnel at Gallinger Hospital to establish an eight-hour day and alleviate the longstanding problem of overwork. An appropriation of at least $106,920 is needed to properly staff the hospital, Orr said.

Government workers have been invited as guests of the National Park Service on an all-day auto caravan trip to the Gettysburg National Military Park at Gettysburg, Pa., next Sunday. Special buses will leave 1416 F street northwest at 8 a. m. and reservation may be made by calling Michigan 6363, Branch 607. The round trip will cost $2.50 and will include a tour of the Gettysburg battlefields with park service guides.

The air safety board of the Civil Aeronautics Authority has opened a branch office in Chicago "to expedite the investigation of aircraft accidents in the busy Great Lakes area," it was announced yesterday.

Ralph A. Reed has been appointed head of the new office now being established under the direction of Phil Salzman, Washington investigator.

J. E. Jones and E. H. Jose, both of the Los Angeles office of the air safety board, are being transferred to the Chicago bureau for investigative positions, officials said.

Bob Burns Says—

All successful men know that the secret of their success is centered around one little thing and that is—pleasing people. If you want folks to like you, you got'ta be nice to 'em.

I use'ta have a big hound dog that was never bothered much by fleas just because he was nice to 'em and never scratched. As a result, they used him just for a place to rest and relax—and not a lunchroom.

I guess my Uncle Vag was about the most successful tramp in this country, judging from his waistline. One day I asked him the secret of his success and he says, "Robin, when I knock at a back door and a grouchy woman answers it and asks me what I want, I smile and politely ask her for a meal. The smile kind'da softens her and when she asks me what I'll do to earn it, I say, 'Lady, I'll give you the opportunity of seein' a man go through a whole meal without findin' fault with a single thing!.'"

Books Sought

Contributions of books and current magazines were asked yesterday by the District of Columbia Chapter, American Red Cross, 1730 E street northwest.

Her Majesty the Queen

Margaret, Music Lover, Hummed 'Merry Widow' Tune at 11 Months

Queen Makes Full-Time Job of Bringing Up Two Princesses

By Lady Cynthia Asquith.

CHAPTER XX

Never for one moment did the dowager baby protest against this invasion of her hitherto private precincts, for the newcomer had been so wisely edited—introduced not as a rival but as a precious possession.

Full of character and charm, Princess Margaret Rose, now a delicious elfin child of 8, is indeed a most engaging companion. One of her best parlor tricks is a really remarkable talent for mimicry.

She loves music and has a faultless ear. When she was only 11 months old her grandmother, Lady Strathmore, was so astonished to hear the little white bundle she was carrying in her arms hum the "Merry Widow" waltz that she very nearly dropped her precious burden.

Trains Children Herself

Queen Elizabeth is one of the women who have happily made very nearly a whole-time job of the bringing up and enjoyment of her children, and one of her few regrets is that the many other important claims on her time have too often kept her away from her nursery. Nevertheless, she made it possible to find time to give Princess Elizabeth all her first lessons herself, and I am assured that for once reading without tears really was achieved.

She has, as will be readily believed, always taken the greatest delight in dressing her two pretty daughters, and much loving care has gone to choosing all the petaled frocks of palest pink, primrose yellow and speedwell blue; delicate attire in which each little Princess looks like one hedgerow flower after another.

King George and Queen Elizabeth until their accession to the throne lived in a house which, like most other London houses, had a number on its door.

Plain Net Curtains

There was nothing whatever to show that it was a royal residence; but at whatever hour one happened to pass 145 Picadilly one usually saw a group of people standing outside its door, patiently waiting in the hope that they might catch just a glimpse of one of the "three White Roses of York, as the Queen and her two daughters were called.

Elizabeth is shown here chatting with crippled boys in an Edinburg hospital

Peeping Toms had no opportunities. The plain net curtains gave an effect of closed eyelids to the house; but no sentry barred the way, and any one who wished could walk up the stone-flagged approach to the house and ring one of the two bells respectively marked "Visitors" and "House."

No house in the heart of London could be better situated for quick escapes from crowded streets. Hyde Park at the back, the lovely Green Park just opposite the front door, and if complete seclusion was wanted the garden of Buckingham Palace was within easy access. In this huge inclosure there was room to go for really long walks, and the family's golden Labradors were able to run themselves to a standstill.

Happy Atmosphere

Queen Elizabeth had grown very fond of this home in which she and her husband had both worked so hard, enjoyed relaxation as only hard workers can, and seen their children pass through so many of the fleeting phases of infancy.

Every member of the household is devoted to the two little Princesses, who have always been brought up to be particularly considerate to every one in their parents' service.

Directly you entered the house you felt conscious of the very happy atmosphere which seemed to pervade every floor.

Queen Elizabeth was never able to spend as many hours in her own house as she could have wished. Ever since her return from Australia she has constantly accompanied her husband on official visits to all parts of England, Scotland and Wales; particularly to the Midlands and to the Black Country.

Wherever their work took them, they were given an enthusiastic reception. Sparing themselves no exertion, they never grumbled at the length of the day's program.

Their most special concerns have always been the welfare of industrial workers and the care of the young.

Sheriff, Hunting Stolen Boat, Finds It Near Still

Queenstown, Md., May 1 (AP).—Sheriff Edward Earle Coursey got in two good law-enforcement licks when he went hunting for a stolen boat.

He found the boat on the yon side of the Wye River. And nearby he found a 200-gallon still. An accommodating bootlegger had coupled his crimes, ferrying the still in the stolen boat. Coursey returned the boat and destroyed the still and started a search for the law violator.

Change in Clothing Sizes Planned

Underwood & Underwood.

Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture is conducting a measurement plan to make clothes sizes uniform in stores throughout the country. James Callison, 9½, of Alexandria, Va., is being measured by Harry R. Swanson. Clothing manufacturers and department store heads were present at the demonstration yesterday

Temple School Opposes Liquor License for Nearby Cafe

Fears Students Might Be 'Embarrassed' By Convivial Patrons; Restaurateur Explains Bar Will Only Be a Side-Line

A Washington secretarial school yesterday opposed the granting of an "on sale" liquor license to a near-by restaurant on the grounds that students, waiting their escorts in the cafe's doorway, might be "embarrassed" by convivial patrons.

The Temple School of Business and Secretaries, of 1420 K street northwest, entered its protest against the application of the Tip-Top Inn, of 1422 K street northwest, before an ABC board hearing. Also protesting, "for the good of the neighborhood," were Richard Butler, manager of the Hamilton Hotel, and Gus Galanis, proprietor of the Embassy Restaurant. They said the ten such licenses in the neighborhood already were too many.

Attorney Soloman Schuler, appearing for the applicant, stated that the bar was planned only as a side-line of the inn, which would cater largely to men as a steak and chop grill. There would be no dancing or music, he said, and pointed out that residents of the building had been canvassed and offered no objections.

Lawyer Too Young, D. C. Slayer Says; Execution Stayed

James Bostic, colored, blocked his electrocution Wednesday by claiming that the lawyer who defended him was too young to know his business.

In a petition for a writ of habeas corpus he asserted that by assigning a 21-year-old attorney to defend him, the District Court denied, in substance, his constitutional right to counsel when he was tried two years ago for stabbing to death William Tuckson, 16, colored.

Justice Cox granted the writ, which was presented by Attorney Martin S. Vilas, and ordered a hearing next Monday, which will prevent Bostic's death Wednesday.

Kay Wins Divorce From Miss Lamour

Chicago, May 1 (AP).—Band Leader Herbie Kay was granted an uncontested divorce today from Dorothy Lamour, the girl in the sarong.

They were married four years ago, when Miss Lamour was singing with her husband's band. Miss Lamour's attorney announced she was waiving any claim to alimony.

Bailey Students to Give Play on Health Day

Pupils of Bailey's Sshool will present a play, "Spring's Awakening," at 10:45 a. m. tomorrow as part of Activities and Health Day. Lorelle Melton, Harry Melvin, Aubrey Posten, Jean Bayliss, Opal Weeks, Bartlett Simms and Richard Watervall will take part. Classes will be suspended after 10:30, and track events and boys' and girls' baseball games will feature the afternoon program.

Dr. Shapiro to Speak

Dr. Max Shapiro, of the Radiart Corporation, will address the Radio Servicemen of America, Washington Chapter, at 9 o'clock tonight in the Knights of Pythias Temple, 1012 Ninth street northwest.

Measles Cases Fewer This Year

Washington will be "let off easy" in this year's annual measles epidemic, Dr. James G. Cumming, of the Health Department, forecast yesterday.

A decline in new cases has been noted in the last three or four days, he said, and estimated that the total of this year's epidemic would not exceed 2,000 cases, citing 7,000 cases in 1934.

Friendship Citizens Weigh Junior Group

The Friendship Citizens Association will meet at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Janney School, Albemarle and Wisconsin avenue, to discuss admitting high school students and children of members to non-dues-paying membership. Plans for debates on civic questions by junior members also will be discussed.

Judge Schoenrich to Speak

Divorce laws in Latin America will be discussed by Otto Schoenrich, former United States district judge in Puerto Rico, at a meeting to be held at 8:30 p. m., Friday, at the Mayflower Hotel under the auspices of the Latin-American law committee of the American Bar Association.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills. —adv.

'DEDICATED TO PUBLIC SERVICE'

The Honorable Melvin C. Hazen

On The Occasion of District Days

"The Hecht Company, Washington, D. C.:

"Your forthcoming celebration of District Days impresses me as a splendid contribution to the consumers of Washington, on the part of one of our great retail institutions.

"The people of Washington, I am sure, are deeply conscious of the fact that large commercial organizations such as yours, play an important part in our community life, and are vital to the growth and development of our city.

"I congratulate the management and workers of The Hecht Company upon setting aside these two days . . . and the opportunity thus afforded to reassert your splendid principles of public service to the people of the District."

The Hon. Melvin C. Hazen, Chairman of The Board of Commissioners for The District of Columbia.

Melvin C. Hazen

THANK YOU, Mr. Commissioner! We, too, believe that large institutions have a definite civic responsibility . . . to interest themselves in the welfare of the community and its people. And we cherish the opportunity that District Days afford, to show Washington in a tangible way, our appreciation for its ever-growing public confidence and patronage. We're proud, too, of the hundreds and hundreds of District residents who are gainfully employed here . . . and the employees' honor-roll that credits scores and scores of our workers with five to thirty-eight years of uninterrupted service. We believe in Washington and the District . . . and on the occasion of District Days, we renew our pledge of service to the community . . . and we extend a cordial invitation for all Washington to be with us during this great selling event, and to share in the distribution of vast quantities of splendid new merchandise, at savings truly worthy of the occasion.
